

U. S. WINS IN FISHERIES DISPUTE

PLENTY OF WATER FISHERIES DISPUTE

The Pumping at Two Stations May be Curtailed

The rainy weather of the last week or more has so decreased the consumption of water that the water department believes it can curtail the pumping at the Boulevard and Centralville stations to three days a week. The reservoir showed 20 feet, 10 inches this morning and that is "some" high. The number of gallons being pumped each day is 2,000,000 and the department believes that number of gallons can be pumped on a three days schedule.

The grade crossing work is making more work for the water department, and, so far as odds and ends are concerned this has been the busiest summer in the history of the department. The six inch pipe in Walker street has been temporarily cut off because of the grade crossing work in that street and a similar condition of affairs exists in Upper Middlesex street. The widening of Lawrence street and the rebuilding of the bridge in that department will probably render it necessary for the water department to lay a pipe over the bridge while the work is going on.

COL. ROOSEVELT

Visited the Boys and Girls Trades Schools

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—Col. Roosevelt arrived from St. Paul about 8 o'clock this morning and for nearly 24 hours will be the guest of the Milwaukee Press club on the occasion of its silver jubilee celebration. He was greeted by 3000 persons.

After breakfast at the Hotel Pfister, Colonel Roosevelt was taken on an automobile trip and during the forenoon visited the boys and girls trades schools and later took luncheon with a number of newspaper publishers and managing editors.

During the day the colonel will call at the Deutsche club and will hold a short reception at the Hotel Pfister. Late this afternoon Mr. Roosevelt will join with the newspapermen at the Press club in a Bohemian luncheon and following this will address a big meeting at the auditorium and an overflow gathering at the Hippodrome.

A souvenir of Colonel Roosevelt's visit is the publication in the Press club of a single edition of "The Big Stick" containing a welcome printed in four languages and there are caricatures, editorials, all "Rooseveltian." Autos were in waiting at the station to take the colonel and his party to the hotel for breakfast.

The absence of Emil Seidel, the socialist mayor of the city, from the reception committee, caused some comment among members of the colonel's party.

DANIEL A. WHITE DRINKING CUPS

Nominated for Governor by Socialists

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—The socialist state convention met yesterday at Faneuil hall, with an attendance of 35 delegates from 20 cities and towns, including two from women, Mrs. Harriet D'Orray and Mrs. Eliza J. Hitchcock, and unanimously nominated by acclamation this state ticket, the first in the field:

Governor, Daniel A. White, Brockton. Lieutenant-governor, Patrick A. Mahoney, Boston. Secretary of state, Mrs. Harriet D'Orray, Lynn. Treasurer, Sylvester J. McBride, Watertown. Attorney-general, Harold Metcalf, New Bedford. Auditor, Ambrose Miles, Lynn.

The convention simply ratified the action of the conference of clubs, held Sunday and Monday, attended by 331 delegates who decided upon state candidates and platforms.

This state central committee was elected: Alfred Hodgins, Cambridge; George Rowley, Sr., Boston; Squire E. Putney, Beverly; Victor McCone, Lynn; Charles E. Blaisdell, Somerville; Calvin M. Verbeck, Malden; R. Colson, Saugus; John Mullen, Newton; Orlando Benson, Brockton; John Weaver Sherman, Boston.

The platform, read by Franklin H. Wentworth of Salem, which was unanimously adopted, demands, among other things, enactment of laws abolishing the United States senate and capital punishment; free meals for all school children; a legal maximum working day of eight hours; state insurance of all workers against sickness, invalidity, old age, accidents and unemployment; raising of the school age to 16 years; prohibition of labor by children under 16 years of age; prohibition of injunctions in labor disputes; equal pay for equal work to men and women in public and private employment; equal suffrage regardless of sex.

D. A. White, candidate for governor, and ex-Mayor James F. Carey of Haverhill, addressed the convention, of which Charles E. Fenn of Worcester was chairman, and Julius Hurdell of Braintree secretary. Albert Hess of Randolph was chairman of the committee on credentials.

The next state convention will be held at Worcester.

City Solicitor's Opinion to School Board

The following opinion relative to the use of common drinking cups in the public schools was given by the city solicitor today:

Lowell, Sept. 6, 1910.
Mr. A. K. Whitecomb,
Supt. of Schools.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of August 24th asking my opinion as to the present status of the law restricting the use of common drinking cups in the public schools.

During the present year an act was passed by the legislature, entitled "An act to restrict the use of common drinking cups." (Chap. 428, Acts of 1910). It provides substantially that the state board of health may prohibit in such public places, vehicles or buildings as it may designate the providing of a common drinking cup and may establish rules and regulations for this purpose. For the enforcement of the law, it makes any violation of the rules thus established a misdemeanor punishable by a fine.

Whether in the present time rules have been adopted by the state board, I am unable to say, but you can ascertain by communicating with them and they will send you a copy of the same, if any exist.

In reply to your third question, it is my opinion that if, under any rule of the state board of health prohibiting the use of the common drinking cup, fountains are to be placed in the school buildings of Lowell, the duty of providing the same will devolve upon the Lands and Buildings department.

Very truly yours,
Wm. W. Duncanson,
City Solicitor.

Century Old Settled by the Hague Tribunal in Our Favor

THE HAGUE, Sept. 7.—The century-old fisheries dispute, the source of constant diplomatic friction between the governments of the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Newfoundland, was finally closed today with the award of the international court of arbitration largely in favor of the United States. The American government is sustained on points 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7, out of the total of the seven points in which the issue was framed.

Great Britain wins on questions 1 and 6.

While the United States triumphs on five of the seven points, point 5, decided in favor of Great Britain, has been held by Englishmen as the most important of those submitted. The fifth point was stated in the form of this question:

"From where must be measured the three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbors referred to in article 1 of the American-British treaty of 1818?"

United States fishermen claimed the right to take the measure from any shore and therefore the liberty to fish in the middle of any Newfoundland bay or estuary having a radius of more than three miles. The British contention was that the limit should become an imaginary line connecting the headlands. The panel court sustained the British contention.

Point 1, on which Great Britain also was sustained, embodies the question of whether any local laws adopted by a British colony must be submitted for approval to any foreign power having a treaty on a similar subject with the imperial government.

This point was considered of great importance also to the British and their triumph will be a matter of much satisfaction to them.

FISHERMEN NOT JUBILANT

GLoucester, Sept. 7.—The decision of the international court of arbitration at The Hague in favor of the United States in the New Foundland fisheries dispute with Great Britain was not jubilantly received by the Gloucester fishermen. The two points won by Great Britain were as follows:

Point 1.—That Great Britain shall regulate the time and methods of fishing and the implements used.

Point 5.—That the three-mile limit around New Foundland shall be from headland to headland and not follow the line of bays as contended by the United States.

FUNERALS

BROOKS—The funeral of Mildred Edna, the seven months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks, took place on Sunday afternoon. The services that were held at the home of the parents in Graniteville, were conducted by Rev. L. F. Havemdale of the M. E. church and were largely attended.

Burial was in Fairview cemetery, Westford. Undertaker D. L. Greig had charge. Among the many floral tributes were the following: Pillow of roses, lilies and ferns from the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks; sprays, Mrs. Hannah Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. John Lannan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Healy and Miss Mary Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beebe, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. York, Alberta Grant, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Brooks, grandparents of deceased, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson and family, Mr. Frank Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Wall, Nettie and Gladys Hemming, Rachel Wall, bouquets, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Hawkes, Laura McCarthy, Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, Mrs. Martha McKee, Miss Cora Shattuck, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. John Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. James Stuart, Sr., Miss Mabel York.

McCAFFREY—The funeral of James McCaffrey took place Tuesday afternoon from the funeral parlors of Underlaker Thomas J. McDermott, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were Messrs. Thomas F. Handley, William H. Handley, Thomas McCaffrey and Michael Meade. Burial was in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery.

LADD—The funeral of Mrs. Mary H. Ladd took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of her sister, Mrs. J. H. Gamble, 183 Butman road, and was largely attended. Rev. George F. Keenigott was the officiating clergyman. The bearers were Frank Humphrey, Samuel Fleming, J. W. Hurst and Joseph Craig. The selections, "Softly and Tenderly," "Sometime We'll Understand," and "Christian's Goodnight," were sung by Mrs. W. F. Edmunds, Mrs. W. L. Roberts, Osmond Long and Harry Needham.

There was a profusion of floral offerings. Burial was in the Edison cemetery under the direction of J. A. Weinbeck.

LEAVITT—The funeral of Edwin Leavitt took place yesterday afternoon from the home of his son, George Leavitt, 29 Lombard street. Rev. R. A. Greene, D. D., conducted the services. The bearers were Harry Pratt, Alfred

W. Armistead, Cornelius C. Cotter and George A. Pincus. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Burial was in the Westlawn cemetery, under the direction of J. A. Weinbeck.

BEARDSELL—The funeral of Mrs. H. Beardsell took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Josephine H. Kennedy, 31 Arlington street. The services were conducted by Rev. Forester A. Macdonald, pastor of the Fifth Street Baptist church. The bearers were Sylvester Bean, Joseph Packard, Adam Shaw and Robert J. Gilmore. Burial was in the family lot in the Edison cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

BOWERS—The funeral of Mr. Geo. L. Bowers took place this morning from his late home, 43 Marion street. The deceased was an old and respected resident of this city, having been for a number of years a foreman in the street department. Through his kind and gentle disposition he had made a great many friends, as was shown by the large number in attendance at his funeral today.

The cortege proceeded from the house to St. Patrick's church, where at nine o'clock a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Joseph Curtin. The church choir sang the Gregorian mass. Solos of the mass were sustained by

THE LEBLANC CASE

May Not be Called to Trial Until January

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 7.—District Attorney Higgins announced today that the trial of Mattie Leblanc, the French girl who is charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover, the Waltham laundryman in Waltham last November, will probably not be held before January. The grand jury of Middlesex county is now in session and as soon as its findings have been returned there will be a session of the criminal court.

In November the district attorney

will have to argue against exceptions taken in several murder cases, including those of Chester Jordan, charged with killing his wife; Thomas Manier and James Delorey, who are accused of murdering Annie Mullins and Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, the Cambridge woman who was convicted of killing Stewart McTavish.

Another session of the criminal court in December and at present it is the belief of Mr. Higgins that the Leblanc case cannot be reached before January.

DEATHS

Miss Alice E. Murphy and Mr. Andrew A. McCarthy. As the body was being borne from the church the choir intoned "Requiem." Mr. John Kelly presided at the organ and also directed the choir.

The bearers were six of his fellow-workmen, namely: Messrs. William Fife, James Martin, Thomas Fitzgerald, Daniel Callahan, Michael Guntz and David O'Connor.

There were a number of beautiful floral tributes.

Among the friends from out of town in attendance at the funeral were Mrs. Catherine Bowers, Miss Margaret Bowers, Mr. Frank Bowers, Mrs. George Snow and Mrs. Henry Flood of Marblehead, Mr. William Magee of Salem, Mrs. Flood and Mrs. Green of Chelsea, Mrs. Henry Lynch and Miss Louise Cooper of Beach Bluff.

Interment took place in St. Patrick's cemetery, and the last solemn ritual of the Catholic church was read at the grave by Rev. Joseph Curtin. Arrangements of the funeral were in charge of Mr. Dennis Kelly, and Mr. Peter H. Savage was the undertaker.

FUNERAL NOTICES

DUPLESSIS—The funeral of William Duplessis will take place tomorrow morning at 8.15 from his home, 26 Swift street. Funeral high mass of requiem at the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. J. F. Rogers in charge.

WATSON—Died Sept. 7th, in this city, Mrs. Jane Watson, aged 64 years, at her home, 85 West street. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at 9 o'clock. Friends are invited without further notice. Burial private. The funeral arrangements are in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

PALMER—Died Sept. 5, E. West Palmer, aged 61 years, 5 months and 10 days, at Lowell hospital. Funeral Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the rooms of C. M. Young, 33 Prescott street. Friends invited.

RILEY—The funeral of Bridget Riley will take place from the home of her nephew, Philip Smith, 56 Pond street, Thursday morning at 8.30. High mass of requiem at the immaculate conception church at 9 o'clock. C. H. Molloy & Sons in charge.

AUTO DRIVER

KNOCKED DOWN OFFICER WHO HALTED MACHINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Police-Man of the traffic squad, who was stationed at Fifth avenue and Fifth street yesterday afternoon, was told by a man in an automobile that two men were driving a runaway up Fifth avenue in a reckless manner. The runaway came along in a minute and the officer signalled the men to stop. One of them jumped from the carriage and began to abuse the policeman for stopping him. A sightseeing automobile drew up behind them, and the man from the runaway demanded that the chauffeur of the car be arrested. He then knocked Maher down.

One of the persons who saw the affair was Detective Corrigan. He told Maher that he would appear in the men's night court as a witness, but later he found that he couldn't. The two men who were arrested said that they were William Bartlett and Thomas Butler of 12 East Thirty-first street. Magistrate Appleton sentenced them to the workhouse for thirty days.

SPALDING LAND OFFERED TO THE CITY

View of the plot of land offered to the city for park purposes. The land is in front of the Spalding house in Parker street and has been offered to the city by Hannah M. Spalding, who would have it named Parker-Spalding square in memory of two families closely connected with the Revolutionary period. The plot of land contains 1875 feet. The matter of accepting the land for park purposes went to the board of aldermen last night and was referred to the park commission.

CRASHED IN FOG

The Steamers Gov. Cobb and City of Gloucester in Collision

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—In the thickest fog that has enveloped the harbor and bay in years, the steamers Gov. Cobb and the City of Gloucester collided yesterday in Broad sound, resulting in the death of one man and the serious injury of another.

The City of Gloucester was the more seriously damaged and she crept back to her berth on the north side of Central wharf with her starboard bow above the waterline.

The cause of the collision was attributed to the fact that both vessels were feeling their way cautiously can be attributed to the escape from a serious disaster with possible loss of life.

The Gov. Cobb, one of the steel propelled boats of the Eastern steamship company, in command of Capt. W. H. Allen, and crowded with returning vacationists was on her way into port from St. John, Eastport and Portland. The City of Gloucester, Capt. Lindtken, was bound to Gloucester from the city with a big freight and 20 passengers.

A statement to a reporter by Capt. Allen of the Gov. Cobb said that he never saw the fog so thick. He said that before he got to the Graves he slowed down and it was so thick that he stopped his boat several times.

The City of Gloucester, which is not half the size of the other craft, had the planking in her starboard bow stove in for nearly 20 feet. The break was about five feet wide. There was great excitement on board the smaller boat.

Women Almost Hysterical.

Mrs. Florence Chisholm of Everett, who was in the women's cabin, was thrown to the floor and fainted. The other women on board had become almost hysterical and the officers and male passengers had difficulty in calming them.

Although the damage to the Gloucester boat was all above the water line, Capt. Lindtken decided to return to port and she swung into her berth just before 5 o'clock. Among those on board were Mrs. E. F. Forbes of Malden, Mrs. P. Anderson of Rockport, John Hickey and James Thorp of Gloucester.

The freight was taken out of the damaged vessel and transferred to the steamer Cape Ann, which sailed for Gloucester last evening. The City of Gloucester will haul over to the Atlantic works at East Boston to undergo repairs.

John A. Brown of East Douglas, who was returning on the Gov. Cobb with his wife from a visit to Portland, admitted that he was badly frightened. He said he was knocked off his seat by the shock. He said there was no panic on board, but most of the passengers got the fright of their lives.

The officers of both vessels acted with good judgment. The steamer Prince George, outward bound to Yarmouth, N. S., came down from the city, and for a time it looked as if the three vessels would come together in a second collision but this was prevented by the skilful handling of the wheelmen.

So far as could be learned, the accident was entirely unavoidable. The damage to the Cobb will not delay her sailing on schedule. Agent E. S. Merchant of the Gloucester line said the damage to the City of Gloucester would amount to between $1000 and $2000. He said he was satisfied that both captains did everything in their power to prevent the accident and that it was unavoidable.

Owing to the accident to the steamer City of Gloucester, the company will discontinue the 10 a. m. trip from Gloucester to the city and the 2:15 p. m. trip from Gloucester to the city.

Barge Berkeley on Fire.

Several near-collisions and accidents occurred during the fog, and fireboat 47, while answering a call for assistance from the barge Berkeley, which caught fire while anchored in Nantasket roads, ran into a black fogbank and was forced to return to the city.

The fate of the barge caused some concern among shipping interests. Up to a late hour last night it was not known whether the fire had been extinguished or the barge had been consumed.

The Berkeley arrived here last Sunday from Lewes, Del., with a cargo of 1000 tons of fish scraps for the Bradley fertilizer works at Weymouth. She lay at anchor in the roads, waiting to be towed to her discharging berth.

At 2 yesterday afternoon the captain discovered smoke issuing from the forward hold, and the small crew immediately rushed to quarters and began to fight the fire. The engine room was filled with smoke and the men were driven back by the fumes of ammonia, which nearly overcame them before they could reach the open air.

The captain, realizing that their position was precarious, rowed ashore and telephoned the city for assistance. The tug William H. Clark and fireboat 47, with District Chief Ritchie on board, started down. On reaching buoy 9 the fog was so thick that the fireboat put about and returned to her berth. Chief Ritchie said it was so thick he could not see 10 feet away.

It was reported that the Clark succeeded in locating the barge and with her fire apparatus may have succeeded in quenching the flames.

Cormorant Ashore at Fort Warren.

Capt. Chase of the steamer Howard, which groped her way up the harbor and swung into her berth at Battery wharf at 6:11 last evening, reported the city tug Cormorant ashore at Fort Warren on the westerly side of the channel. Alongside the tug was a dumping scow which was also probably ashore. The Cormorant was nearly high and dry although she was standing upright. Capt. Chase said she would probably remain there until the flood tide, early this morning.

The Howard was 10 hours late on account of the fog. She came from Norfolk with fifty passengers and a big freight and first struck into the fog off Block Island. When Handkerchief light-ship was reached the fog was so thick that Capt. Chase decided to anchor, and the mudhook anchor was down for five hours. On reaching Boston light at 2 p. m. yesterday the opaque mass shut in again and the steamer lay at anchor between the light and Fort Warren for three hours.

Capt. Chase said that Vineyard sound was filled with a fog bound fleet of schooners, tugs and barges.

The entire New England coast was wrapped in the heavy pall. Steamers from coast ice and provincial ports made port in the morning with their officers weary from a night of constant vigil at the wheel. Passengers had little sleep, for the whistles were sounded almost continuously.

Among the early arrivals were the steamers City of Augusta, Capt. Howlett, from Savannah; Yale, Capt. Hawes, from New York; Camden, Capt. Brown, from Bangor; Bay State, Capt. Linscott, from Portland, and the Coastwise, Capt. Crowley, from Baltimore.

A wireless message received stated that the Leyland line steamship Devonian, on her way from Liverpool, was 100 miles east of Boston light at 5 a. m. and would reach her berth in East Boston at 5:30 in the afternoon. The liner had been delayed by the fog and failed to put in an appearance. She is believed to have anchored outside.

On board the Devonian are 10 of the crew of the British tramp steamer West Point, which foundered at sea following a fire on board. Upon arriving here the eastways will be taken in charge by the British consul general, who will arrange for sending them to their homes in England.

DEMOCRATIC GAINS PEOPLE STUNNED

The Republican Loss in Vermont is 24 Per Cent

Vermont State Ticket-Elect

Governor, John A. Mead of Rutland.
Lieutenant governor, Leighton P. Stack of St. Johnsbury.
Secretary of state, Guy B. Bailey of Essex.
Treasurer, Edward H. Devitt of Montpelier.
Auditor, Horace B. Graham of Craftsbury.
Attorney general, John G. Sargent of Ludlow.

Members of Congress

Second district, Frank Plumley of Northfield.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Returns for governor in the state election yesterday from 229 out of 275 election districts, including 190 out of 246 cities and towns, give Mead, republican, 28,694; Watson, democrat, 14,680.

The corresponding vote in 1908, was: Prouty, republican, 37,661; Burke, democrat, 13,607.

These returns show a republican loss of 24 per cent, and a democratic gain of 7 per cent. If the same percentage is maintained throughout the state, Mead's election is indicated by over 17,500 plurality, compared with 29,545 given Prouty in 1908.

The democrats are celebrating the results as a party victory, but the republican leaders are inclined to charge the poor showing to the rain, which kept the farmers at home and in a small degree to the personal unpopularity of the head of the ticket.

The whole republican state ticket was elected, but the democrats made some gains in the legislature.

Both republican candidates for congress were elected.

THE DEMOCRATS

REDUCED THE REPUBLICAN PLURALITY BY 12,000

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Although there were a number of little hill towns still unreported, the republican and democratic leaders scanned the returns of yesterday's election today with considerable interest. That Dr. John A. Mead of Rutland, the lieutenant governor, should have been advanced to full governorship by a plurality of about 17,500 in an off year when the republican pluralities have run close to 20,000 on these occasions during the past 25 years, was a matter of fruitful thought on the part of the leaders of the party. The democratic managers, while not at all jubilant over the excellent showing of Lawyer Watson, the party leader, expressed a firm conviction today that the reduction of the republican plurality by more than 12,000 since 1908 was more than an unusual endorsement of democratic issues by the people of Vermont.

The democrats also made heavy business, try The Sun "Want" column.

gains in the legislature and while the senate in the coming session will be solidly republican, nearly forty democrats will sit in the house, an increase of twenty over two years ago.

The falling off in the total vote which reached 84,000 two years ago and declined to 50,000 yesterday fell heaviest on the republicans, while the socialistic increase was considerable. The two minor parties, prohibitionist and socialist, however, were not a factor in the general result.

Lightning Set Bungalow on Fire

Bass Overwhelmed Ellis in New Hampshire Election

LENOX, Sept. 7.—In a terrific storm which swept up the Yokum valley late yesterday afternoon, the storm centre of which was over the Lenox golf course, a bolt of lightning struck a bungalow on the Lenox golf links, set it on fire and stunned Mrs. Samuel Seligman and Miss Cecil Seligman of New York. C. Howard White of London and Duncan Cryder, the New York club man who had taken shelter in the bungalow.

Mr. White and Mr. Cryder had just finished their last hole when the storm descended. The Seligmans, caught in the downpour, had hastened indoors, when one of the bolts which had been playing over the field shot down and struck one end of the club house.

It ripped off shingles and passed downward through a brick chimney and fireplace into the ground below. On one side of the fireplace were the Seligmans drying themselves before a blaze which had been started.

In the men's lounging room Mr. Cryder stood before a table drinking ginger ale. The lightning knocked the glass from his hand to the table. The glass did not upset, and after all the excitement was over Mr. Cryder went back and finished his drink.

The bungalow took fire, but was extinguished by caddies and the rain, which fell in torrents.

Mrs. Seligman and Miss Seligman were taken to a hotel, where they recovered from the shock of the experience. One of the great pines on the Hotel Aspinwall grounds was struck and splintered by an electric bolt.

ENGINEER RICE

SAYS DUST OF BITUMINOUS COAL IS DEADLY TO MINER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—That the dust of bituminous coal is an explosive more insidious, threatening and deadly to the miner than fire, is the assertion of George S. Rice, chief mining engineer of the bureau of mines. This is contrary to what has been the general belief, nevertheless it has been proved beyond doubt by the experiments of the last two years at the Pittsburgh Testing Station of the United States Geological Survey, which is now a part of the bureau of mines. While many mine operators and miners have believed that coal dust would ignite from an explosion of fire, in a mine, nearly all of them contended that the dust in a mine free from gas could not explode. Consequently, in many mines where no fire, could be detected, miners have paid little attention to the accumulation of dust from the cutting of the coal, and it is in these mines, Mr. Rice declares, some of the great disasters have taken place.

In a bulletin which has just been issued by the bureau, Mr. Rice refers especially to the appalling series of great, widespread disasters that occurred in the United States in 1907, as evidence of the terrible havoc wrought by dust explosions. On January 23, at the Primero mine, Colorado, there were twenty-four deaths; on January 25, at the Pennington mine, West Virginia, twelve deaths; on January 29, at the Stuart mine, near Fayetteville, W. Va., ninety deaths; on February 4, at the Thomas mine, Thomas, West Virginia, twenty-five deaths; on December 1, at the Naomi mine, Pennsylvania, thirty-five deaths; on December 1, at the Monongah mine, West Virginia, occurred the greatest disaster in the history of coal mining in the United States, 253 lives having been lost; on December 16, at the Yolande mine, Ala., fifty-six men were killed; and on December 19, at the Darr mine, 230 men were killed. In this black month of December alone, says Mr. Rice, 643 men were sacrificed, chiefly from the effects of coal dust, which if not the initial cause, in all cases was the agency carrying death.

It was after these explosions that the federal government took up an inquiry into the causes of the disasters and established the testing station at Pittsburgh. The very first work was to prove to the mine operators and miners that coal dust alone would explode. The dust was placed in a cylinder 100 feet long and six feet in diameter, with a cannon imbedded in one end. This cannon was filled with black powder and discharged by electricity into the coal dust. In practically every instance there was a terrific explosion, far more violent than that caused by fire-damp. Each succeeding experiment went further to prove that coal dust is the real great danger of the mines. Fire-damp, according to Mr. Rice carries its own warning. Whenever gas is present in a mine in dangerous quantities, a blue flame rises from the safety lamp to the miner, but coal dust, though visible, does not attract attention unless present in large quantities. Fire-damp is generally found in certain parts of the mine, and except in notable and very exceptional cases is controllable by means of the ventilating currents. It is, however, a deadly enemy, and if ignited in a mine, the force of the explosion is terrific, but the effect is localized unless dry coal dust is present, or unless (as rarely happens) an explosive mixture of air and gas extends through large areas of the mine. In a mine that is dry, dust accumulates everywhere, and the blast from the ignition and combination of the bituminous dust may traverse miles of rooms and entries and even wreck structures at the entrance of the mine.

One of the unaccountable phases of the coal dust problem has been the disinclination of operators and miners to believe that the dust would explode without the presence of gas. The United States was not alone in this. For the French engineers, refused to believe in this until the great disaster occurred at Courrières in 1906, in which 1000 men lost their lives. Since that terrible catastrophe, a testing station has been established in France, and now the French engineers are fully convinced of the dangers of coal dust.

Now since it is generally accepted that bituminous coal dust is explosive, the federal investigators have been looking for the remedy. Various experiments, in sprinkling the roadways of the mines, in saturating the air in the mine with steam so as to produce a humid effect, in placing zones of stone dust in the mines, have all been tried with various success. A number of these experiments are described by Mr. Rice in the bulletin. Interesting chapters on different phases of the work have been contributed by such well-known men as J. C. W. Frazer, a coal expert, and J. H. Schuch, a chemist. The bulletin, which is No. 425, can be had by addressing the Director of the Bureau of Mines, Washington, D. C.

HON. ROBERT P. BASS, REPUBLICAN NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

State Machine is Badly Wrecked —Cy Sulloway Escaped the Insurgents in His Race for Congress

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—New Hampshire's first state-wide primaries were featured yesterday by the victory of the progressive republicans over the so-called regulars. State Senator Robert P. Bass of Peterborough, the progressive leader, receiving the republican nomination for governor over Herbert Ellis of Keene, the regular standard bearer, by a substantial margin.

With half the state counted, Bass led Ellis by 5757 votes, showing unexpected strength in cities where Ellis was supposed to be stronger, and maintaining his strength in the country districts.

All the interest of the primaries was centered on the republican struggle, as there was no contest in the democratic ranks.

The progressives received one setback in the congressional fight. Congressman Cyrus A. Sulloway of Manchester, generally rated as a regular, securing the congressional nomination in the First district over Sherman E. Burroughs, progressive, by a substantial margin.

Congressman Frank D. Currier had no party opposition to the republican renomination in the Second congressional district. Despite a heavy rain the republican vote was large.

The democratic vote for Clarence E. Carr of Andover for governor and for Mayor Eugene E. Reed of Manchester for the congressional nomination in the First district and Henry H. Metcalf of Concord in the Second district, all of whom were unopposed, was light.

Widespread interest was manifested in New Hampshire's primaries, the first experiment of this kind to be conducted in the eastern states, and the outcome of the sharp struggle between the progressive and regular republicans for the gubernatorial nomination was watched in the expectation of getting some idea of the popular feeling concerning the struggle for party control within the republican ranks.

One of the chief minor features of the election was the defeat in this city as delegates to the state convention of U. S. Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, chief supporter of Col. Ellis, and ex-Senator William E. Chandler, who had been prominent in the support of Mr. Bass.

That President Taft was keeping his finger on New Hampshire's political pulse was indicated by a telegram received here from him during the night asking for information as to the result of the primary.

THE "INSURGENTS"

SCORED A TWO TO ONE VICTORY IN PRIMARIES

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—By the ratio of approximately 2 to 1 the republicans of New Hampshire have followed the example of the party in California and Kansas and nominated a "progressive" candidate for governor. With only 16 scattered polling precincts unreported out of a total of 289 in the state, Robert P. Bass of Peterborough, "progressive" candidate, received more than 19,000 votes, against 9900 cast for Herbert Ellis of Keene, the "regular" candidate in yesterday's primary elections—the first ever held in this state.

Clarence E. Carr of Andover, the democratic candidate, was unopposed for the party nomination for governor. He received nearly 6000 votes. The "progressive" victory did not extend to the congressional contest in the First district where Congressman Sulloway of Manchester, generally counted as a "regular," won a decisive victory over Sherman E. Burroughs, a Manchester attorney, who was the "progressive" candidate. Congressman Frank Currier was unopposed in the Second district.

Throughout the republican campaign the tariff and other national issues played but little part, the fight of the "progressives" being directed against alleged control of state affairs by corporate influences.

The candidates for governor were the only ones running for a state office voted for, the legislature electing the other state officers.

The majority of prominent republicans viewed the primary system as a marked improvement over the old system of making nominations through the election of delegates to a convention. The democrats favor the new law. Many members of both parties appear to be of the opinion that primary election day should be changed in a date nearer the November season in order to shorten the long period of campaigning which is now necessary.

FOUND DEAD

WOBURN MAN USED EITHER AND A SPONGE

WOBURN, Sept. 7.—James McDermott of 11 Grove street was found dead by his sister yesterday afternoon when she returned from a visit to friends over Labor day. The man was found lying on his bed, a sponge saturated with ether and morphine, across his mouth and nostrils.

Medical Examiner Harrison G. Blake, who was notified, said the man had been dead at least eight hours. He declared the case one of suicide. The family have so far been unable to assign any cause for the act. For some years, and up to a short time ago, McDermott was a crossing tender at Central square, Woburn.

Girls Who Work

are especially exposed to the dangers of female organic disorders. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has enabled thousands of girls to hold their positions.

Read what these girls say:

Phila., Pa.—"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier saved my life. When I was 14 years old I was regular and then it went away for a long time. I went to many doctors but none helped me, so I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions. I took the Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and now I am strong and healthy again. I cannot express my gratitude to you." Lizzie Weber, 4152 N. Fairhill St., Phila., Pa.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"Having suffered for five long years with suppression and great pain every month, spending big money for doctors and getting no cure, I at last went to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine with little hopes, but found just what I needed. To-day I am regular and have no pain, thanks to your advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Lizzie Steiger, 5510 Fleet Ave., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls will do the same for any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

These testimonial letters are the genuine and truthful statements from honest people.

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there is lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

BANK DEPOSITORS

Want to Know What the Bank's Plans Are

BIDDEFORD, Me., Sept. 7.—Between 200 and 300 depositors of the York County Savings bank, which was closed three weeks ago with an estimated shortage of $300,000 in the accounts of its former treasurer met in Assembly hall last night and instructed a committee of five to call on the bank's officers for more exact information as to the situation and the officers' plans.

The meeting was called at the instance of several of the largest depositors to see what action should be taken by the depositors to protect their interests in the affairs of the bank, now under investigation by Bank Examiner Skelton and the trustees.

The hall proved too small to accommodate the crowd and many were unable to hear the remarks of those who spoke. A large number of women were present.

Edward C. Luques of Saco, president and Joseph Bolduc of this city was secretary.

Ex-Mayor Nathaniel B. Walker, retained as counsel by the originators of the meeting, addressed the depositors. He referred to the delay in giving out detailed information of the bank's affairs and thought the depositors were not to be blamed for taking steps to protect their interests.

Mr. Walker cautioned the depositors, however, against hasty action. He said that if the bank should be closed permanently and its affairs liquidated, while depositors would undoubtedly get a dividend within a reasonable time from such assets as were represented by mortgages on real estate, there would probably be prolonged delay in realizing anything from stocks and bonds held by the bank.

The market for these securities, he pointed out, was such that if a receiver were appointed they would be disposed of, in all probability, only after waiting for better prices than now prevail.

Before resorting to any legal proceedings Mr. Walker advised the depositors to appoint a committee to see the officers of the bank and ascertain if possible more exact information as to the condition of the institution and also whether the officers proposed to attempt resuming operations or to liquidate. He thought the officers must now know enough about the bank's affairs to enable them to decide this last question.

The following committee was appointed to interview the bank officers: Edward C. Luques, Joseph Bolduc, Charles Walker, John J. Dunn and Llewellyn Smith. The committee expects to see the officials tomorrow.

Several of the depositors spoke in criticism of the slowness with which information of the results of the bank examiners' investigation have been made public.

Rev. Joseph E. Cassavant of Sanford condemned the policy of allowing the deposited treasurer, Richmond H. Ingersoll, now lying ill at his home, to be guarded only by members of fraternal societies to which he belonged. Mr. Cassavant said he believed Mr. Ingersoll should be placed under arrest and guarded while sick by policemen. His remarks were applauded.

He left the Bates college team. Since then he has developed into a popular member of the Pat Men's club.

There is a story going the rounds in baseball circles that the Cleveland baseball team offered the sum of $8000 for catcher Al Smith of the Washington club, says the Lawrence Eagle.

The story goes that Lajoie and the rest of the Cleveland team saw Hack in action, and liked him so well that the attention of the owners was attracted to the work of the former Lawrence backstop, with the result that the offer was made. Washington refused the offer and refused to part with the player for any sum, no matter how large it might be. The Washington club feels that Al Smith is going to develop into the best backstop of the major leagues and certainly Hack's host of friends here in Lawrence hope that it comes true.

Lawrence was paid pretty good money for Al Smith, but the Washington club is satisfied that he was bought cheap. If Al Smith's ability were known he would have brought to the local club twice the amount that Lawrence received. Mike Kahoe, upon whose recommendation Al Smith was purchased, has done a good year's work and his club is satisfied. If he goes on much more than recommending Al Smith. Catchers are scarce in the big leagues, and where a dozen pitchers can be found, not a good backstop can be dug up. The backstops are getting harder propositions for the big leagues each year and no wonder Lawrence is chuckling with glee in getting such a promising youngster as Hack Al Smith.

T. H. Murnane, president of the New England league and baseball writer on the Boston Globe, had two squibs in yesterday's edition that are of interest to local fans. The first one says: "Lawrence has a dandy shortstop in Carlstrom, who escaped the draft." Carlstrom came to this city from New Jersey, being recommended to Lawrence by Joe Hartner, the old Lawrence centerfielder. Carlstrom has made a big impression since he came here, but has not had experience enough as yet to be warranted being drafted. With another year or so in this league, he should develop into a mighty good ball player, as he has all the earmarks of a comer.

The other squib says: "See Morse and Pres. Murnane of the New England league stamp the stories regarding friction between the league officials as manufactured out of whole cloth." This is in answer to the attack upon these officials as published in the Lynn item the other day and which was quoted in the columns of this paper. Notwithstanding the denial all is not rosy in the league and if there is no feeling between Tim and Jake, still there are many managers in the league who do not take kindly to the way that their president and secretary are handling the affairs of the New England league. It would not require much to create a grand old pump within the ranks of the league and it would not at all be surprising if an uprising came that threatened the continuance of these two officials in office. No one knows that better than Pres. T. H. Murnane and Sec. J. C. Morse, who now appear in the light of trying to make little of the trouble that is brewing.—Lawrence Eagle.

CRESCENTS VICTORIOUS
The Crescents of the Stone Brook league triumphed over the Royals of Andover Monday morning in a fast 10 inning game by a score of 10 to 3. The feature of the game was the batting of Dillon and the pitching of Jenkins who had 15 strikeouts to his credit, for the Crescents. Welch was the star for the Royals. The battery for the Crescents was Jenkins and Covert, for the Royals, O'Connell and Collins.

LOWELL DIVISION
On Thursday, September 8th, 1910, the new car line to Haver Square, Dracut, via Lilley Avenue and Hildreth Street, will be opened for travel. The first regular trip will leave Merrimack Square Thursday, at 8:52 a. m., and every thirty minutes until 11:22 p. m. Subject to change without notice, the regular schedule will take effect Friday, September 9th, 1910, as follows: Leave Merrimack Square 5:52 a. m. and every 30 minutes until 11:22 p. m. Sunday 8:22 a. m. and every 30 minutes until 10:52 p. m. Returning: Leave Haver Square 6:07 a. m. and every 30 minutes until 11:37 p. m. Sunday 8:37 a. m. and every 30 minutes until 11:07 p. m.

DIAMOND NOTES
Double header at New Bedford today. Let's get into third place. Too bad that schedule can't be stretched out a week.

Don't forget Fred Lake and his boys next Monday with Tyler making his debut as a big leaguer.

The series with Brockton is closed and we hold them one, 9 to 8. Ruth prevented yesterday's final game.

Geo. Brown, an outfielder of Nashua, N. H., has joined Fall River.

At this writing it was still undecided whether or not Fall River will transfer its game to Lowell tomorrow. If it does a double-header will be played.

Fred Webber of the local board of underwriters pitched on one of the teams at the Pat Men's outing at Bass Point, Labor day. Fred pitched a season for Lowell under Fred Lake after Sept. 6, 1910.

UHLAN, ED. GEERS SAYS HE IS GREATEST TROTTER OF ALL TIME

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—While thor, said, William G. Bradley of this city, houghbred horse racing is on its last legs, offered $60,000 for Colorado E, the in nearly every state in the Union, the horse that lowered the world's record harness racing game has become more popular than ever. In fact, many turned down on both offers. It is understood that Mr. Bradley set out to buy The Harvester, 2:02, world's champion trotting stallion. During the harness meeting here the report has it that the owner of Ardmore farm offered $75,000 for The Harvester, but August Uhlein refused it. The Harvester, next to Uhlan, is the most sensational trotter performing on the grand circuit this season. Ed Geers, the veteran driver, who has driven The Harvester since he appeared on a track, is quoted as saying that Uhlan is the greatest trotter of all time. "He can trot a quarter in 30 seconds easier than any horse I ever saw," says Geers. In considering the merit of trotting horses Lou Dillon's wind shield record of 1:58½, made at Memphis in 1905, must be eliminated. Uhlan's 1:58½ at Cleveland Aug. 12 without the wind shield is the greatest performance in the history of the trotting turf.

LANGFORD WON

Defeated Jeannette in a Strenuous Bout

Some 100 local fight fans journeyed to Boston in the rain last evening to see the Langford-Jeannette bout and everyone of them said afterward that he would go farther and in a big rain storm to see such a bout, for it was the best ever pulled off in the Armory club and demonstrated the fact that at the strenuous art of self-defense the colored champion has it all over his white brother for endurance.

It was a slashing contest and the decision, going to Langford, was perfectly proper, although there were many who still believe that in a finish contest Jeannette could win, for they recall his performance against McVey in Paris last year when after getting an awful licking from McVey he succeeded in putting Sam away in 49 rounds.

Another great feature of the go was the refereeing of Charlie White of New York, the prince of referees. White made a great hit with those of the members who had never seen him work before. There was no chance to lose with White the third man in the ring.

Hugh McIntosh, the Australian fight promoter, arrived in time to see the closing rounds, and while Jeannette looked bad then, McIntosh claimed that he was far from being all in and that he would lead Langford a merry race in a contest of longer duration than 15 rounds.

When Langford and Jeannette stepped into the ring it was plain to the members that both had been through a careful course of preparation for the bout, for they looked in superb shape, and the way that they withstood the rights and lefts that they handed to each other all through the bout showed that they were.

While Jeannette looked to be the heavier of the two there was not enough difference in their weight to give him any advantage in that respect. The bout went the full distance and was somewhat of a surprise, though the fans were aware that Jeannette is one tough fellow to stow away in such a short time.

Langford was fanned by most of the members as the winner, and the way he outscored Jeannette in a majority of the rounds showed that they were not wrong in their calculations. A few times it looked as if Langford would make the result a decisive one, but Jeannette's wonderful recuperative powers stood him in good stead, and he always came back before Langford could get over the K. O. punch.

Both were a bit slow in starting in the first session, but after that round the boxing was about the fastest that has been displayed in this section for a long time. There was not much stalling, and, although Jeannette quite often went to a clinch, the referee separated them so quickly that no complaint could be made about it.

Langford's lefts to the jaw and stomach and his rights to the jaw made Jeannette look weary many times. Sam did some good countering and got inside many of the stiff lefts that Jeannette shot for his face.

Langford did not use his right up to the great deal, but when he did it was somewhat of a surprise, though the fans were aware that Jeannette is one tough fellow to stow away in such a short time.

WOMAN FOUND DYING

She Was Taken to Chelmsford Street Hospital Where She Died

—Her House Was Well Furnished and the Woman Had $67 in Money

Jennie Ferrigo, an elderly woman, who was a nurse by occupation, was found at the point of death in a room at 45 Winter street early Monday morning and removed to the City hospital, at which place she died yesterday afternoon. Little is known of the woman other than that she was a nurse and at one time lived in Pawtucket, R. I., but more recently she had been in Maynard, having come to Lowell from that place about a week ago. Death was due to natural causes, the examining physician stating that peritonitis was the cause.

Early Monday morning Patrolmen O'Keefe and Johnson were passing through Winter street when they heard groans emanating from a room in the house numbered 45. An investigation by the patrolmen led to the discovery of Miss Ferrigo, who was in a very weak condition. The ambulance was summoned and the woman was taken to the City hospital where she received treatment, but her condition was such that it was impossible to save her life.

Very little is known about the deceased, other than the fact that she was a nurse and had lived in Starbuck and Crawford streets. How long she had been in Lowell is not known as she did not hold any conversation with any of the neighbors.

That she was not in needy circumstances was evident, for the house was well furnished and she had $67 in money. The furniture and money were turned over to Constable Lapierre, who is a public administrator, and he will see that the woman receives a decent burial.

It is understood that the deceased has a sister and brother either in Maine or New Hampshire and the local police are now trying to locate them.

ALL COLORADO IS INTERESTED IN FIGHT BEING WAGED AGAINST GUGGENHEIM

DENVER, Sept. 7.—Much of the interest in the selection of state legislators at the next election centers about the candidature's affiliation with Senator Simon Guggenheim and the interests he is alleged to represent. Judge Lindsay, founder of the juvenile offenders' court, and other reformers are openly fighting all candidates known to be friendly to the senator, whose term expires March 2, 1913. It is alleged that Senator Guggenheim and several of his brothers are interested in the manufacture of nearly every article which was subject to an increase by the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

WOMAN WAS ROBBED

But She Defended Man Who Took Her Jewelry

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—John J. Vance, alias "John Sullivan," alias "Johnny the Pig," is a fictionist, as well as a burglar, and he is a good fictionist, whereas he is a very poor burglar.

The story of his life, which he told to Mrs. Ella B. Russell of 27 McDonough street, Brooklyn, whom he robbed of $1500 worth of jewelry, was so convincing, in spite of its almost unbelievable "plot" that she reported it yesterday to Magistrate Harris as a possible defense of the prisoner.

If the story is true, John Vance was kidnapped when two years old by a man who had once been a suitor for the hand of his mother. From his babyhood he was educated in the art of crime to serve the vengeance of this man against his woman who had refused to marry him.

Mrs. Russell is not a woman to be easily duped in such matters. She has been for years a serious student of criminology. She is a member of the Forward Movement association, which has for its object the reclamation of ex-convicts and all unfortunates. But even though he robbed her after she had befriended him—and only a few days after his release from Dannemora prison—she is convinced of this much, at least—that John Vance is not responsible for his criminal career.

She had a conference yesterday with the prisoner and Magistrate Harris, after the latter had held Vance in $3000 bail, and it is supposed that the prisoner related again the story of his life, which he had told to Mrs. Russell about as follows:

"I was kidnapped when I was two years old from my parents, who were wealthy residents of New York City. From the very first I was trained to be a burglar. They beat me over the head until my head went wrong. And when such force that Jeannette's head would go back. The latter did a great deal of his scoring with a left jab to the mouth and nose and a right on the kidneys and stomach.

STAGE JEWELRY
NEW YORK MAN HAD BASKET-FULL OF IT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A first cabin passenger on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, in yesterday from Bremen and Cherbourg, whose name was said to be Emil Aaron, caused a flurry among the customs inspectors. Aaron came off the ship with two good sized baskets. An inspector who stuck his hand into one of these baskets pulled out several blue cloth bags about nine inches by fifteen filled with small and very hard chunks of something. He opened a bag and drew out a handful of what appeared to be blue stones. "If these are amethysts," said the inspector to himself, "they ought to be worth a hundred thousand or something like that."

Other stones, with blue predominating, were in another bag, and still another contained what the inspector thought might be tobacco. The inspector called to another man in uniform and they read the passenger's declaration together. In it the passenger had admitted himself the possessor of a large amount of glass stones for stage jewelry. He said that he had been told the stones would not be over $50. This, it was said, was just what he did pay.

BIG SEWER JOB In Dutton St. Not an Easy One

Of all the jobs that the sewer department has tackled in years there has been none more formidable than the deepening of the sewer in Dutton street. The work is progressing slowly because of the fact that it is one great big ledge from start to finish, and despite the fact that there has been a deal of blasting, no accidents have occurred—not as much as a pane of glass has been broken. The sewer is being lowered to a depth of 16 feet.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Betsey Rose circle, 24 ladies of G. A. R., was held last night and much business was transacted. By vote of those present, the supper before the meetings will be held at the next meeting, Sept. 20, and it is hoped that all members will be present to have a social time after the variation. Communications in regard to the national convention were read and acted upon.

BOTH DIE IN AUTO

Judge and Sister-in-Law Were the Victims

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 7.—Judge William H. Andrews, a retired member of the New York bar, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Nicoline Neilson of Brooklyn, were hurled over a twenty-foot embankment last night by an unmanageable automobile, which came crashing down upon them, killing both.

The tracks of the auto from the road indicated that the machine had been steered straight for a ten-foot stone retaining wall, jumping from the wall and turning a complete somersault. Examination of Judge Andrews showed no marks, and it was the belief of the physicians that he was either attacked with heart failure or apoplexy before the accident happened, and while unconscious steered the machine off the road, or that he became frightened and lost control of the car.

The tragedy occurred on the Durham road, about three miles from Middletown, while Judge Andrews and Mrs. Neilson were returning from an afternoon ride. The machine was a one-seater electric runabout, which had been sent to the judge by the manufacturer pending the delivery of a large electric that he recently ordered. Had not Dr. Harold A. Meeks, of Meriden, come along in his car behind them the runabout, pinning its victims beneath it, might have lain in the ravine for hours without discovery.

Car's Wild Plunge

Dr. Meeks was about two hundred feet behind the judge's car, when he saw the runabout suddenly veer from the road and plunge over the stone ledge of a retaining wall which flanks the highway at that point.

As it went over the man and woman were tossed headlong from the seat. A single scream and a crash told the one witness what had happened.

Dr. Meeks stopped his car and ran down the ravine and found that both Judge Andrews and Mrs. Neilson were fast under the wreckage. He could not lift the runabout and rushed for aid to the home of Richard Davis.

When the machine was rolled over, Mrs. Neilson was dead, and though Judge Andrews still was breathing and there was no mark on his body, he died from internal hemorrhage before he could be removed to the Davis home, whether the bodies were taken pending the arrival of the coroner.

Steering Gear Broken

Dr. Meeks said the runabout was not going more than twenty miles an hour. Examination indicated that the steering gear had broken. It also showed that Judge Andrews had shut off the power just before the fatal plunge. The roads were slippery from the recent rains.

The breaking of the tragic news to Mrs. Andrews at their home in Portland caused her nervous collapse. She was reported in a serious condition last night. The Andrews had lived in Portland for the last four years, with the exception of last winter, when they boarded in Brooklyn, where Mrs. Neilson was a trained nurse. Judge Andrews kept an office at Broadway and Fulton streets, New York, and made frequent business trips to Manhattan.

CHAS. S. HAMLIN

Makes an Attack on Tariff Framing

BATH, Me., Sept. 7.—At the democratic rally last night Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, who has been mentioned as one of the gubernatorial candidates in Massachusetts at the next election, exploited his idea of the Payne-Aldrich tariff. Said he:

"Comparing the wholesale prices which prevailed in 1897 with those of April, 1910, we find that the increase, according to the Dun and Gibson index numbers, is 80 per cent. In other words, the purchasing power of the 1897 dollar has been reduced to 60 cents."

"The Lodge report on the cost of living states that, while the increased production of gold has exerted a positive effect on the cost of living, by cheapening the standard of price and increasing credits, it is not contended that the increase in gold production is the dominant or even a principal cause of the rise of prices. This finding makes the conclusion of the commission that the tariff has not been a material factor in the advance of prices even more bewildering."

"The suggestion has recently been made by the president that duties should be revised by taking up one schedule at a time. When the democratic party attempted this in 1892, the republicans had only sneers for the 'Popgun' tariff bills, as they facetiously called them. No one would rejoice more than I if such a method could ultimately be adopted. There is certainly no reason, however, why the notoriously indefensible jokers and disguised increases in the Payne-Aldrich act, now daily coming to light, should not instantly be corrected by congress."

"Our protectionist friends will find, however, that many difficulties will arise when single schedules are taken up for revision from the fact that most of the protected schedules are so interwoven that it will be very difficult to revise any one without at the same time also revising others."

THRILLING RESCUE

MADE BY YOUNG MAN AT ATLANTIC CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 7.—The most thrilling rescue of the season was made before several thousand boardwalk promenaders, when Thomas Young, 19 years old, almost fully dressed, swam to Antonio Pasella, who was drowning off South Carolina avenue. The rescued man was unconscious when brought ashore, but was revived.

Young was seated in a pavilion with Connellman Cuthbert, just before dark, when he saw a moving object about 200 yards from the shore. Suddenly screams were heard above the pounding of the surf. Young vaulted over the rail, dashed to the water's edge and threw off his coat and shoes. Next he grabbed a can buoy left on the beach by life guards, and plunged into the breakers.

People swarmed from piers and hotels to watch the rescue. Young had got half way to the struggling musician when Pasella went under. Young plunged on while those on shore shouted encouragement. When Pasella bobbed to the surface, after sinking the second time, the lad was at his side. The drowning man threw his arms around his rescuer.

Young freed himself, after a struggle, and slipped the rope of the can buoy over the now exhausted bather, and towed him in.

Young got a great ovation.

GRAFT INQUIRY

Will Commence in New York Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—After months of preparation and delay the curtain will rise at last on the legislative graft hunt today. The committee appointed as the extraordinary session of the legislature for the purpose of investigating reports of corrupt practices in the legislature and the state departments, recommending reform legislation, will begin its public hearings in the aldermanic chamber in City hall.

It was definitely announced yesterday by M. Linn Bruce, chief counsel of the committee, that the disclosures made in the course of the Aldis trial before the senate and the Hotchkiss investigation of the fire insurance companies in connection with the credits that appear in certain ledgers of the torkerage house of Ellingwood & Cunningham for the benefit of a number of influential legislators from the Odell administrations will be investigated first.

This part of the inquiry is expected to engage the committee several days. G. Tracey Rogers, whose activities at Albany in connection with the traction lobby at the state capital were lightly touched upon both by Mr. Hotchkiss in his investigation and by counsel for Ben Conger during the Aldis trial will be the first witness to day.

He will be followed on the stand by Broker James W. Cunningham and the various legislators whose names were brought out during the Hotchkiss investigation as having accounts with his brokerage firm. Those already subpoenaed include Congressman George R. Malby, Ex-Senator Jotham P. Aldis, Ex-Senator Louis A. Goodsell and former Assemblyman Louis Bedell, both from Orange, Ex-Assemblyman James T. Rogers and former clerk of the assembly, Archie Baxter.

The books of the firm will be a conspicuous exhibit. They will be used to follow the Wall street trail, and the disclosures which appeared in the testimony at the Aldis trial will then be taken up. Later it is the purpose of the committee to investigate fire insurance and security insurance, as it is enabled to do by virtue of the powers granted it by the assembly.

It was announced yesterday that from now on the hearings will continue from week to week. The committee has planned to devote three days every week to public hearings and to give part of the remaining time to executive sessions in preparation for the future.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Clyde Fitch, the eminent playwright, after taking a look at his own comedy "Girls," stated that he liked it best of any play he had ever written; and unless his latest, which is soon to appear at the Opera House, is something of a world-beater, Lowell theatre-goers will agree with him that "Girls" is his best.

"Girls" was the attraction at the Opera House last evening and was presented by a company fully adequate in every detail to exacting demands. The audience was far too small for such an excellent production, but those who were there made up in enthusiasm for what was lacking in numbers, for "Girls" is one large budget of up-to-date, clean and refined fun, and it was served up in faultless manner by a well balanced company of artistic fun makers.

"Girls" there are three of them, three up-to-date self-supporting American girls, bachelor girls, who vow they will never marry and then all get hitched in the end after the funniest kind of courtships. The audience is not only led in to all their secrets but meets them right at home in their bachelor apartments, and even the hold men are permitted to watch them start to retell.

Of the three girls one is an out and out man hater and she destroys temporarily any susceptibilities that might beat in the hearts of her two room mates. The girls take an oath which is supposed to be binding, but at the first opportunity two of them forget it. The third finally becomes a victim to a man's plea, and that's the story in a nutshell, though the development of the transformation gives opportunity for a barrel of fun.

"Pamela Gordon," the man hater, certainly was one until the inevitable and irrepressible man hater in sight and she was most artistically depicted by Miss Katherine West, who was the first to break the oath, was excellently presented and charmingly without by Miss Kate Guyon. Violet Lansdowne, whose affections are finally bestowed upon a grumpy office boy, was most delightfully presented by Lorraine Marshall. Alice Pennoyer and Adele Alcott had the remaining feminine parts of importance and each contributed her share to the general enjoyment of the play. The male characters were equally well taken. Ralph J. Herbert in the role of Edgar W. Holt, the conqueror of Pamela, kept the audience on the broad grin and they were all with him in his commendable effort. George H. Sprague, Charles Dorgan and Frank Raymond were cast in congenial roles, while the minor parts were well taken and a weak spot in the cast would be impossible to find. The scenery and accessories were complete and a smooth and thoroughly pleasing performance was given.

"THE MIDNIGHT SONS"

Low Fields' mammoth spectacular musical production, which ran for 38 weeks at the Broadway theatre, New York, will be the Shubert's offering at the Opera House next Friday and Saturday when this marvellous play of music, vaudeville, comedy and drama, with its cast of over 100 people, special vaudeville company of dancers and singers, English pony ballet, Pullman train in motion, and realistic theatre scene with an audience of 500 people, makes its first visit to this city. This engagement, it is expected, will mark an epoch in local theatrics.

It will be recalled by those familiar with the doings of the theatre and more especially by many who regularly visit New York that "The Midnight Sons" ran at the Broadway theatre for nearly a year. The exact period was 36 weeks. After that the play visited Boston, Washington and Philadelphia, rounding out 56 consecutive weeks without the loss of a single performance.

Some idea of the enormity of the production may be gained from the fact that the weekly payroll of the "extra" people averages nearly $600. These people are used in the marvellous theatre scene which shows the interior of an opera house with its tiers of boxes, orchestra seats, balcony and gallery. Every member of the cast—and there are over 100 people—takes part in this scene, but it is necessary to "engage" outside "help" to properly give the illusion.

Another scene which never fails to win applause and invariably calls for entire house, eyes are in the proper condition for ever are in the proper condition for your work or studies. NOW IS THE TIME. We are accurate in the examination of eyes.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

There has been enough talk about that "feeble-minded bill." The city should pay the bill and stop quibbling. If the attorney general should proceed to collect the bill he would not look to the Charity Board.

PUNISHING CANNON DEMOCRATS

The Cannon democrats are falling by the wayside as fast as they go before the voters for reelection. That is the treatment they deserve. Reps. Livingstone and Howard, among the oldest members in congress in point of service, have been defeated in the Georgia primaries.

When a democrat betrays his party to the extent of supporting a man whose chief distinction has been the dexterity with which he turned down democratic measures, that democrat should be called to account.

The Cannon republicans, as well as the Cannon democrats, should be downed by all fair-minded people in the interest of fair play. Cannonism is in bad odor and the decent republicans who have downed this parliamentary autocrat deserve credit for upholding fair play and the dignity of the national house.

The time has come when the democratic party can accomplish little or nothing except it insists upon strict loyalty from all its elected officials in state and nation. The men who would sell out to Cannon are unworthy the name of democrats and deserve not only to be retired from office but to be driven out of the democratic party.

STOP THE SPREAD-EAGLE ORATORY

It would be a benefit rather than an injury to this country if the people were less talked at, if Col. Roosevelt and some of the other prominent spellbinders who are talking for effect would retire from the limelight and let the people alone.

The harangues that serve only the political purposes of those who deliver them are of no use to the country as a whole. We have widespread discontent, but this continual discussion of public affairs without any chance of its being followed up by action serves only to increase the discontent.

The people need relief from this storm of public controversy, involving Roosevelt, Taft, Ballinger, Sherman, Pinchot and a great many others. Besides, when a man like Roosevelt gets up and criticizes the decisions of the supreme court of the United States he is little short of inciting the multitude to riot and insurrection. Had some democrat assailed the supreme court as he has done, his name would be associated with the "undesirable citizens" whom Roosevelt himself has stigmatized as enemies of the country.

We presume these political tours must be tolerated until something breaks. According to Roosevelt's own admission his tour is paid for by the magazine of which he is editor. He is in an advertising scheme, the success of his magazine being the prime consideration, and for this he is stirring up the people of the country. His own personal object is probably to place himself in line for the presidential nomination in 1912. Other candidates may also have ulterior motives to serve but the country is the loser in the increased discontent and unrest resulting from such campaigns.

ROOSEVELT FAVORS WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

Among the very best reforms advocated by Colonel Roosevelt is the workmen's compensation act. This is not original with Mr. Roosevelt, but he embodies it among his policies just as if nobody had ever heard of it before. It is now part and parcel of his political creed, and if his advocacy helps along this much-needed reform the workmen of this country will have reason to rejoice.

The whole subject of the workmen's compensation act has been discussed repeatedly in this paper. We can go further and say that several years ago a Lowell man was a member of a committee to consider the relations existing between employer and employee. That committee recommended a workmen's compensation act, and drafted a measure that has since been the life-line in practically the same form, but failed of enactment.

It is quite probable that a workmen's compensation act will be among the reforms of the near future in this state. This method of compensating injured employees has been adopted with the most satisfactory results all over a score of countries. The United States, however, is behind in this matter, and it is quite likely that Massachusetts will take the lead in giving the country one of the best acts of this kind in existence. At the last session of the legislature the matter was discussed, and Speaker Walker declared that it was the most important subject that had been considered during the session.

The measure will come up again, and since it is thoroughly understood by employers, public service companies and labor organizations, it is likely that instead of formidable opposition there will be an overwhelming majority in favor of enacting the measure.

When a workman is injured in a factory it is not just or right that he should be compelled to sue for damages. As a rule the average workman is not well equipped to enter litigation with a big corporation. He usually gets the worst of the fight even where his claims are reasonable and just.

Where a workman is killed, it is still worse to have his family left to fight a legal battle with but slight prospects of success.

There should be a law to fix the compensation according to the extent of the injury. With this fact known in advance employers would know just what to expect when an accident would occur.

Insurance companies might have to rearrange their rates on liability insurance, but that should not be allowed to militate against the bill. The companies as a rule are capable of taking care of themselves, and will always insist upon receiving a sufficient amount for the protection afforded

SEEN AND HEARD

"I will make the corporations come to time," shouted Mr. Roosevelt in Toledo.
He made the Equitable Life come to time with a $50,000 campaign contribution.
He made the beef trust come to time with a big campaign contribution.
He made the Standard Oil come to time with another big campaign contribution.
He made E. H. Harriman, after a personal conference in the White house, come to time with $260,000.
These are only a few of the corporations and plutocratic interests Mr. Roosevelt made come to time in the 1904 campaign when he was a candidate for the presidency to succeed himself.
Turn on the light!—New York World.

I'D LIKE TO GO

It seems to me I'd like to go
Where bells don't ring, nor whistles blow,
Nor clocks don't strike, nor gongs don't sound,
And I'd have stillness all around—

Not real stillness, but just the trees' low whisperings, or the hum of bees, or brooks' faint babbling over the stones.
In strange, softly tangled tangles.

Or maybe a cricket or katydid.
Or the songs of birds in the edges hid,
Or just some such sweet sounds as these
To fill a tired heart with ease.

If 'twere't for sight and sound and smell,
I'd like the city pretty well;
But when it comes to getting rest,
I like the country lots the best.

Sometimes it seems to me I must
Just quit the city's din and dust
And get out where the sky is blue,
And say, now, how does it seem to you?

—Eugene Field

A wanderer from the empire of the crescent, desiring to shake off the allegiance of Turkey, appeared before Assistant Clerk Barney in the office of the Superior court at Taunton, last week, and made application for first papers. The applicant was a woman, and while she could not speak any amount of English, yet was most intelligent. She asked if she wanted to become a citizen of this country she raised her eyes and declared most fervently that she not only wanted the blessing of living here always, but she "was going to die here, yes." Whereupon she was served with the first papers and left supremely happy.

HOW HAPPY THE WORD 'CUTICURA' SOUNDS TO ME

For It Cured My Baby of Itching, Torturing Eczema. First Came when Between 3 and 4 Weeks Old. Used Everything Imaginable. 2 Cakes Soap and One Box Ointment Cured.

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her life would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then I began to hear of Cuticura and was nothing but sure, had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good so I stopped him coming."

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough. I can take my child anywhere and show her to her friends without a word. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years, she was never without the terrible eruption but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child. Mrs. H. L. Householder, 3004 Wilbur St., Baltimore, Md., May 10, 1910."

QUALITY

It's quality that counts; it's quality that makes heat; it's quality that makes it. It's quality that makes it possible the consumption of ninety per cent. of the combustible part of it, leaving a light, clean ash. Lastly, it's quality that lessens your fuel bills—you are not paying for dirt, refuse or unburnables. The Coals I handle, Lackawanna, Susquehanna, White Ash, Reading, Wilkes-Barre and Black Diamond deserve all the good things I can say for them. I can say for them that they are a ton will talk as loud as a carload.

country newspaper cannot well avoid treading on somebody's toes continually; he must expect to be censured often for unintentional failures; must expect hard work and little thanks; must expect to be called a coward because he does not "pitch into" everything that somebody thinks is wrong, and a fool if he speaks out too plainly on public evils; he must expect to grind other people's axes—and turn the grindstone himself. JUST A TRADE CIRCULAR

(Johnstown Democrat.) We are indebted to a local jobber for an interesting and instructive trade circular issued by a New York importing house. It is a gold-blinded commercial document and utterly unconscious of the dynamite it contains. It is merely a price current, to be exact. All quotations in it are subject to the fluctuations of the market, but at the end of the circular we find that the following deductions (on account of the tariff) are to be made from all goods sent on bond to Canada:

Cornmeal, per lb. 2 c
Dates, per lb. 1 c
Almonds (in shell) per lb. 4 c
Eggs, per lb. 3 c
Walnuts, per lb. 3 c
Flax, per lb. 2 1/2 c
Peanuts per lb. 1 c

So there you have a little educational treatise on the tariff. It shows that the American consumer—the woman who does the buying—must pay all the way from a cent to four cents a pound more for such delicacies as these listed above as her Canadian sister. Thus the currants for which the American dealer pays 74 cents are sold to the Canadian dealer for 34; the almonds for which the American dealer must pay 11 cents go to the Canadian for 11 cents; the walnuts for which the American pays 32 1/2 the Canadian buys for 10 1/2, and so through the list.

These business circulars are sometimes more illuminating than they seem. Johnstown Democrat.

The Great

LOCKHART MILL-END SALE

Opens Friday at 9 a. m.

We want the people of Lowell and vicinity to read the prices we will quote TOMORROW on new goods of dependable character.

Perhaps you are not aware that extensive alterations are going on in our store—Progress must have its way—we are going to take on 4000 extra feet of selling space. Breaking through the walls into our new annex necessitated taking two doctor's offices, a tailor's, a dressmaker's rooms and a large hall, in all seven large rooms—Brickmasons, carpenters, plumbers, electricians, etc., are in our way.

So much merchandise is coming in for this Mill End Sale—and will continue to arrive daily from now on—that we haven't room to hold it as we ordinarily would do—we must get rid of it as fast as it arrives—it will be thrown on the counters and sold at decided price reductions during this sale.

Under our present congested conditions we are forced to unload. We are going to have more room for our great Cloak and Suit departments and we are going to open up a new Millinery department—the best of its kind in the city.

Do you wonder we've grown when you take into consideration that we give our patrons merchandise of a substantial quality at a lower price than that asked by others?

LYNN ALDERMEN

To Discharge Police Officer Who Was Candidate for Mayor

LYNN, Sept. 7.—The Lynn aldermanic committee on police last evening recommended that Reserve Officer Eben Sears, Jr. be discharged from the force, the committee having decided that he is guilty of charges of insubordination and of creating a disturbance in the office of the deputy chief of police. Sears has asked for a hearing before the full board, and this will be granted him Monday evening. Sears was a candidate for mayor of Lynn last year and announced that he is to be a candidate for that office this fall. He was formerly in charge of the liquor squad, and attracted attention by his success in catching illegal liquor dealers. He has many friends throughout the city and is not without enemies. The present trouble of Sears grew out of an affair in which his wife was involved. Mrs. Sears was recently found guilty of an assault on Mrs. Mary Disbrow. The altercation between the women arose from Mrs. Sears' assertion that her husband had been giving too much attention to Mrs. Disbrow. Word that the women were in collision reached Capt. William Rowe at police headquarters and the captain sent Patrolman Sader to the scene. Mrs. Sears was not arrested, but voluntarily accompanied the officer to the captain's office. While Mrs. Sears was telling her version of the affair to the captain, Reserve Officer Sears entered the room and, asserting that he had witnessed the assault, ordered Capt. Rowe to place Mrs. Sears under arrest. Thereupon, it is alleged, Sears grabbed his wife by the arm, explaining: "I place you under arrest for assault." Capt. Rowe seized Sears by the arm and ordered him to release his hold on Mrs. Sears. The superior officer then told Mrs. Sears to leave the station and told Patrolman Sader to notify Mrs. Disbrow that she could make a complaint to the court against Mrs. Sears if she cared to do so. The captain also ordered Sears from the room. Later, it is charged, Sears entered Capt. Rowe's presence and shouted at him: "I shall prefer charges against you for neglect of duty."

Chief Inspectors, on information from Capt. Rowe, preferred charges against Sears, and it was on these charges that the committee last evening reported to the board.

Mrs. Sears was brought before Judge Lummus on complaint of Mrs. Disbrow, and found guilty of assault. Her case was placed on file.

Sears' friends last evening said he

They had an audience with the pope on Aug. 8 and later with Cardinal Merry del Val, secretary of state. Then they started for the Oberammergau "Passion Play." They will embark for home at Queenstown Sept. 18 on board the Lusitania.

Next to his annual pilgrimage Mr. McGrane is best known in his services to the Catholic church through his gift of the property and building at Hawthorne, this state, which is now Christopher Columbus College. It is a training school for Italian young men who are preparing for the priesthood.

STAMPING

Distribution of Nomination Papers

Has Started

And With It the Gossip of What's Going to Happen in State Politics—Some Interesting Contests to be Decided—Caucuses Fall on September 27

Labor Day is over and now for politics. The caucuses are called for September 27th but up to today there has been little political talk.

Today, however, appears to be the opening day of the political season for politics was the principal topic of discussion down town this morning.

The republicans have opened their headquarters at the corner of Central and Market streets, but Secretary Gow and informed the writer this morning that the opening of the season has been tardy as the nomination papers did not arrive until yesterday.

The democrats opened their headquarters in the Rockingham building this morning with Sec. Owen Monahan in charge. This year the committee has secured the entire floor and has installed furniture, stationery, etc.

The time for filing nomination papers closes on September 15th.

The State Delegations

The democrats are particularly interested in the state convention this year owing to the uncertainty as to the identity of the man who will lead the democratic forces as the candidate for the governor. In years gone by, credentials to the democratic state convention have gone begging, but this year there is a big demand for a place on the delegation from all the wards.

The republicans this year are not particularly interested in the state convention as there is no contest for the head of the ticket. But the republicans have a convention in which all want to get, and that is the district attorney election. The last one has gone down in history without a precedent, the contest which resulted in the election of District Attorney John J. Higgins, taking a day and a night. No district attorney in Middlesex county has ever had as much hard work as had Mr. Higgins, for he had to relate about all the murders in the state within the past two years have come within his jurisdiction. Now comes Max Waldo Cohen, a Cambridge lawyer and an anti-county ring man who is an avowed candidate against Mr. Higgins and who wants to meet him on the stump, and another lively contest is promised. Mr. Cohen once informed the writer that in the event of Mr. Higgins running again, he would withdraw, but that was long ago. Now the information comes from the lower end of the county that Mr. Cohen is in the contest.

The Congressional Contests

It was reported around town and at City hall this morning that Hon. James B. Casey will be a candidate for congress against Col. James H. Carmichael in the democratic primaries. Col. Carmichael has been in the field for some time but as yet Mr. Casey has not given a decided answer though friends of his this morning felt confident that he would be a candidate. On the republican end Col. Ames while fighting strenuously for the position of United States senator expects that a loyal constituency will render him the nomination for congress without any question. The col. figures that if he can't have one position he will be satisfied with the other. The political spectacle of one man running for congress and United States senator at the same time is probably a new record for political activity.

The Senatorial Districts

In the country senatorial district which includes wards five and nine of Lowell and most of the remainder of the universe, the Ames and Lodge forces are to have a lively battle, the Ames people attempting to unseat the present incumbent, Senator Bennett, who is a strong Lodge man. The Ames candidate in this district is James W. Kilham of Reading and the Ames supporters sincerely hope that he will. Alderman Owen Brennan may be the democratic candidate.

In the eighth Middlesex district ex-Rep. Henry W. Draper and Hon. Fisher H. Pearson are to be the democratic candidates. Senator Hubbard is seeking a fourth term and he is opposed by ex-Rep. Charles F. Varnum and Amos P. Best, the well known milk man. Mr. Best is new to the field as a candidate never having held office before.

The Representative Field

The representative field in most districts has a sufficient number of candidates to make matters interesting. In the 14th district Rep. Stevens will get the nomination unopposed while John J. Mahoney in all probability will be re-nominated by the democrats. Town Clerk Brennan of Dracut was prominently mentioned as a candidate but he has not consented to run. Ward one will present no candidate against Rep. Stevens according to an apportionment which gives Dracut the nomination this year.

In the 15th district a red hot three cornered fight is on though not a policy one for in this district which includes ward two, alone, the candidates work by house to house canvasses rather than through rallies and public demonstrations. The candidates are Rep. Edward Keegan, who is seeking a second term; Dennis Murphy, who was a candidate last year, running well, and Councilman Gookin. All three have large followings and it is a good bet that they will get out a phenomenal vote on caucus day. In this district a nomination means an election.

In the 16th district, which includes wards four and five, a nomination means an election, and by the withdrawal of Rep. Martin Conley, five active candidates have jumped in and are hustling. The five are Eugene Toumey of the school board, ex-Overser of the Poor Jeremiah McGilnehy, ex-Councilman Michael J. Markham, ex-Councilman John J. O'Connell and ex-Rep. Timothy Murphy.

The 17th district, which includes wards three, six and seven, and which is ranked as a doubtful district, has Reps. Erson R. Barlow and George Marchand seeking re-election, while Councilman Killpatrick of ward three and Councilman Howe of ward seven are said to be in the contest. This is the district in which the Lodge forces attempted to have a democrat run as their candidate. Stephen J. Monahan, who ran so well last year, will be a democratic candidate again and his friends expect to land him this time.

Rep. Charles T. Killpatrick seeks a renomination, which means an election, in the 18th district, ward eight, and Joseph Craig is mentioned as his opponent. In the 19th district Rep. Cuff will receive the renomination without a contest and looks like a winner again. Lawyer Marble is mentioned as his republican opponent, but as the result of the fine record made by Rep. Cuff this year he will have no difficulty in obtaining strong republican support along with the entire strength of his party.

PRIZE OF $20,000

American Aviator is the First to Try For It

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Weymann, the American aviator, started just before noon today in an attempt to win the special Michelin prize of $20,000 offered for the first aviator, who, with a passenger, flies in six hours from Paris to the top of Puy-de-Dome after circling the steeple of the cathedral at Clermont-Ferrand.

The conditions of the prize demand a feat considered the most difficult yet cut out for the aviators. When Al. Michelin offered the prize, which by the way must not be confounded with the Michelin aviation trophy offered for the longest annual flight in an enclosure, it was thought by some that it was a joke. However, the premium stood and subsequently Louis Paulhan announced that he would undertake the journey.

To Weymann goes the honor of the first try. He ascended at Rue at 11:45 o'clock this morning and 11:58 officially crossed the starting line above St. Cloud. He used a Farman biplane and carried a passenger as required. The rules provide that the aviator may start anywhere in the departments of the Seine Atois. He must first turn a complete circle around the Arc de Triomphe in Paris, and arriving at Clermont-Ferrand, he must circle the spires of the cathedral and make a landing on the summit of the Puy-de-Dome.

The trip must be made with two persons in the machine and within six hours. The Puy-de-Dome is a mountain 4800 feet high near Clermont-Ferrand. The distance to be covered is 217 miles "as the crow flies."

WILL FIGHT CASE

Milkman Was Arraigned in Police Court Today

The case of Amos P. Best, a local milkman, charged with violation of the milk law—adding water to milk—was heard before Judge Samuel P. Hadley in police court this morning, and it developed into one of the most important cases which have been brought to the attention of the court for years.

Both sides offered expert testimony, lawyers who have a good knowledge of the milk laws in particular were in the case and rather sensational testimony was offered, the climax being reached when the government contended that the samples given the defendant by the inspector of the state board of health were not those which were produced in court, but that the latter were substitutes.

Before deciding the case it was agreed that another witness be summoned and that the sealing wax on the bottles presented in court by the defendant as well as those shown by the government be analyzed and a report made.

The case will be resumed next Monday morning.

James F. Owens appeared for the defendant and the government's case was presented by William H. Wilson.

Inspector McCarthy Called

The first witness for the government was Daniel A. McCarthy, inspector of milk and drugs for the state board of health. He testified that on July 12th he took samples from a wagon driven by Mr. Best. Witness did not know the name of the street where he took the samples, not being acquainted with the various streets in this city. He took two samples, one from a quart jar and the other from a pint jar. The former sample being numbered 12,553 and the latter 12,554. Mr. McCarthy testified that he gave the defendant two samples and kept two himself. Both samples were sealed, the seal of the state board of health being used.

Witness later delivered the samples to Herman C. Lythgoe, state analyst of the board.

On cross examination the inspector testified that he shook the milk in the jars before taking the samples.

Said Water Was Added

Herman C. Lythgoe, state analyst, testified to receiving the samples and made three tests. He said the standard of solids in milk is 12.15 and his analyses showed that the sample numbered 12,554, which was taken from the pint jar, contained 11.72 per cent total solids, 4.15 fats, 7.57 solids, not fat. Further tests showed that the specific gravity was 1.027 per cent, refraction of milk serum 35.7, and determination of ash of milk serum 5.67.

Continuing, witness said: "I determined that water was added to the milk owing to the low gravity. The amount of water added was between 12 and 14 per cent. The other sample (that taken from the quart jar) was not watered and was above the legal standard."

On cross examination by Mr. Owens, Mr. Lythgoe said that the standard of fats required is 4.15 per cent, while his analysis of the sample showed but 3.56 per cent and the standard of solids is 12.15 and but 11.72 showed. He also added that the analysis of the ash showed that the milk had been watered.

"Milk Was Not Adulterated"

Amos P. Best, the defendant, said Mr. McCarthy stopped him in Charles street on the date in question and took two samples and gave him two. He said he got his milk from various places and mixed the different milks in a large tank and then filled the receptacles.

"Did you make any attempt to have the samples turned over to you by the inspector analyzed?" asked Mr. Owens. "Yes, I did when I received a notice from the state," answered Mr. Best. "Who did you go to to have them analyzed?"

"I went to Ayer's and saw a Mr. Flynn, inter-telephoned to the Textile school and found that none of the chemists were there, also tried Principal Irish of the High school but was unable to locate him."

"Did you try anybody else?" "Yes, Prof. Prescott of Massachusetts Institute of Technology."

"Did you try Mr. Master?" "No, sir."

Witness said he sent the samples to Mr. Prescott. He denied that he had added any water to the milk and said that both samples had been taken out of the same tank. He added that when he learned that of the two samples, taken out of the same tank, one was found to be all right and the other it was claimed to be below the standard required by law, his suspicions were aroused, and that was what led to his having been analyzed.

On cross examination by Mr. Wilson, witness said that Walter Hartwell took the samples to Prof. Prescott in Boston.

Expert Testimony

Prof. Samuel C. Prescott, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who testified that he is a chemist, analyst and bacteriologist and had analyzed 50,000 samples of various kinds, said he examined the sample in question on August 26, the milk at that time being sour. The bottles, he said, were sealed and were apparently in the same condition they were when turned over to the defendant by the inspector. Witness also recognized the seal of the state board of health on the bottles.

He made a triplicate analysis of the sample in question which showed 12.19, 12.16 and 12.13 per cent solids, an average of 12.16 per cent. The standard fat, he said, is 3.55 and he found approximately 3.3, 3.9 and 3.8 per cent. Witness said he found that the sample conformed with the law.

His determination of complete ash was .63 and added that the ash in milk varies owing to the breed of the cow and richness of the milk.

Prof. Prescott upon being questioned said that as a result of his analyses he would say that the milk had not been adulterated.

Bottles Produced

At this point the samples alleged to have been given Mr. Best and others alleged to be similar to those used by the state board were produced and five or ten minutes was taken in scrutinizing the bottles, the seals, etc.

Resuming his testimony Prof. Prescott said that when he received the samples they bore the state seals and were numbered, the numbers on the labels being written with a hard pencil. He, however, did not preserve the labels.

Bottles Were Substituted

Inspector McCarthy was recalled and stated that the seals on the bottles presented in court by the defendant were not the seals which he placed on the bottles. He said that during his experience with sealing wax he has made a careful study of the various kinds and during the past two years had imported the wax, he claimed that the wax on the bottles offered in court by the defense was a domestic wax.

Questioned, witness said that the seal was kept in his possession and made a sharp impression in the wax. He then took up one of the bottles which the defense claimed contained a sample of milk and stated that the letter "T" was rather faint.

Continuing, he said: "My inference is that my stamp has been duplicated. The heat would not have any effect on the color of the wax or impression."

Mr. Best Recalled

Mr. Best upon being recalled and questioned said that he would take his oath that the wax on the corks of the bottles in court was that put on by Mr. McCarthy.

At this point the court decided that the case was of so much importance that it would be well to continue it in order to locate Mr. Hartwell, who it is stated took the samples to Boston, and also to analyze the wax.

The case will be resumed Monday morning.

Mr. Best says that he is determined to fight the matter to the limit and feels that he will be exonerated.

FAMOUS ARTIST DEAD

WATER STREETS

On Monday and Saturday Evenings Suggested

The board of trade, through Mr. Garrett of the executive committee and Secretary Murphy, has requested Mayor Meahan to have the business streets wet down on Monday and Saturday nights for the benefit of the business men who, keeping their doors open on these evenings, complain of the dust. This is done in Boston, Lawrence and other cities. Messrs. Garrett and Murphy will hold a conference with Mayor Meahan at an early date relative to the matter.

MADE TOUR OF ALASKA

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 7.—Attorney General Wickersham and Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, arrived here last night aboard the United States fisheries steamer Albatross after a six weeks' tour of Alaska. A reception in honor of the visiting cabinet members will be given tomorrow evening at the Arctic club. Secretary of the Interior Ballinger will be present.

MEXICAN WAR VETERANS

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—It now becomes my sacred duty to adjourn the National Association of Mexican War Veterans to meet again at that beautiful shore. I ask you to rise and adjourn this national association forever. With these words Mr. Moore Murdoch, secretary of the association, disbanded it at the close of the annual convention yesterday. The 28 survivors were too old, it was felt, to keep the organization together. None of the delegates present was under 70 years old.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends who extended sympathy and sent such beautiful floral tributes in their bereavement, and especially to the employees and officer of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. (Signed) Mrs. Frederick Bassett, Thomas J. Savers, John T. Savers.

3000 CHILDREN

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE FOR BOYS ON MERRIMACK STREET

Attend French Parochial Schools Opened Today

Nearly three thousand children, whose ages ranged from five to fifteen years, wended their ways to the parochial schools of the French-American denomination yesterday. At St. Joseph's college 715 were registered, 1428 made their way to the school in Moody street which is under the supervision of the Grey Nuns of the Cross, the St. Louis parochial school showed an attendance of 514 children and at South Lowell, St. Mary's school, 70 pupils reported.

While the number which reported yesterday was rather large it will be increased very materially during the week for many of the children are not sent to school until the opening of the public schools.

St. Joseph's college opened with a new director, Rev. Bro. Leon Marchel, who comes from La Malbaie, Quebec, where for the past two years he has been directing the Marist school.

The Grey Nuns of the Cross have the greatest number of pupils in charge, 1435 reporting. Of this number, 916 girls registered at St. Joseph's convent, 185 small boys at the kindergarten, and 237 boys and girls at the Notre-Dame de Lourdes school.

Miss Eva Renaud is a new teacher at the school.

At St. Joseph's convent, Miss Dorimene Jamin, who graduated last June from the convent of Conitook, Que., has been added to the teaching corps.

Seventy-six pupils were registered at St. Mary's school. Miss Emma Crepeau again has charge, with her sister, Miss Antoinette Crepeau, as assistant.

At St. Louis' school, 614 pupils reported. The teaching corps consists of 12 sisters of the Assumption.

The Pawtucketville school, now being built for the smaller boys and girls of that section, is not quite ready for occupancy.

BOARD OF TRADE HEADQUARTERS

The directors of the board of trade will resume their monthly meetings on September 15th when they will make arrangements for the dedication of their new rooms on the top floor of the Central building diagonally across the corridor from their present limited quarters. The new quarters are light and airy and the assembly hall will hold 150 comfortably.

BANK EXAMINERS TRANSFERRED

AUTUMN WARNING TO MARINERS.

Captain Heartless of the good ship Cynicus reports, latitude 999 north, longitude 4-11-44, that he was chased by a suspicious craft with no side lights and that he barely escaped capture.

BAR TO TEMPTATION.

The Elder: "Will yo' please to remove dat hencoop what yo' done got on yo' head so dat I can observe de preacher?"
Hencoop, Mr. Spooner! If dat strikes yo' as being a hencoop den I sartainly will remove it, for wid yo' in de vicinity dey isn't a bird safe what's on it."

UNFORTUNATE.

"Well, how did you get on with the boss when you asked for your raise?"
"Splendidly at first, but just as I was going to mention it I drew out my handkerchief and two champagne corks fell out."

IN DOUBT.

Employer—And was your last master satisfied with you?
New Hand—Well, he said he was 'raged so I can pull out one srat and very pleased when I left.

NO CHANCE FOR CROWS.

HIS THEORY.
Perrywogger—I wonder why de jacks come to be called such a fool?
Wanday Watson—I reckon it wuz because he wuz de foist animal what learned to walk.

"Indeed! I may come here as much as I please? Then there is an aesthetic feeling even in this primitive community."
"Waal, I dunno 'bout that, but ez I was goin' to say, what between that thing thar an' you hyar, thar ain't ban a crow in the patch sence yo started the plecter."

DOMESTIC GAS SAVER.
"Miss Nannie is such a bright girl."
"Yes. Her mother says you never have a light in the parlor when you and Nannie are there."

UNFEELING.
"I had such an exciting time!" said Doodle. "I was at my wits' ends."
"Dear me," replied Miss Cayenne, "what a short journey!"

DIED IN TIME.

"One Toe, the biggest and fiercest wolf in Wyoming, has been killed."
"Just as well. He wouldn't have lived long after Colonel Roosevelt got on the trail."

A BIT AMBIGUOUS.

Mrs. Jones—What did the parson say when you sent him the brandied peaches?
Mrs. Gilles—He said he didn't care so much for the peaches as he did for the spirit in which they were sent.

CONVINCING.

"This palpitating age calls for men who have convictions," declared the orator in the park. "Where, I ask, shall we find them?"
"In prison!" called out a man in the crowd.

FIXED TO HOLD HIM.

"Miss Parthenia, aren't you afraid of finding a man under your bed?"
"No? No, indeed! I've got it ar—"
New Hand—Well, he said he was 'raged so I can pull out one srat and let the whole thing down on him."

THE MODERN GIRL.
Girl Baby—Gee whiz! Twelve pounds! Well, that's awful. I shall have to go on a diet and stop drinking with my meals.

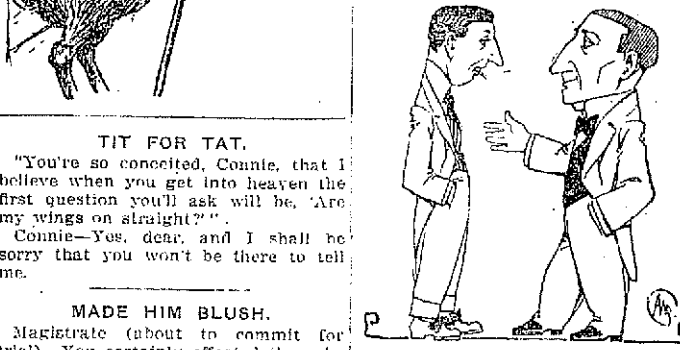

SHE KNEW HIM.
"Your husband has the faith to move a mountain," said the visiting minister.
"Booh!" replied the wife. "He hasn't enough faith to get out of bed of a cold morning and fetch in the milk."

"Not for me, dad. Why, they use automobiles out there to catch horse thieves."

TRICK IN THE UPLIFT.

"I can't understand this rise in the price of beet."
"Guess the magician who raised the table for Palladio is on the job."

THE DIFFERENCE.

New Housemaid—Who was that elegant looking young lady, cook, that I met coming in?
Cook—That was my sister; been to call on me.
N. H.—And that stylish lady in blue silk?
C.—The landlady.
N. H.—Then who was the plain woman in black?
C.—The mistress.

WHERE IT STARTED.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

Rufe Garden—Manager, you'll have to get some one to take my place. In the first act I have to kiss the leading lady six times."
"Well, what of that?"
"She's my wife."

AT THE SEASHORE.

Bella—Are you engaged to any of the men here?
Stella—Of course not.
"And you have been here a week?"
"Don't worry about me. I'm here to rest."

DESPERATE.

"Miss Flimsy is going to the seashore."
"I know. She is determined to get a pop this summer if she has to stand at the soda fountain all day."

ON FISHING TRIP "JOE" FOX DEAD

The Famous Polo Star Passed Away

The many friends of Joseph P. Fox, the well known polo player and former player, will be deeply pained to hear of his death which took place yesterday at his home, 311 Adelphi street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The deceased was a Lowell boy, but left here to go on the western circuit playing polo. When the polo craze reached Lowell he returned and played goal tend for the Lowell team.

THE LATE JOSEPH P. FOX

and enjoyed the reputation of being the star goal tend of the country. While a member of the Lowell team he met with an accident in a game which resulted in the loss of the sight of one eye while he narrowly escaped death from blood poisoning. Later he successfully managed the Lowell team and when the game went west he located in that section. For the past few years he has been identified with the management of skating rinks and polo teams in many states.

Mr. Fox is survived by his wife, Sadie, of Brooklyn, N. Y., his mother, Mrs. Ellen Fox of Lowell, two brothers, John and Thomas, both of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Nellie White and Mrs. Henry E. Bird of this city and Miss Annie Fox of New York. The body will be brought to this city for burial by Undertakers Molloy & Sons.

Mrs. Fox, mother of the deceased, was removed to the Lowell General Hospital yesterday morning. Her condition is reported critical.

THE MILK RATES

Whitings Announce Reduction in Them

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Close on the heels of the disclosures made yesterday, that Governor Draper had practically locked horns with the railroad officials over the new milk transportation rate, the Whiting people throw a bombshell of their own into the field by a circular announcing that hereafter they will only consider Massachusetts milk which is delivered on their platform at Boston and that they believed they would be able to assure the milk producers that this would not mean a reduction of more than a cent and a quarter per can from the winter rate agreed on at the June conference.

It appears that not only is the governor well into it, but even the lieutenant governor has taken a hand, and Senator Lodge has also quickly been trying to urge efforts for a reduction of rates or a return of conditions more agreeable to the farmer.

Just at this time, with elections almost within touching distance, a warning that even a reduction of a cent and a quarter a can is likely to be made is certain to set the producers by the ears.

The Whiting company, in its special circular to the producers, sets the responsibility for this on the Saunders act.

Yesterday, at Worcester, Speaker Walker added to the discussion on the subject when he said: "The transportation problem is of the essence of the milk problem. The railroads must appreciate their responsibility. Their rates must be so made as to encourage and not discourage the production of milk and not the rate of the market. The rates must be so fixed as not to discriminate against Massachusetts milk. To this end the public authorities and the railroads must co-operate."

It is fully for health authorities to set up and maintain a system of inspection here and then permit milk in competition with our milk to come over the border from uninspected farms, where farmers are permitted to produce milk under cheaper conditions. This does not protect our consumers and tends to drive the milk producing business out of the state. This was our aim and will not permit."

"An aggravating factor in the milk problem is the large milk contractor. I am convinced that the milk supply of a great city like Boston can be successfully handled only on a large scale and in a wholesale way. The state must so act as to prevent monopoly and to encourage competition—competition in buying and competition in selling. The former to protect the producer and the latter to protect the consumer."

SENT TO JAIL

MAN'S SILENCE RESULTED IN HIS BEING PUNISHED

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Because Robert O'Rourke of New Haven was too proud to let his people know of his predicament he has served over a month of a six months' sentence in the penitentiary, and it was by the merest chance that he did not serve the whole six months. About six weeks ago O'Rourke left for New York, where he was to take up new and more lucrative employment.

In some way, which was not explained, he landed in Mamaroneck, and was later arrested and charged with vagrancy. O'Rourke held silence when he was charged with vagrancy, although he told who he was and where his home was. He would have been instantly discharged, but he did not want his people to know he had been arrested.

After he had been sent to the penitentiary, and when they did not hear from him, his people became alarmed and search was instituted. Judge Platt at White Plains was told yesterday that O'Rourke was not a vagrant, but a respectable man, with a family. The judge immediately ordered O'Rourke's discharge.

MAKE YOUR MONEY RAIN

MORE THAN 4 PER CENT

I have a few shares of stock of the United Butchers' Supply Corporation, incorporated under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and doing a daily cash business. I believe this stock will pay dividends of more than 10 per cent on every dollar you invest in it. The corporation owns and controls valuable patents. The reason it is placing this stock on the market is to increase the factory space and present capacity. The above is practically a monopoly with no competition.

In a very short while this stock should be worth a great deal more than its par value. It is now selling at $10 per share.

This is not a risk. It is a sure thing. This business has existed four years and each day has brought a larger increase in its present capacity. Full information and circular from EDWARD MORRISON, Attorney, 291 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.

Beverly Kitchen Bars to be Closed
Wife is in a Dangerous Condition

BEVERLY, Sept. 7.—The board of aldermen passed an order last evening instructing the police of the city to enforce both the liquor law and the law against automobile speeding, after an animated discussion in the board, in which it was charged that the police have been for some time past notably indifferent to both these laws.

It was the first meeting of the board since the summer vacation, and took place in the new chamber in city hall. Alderman McPherson charged that liquor is being sold openly in kitchen barrooms and so-called club rooms, and that thirty people come here all the way from the dry city of Salem and get all the liquor they want to take home with them.

Alderman Loring scored the police for neglect to prosecute auto speeders, who, he declared, are not molested, though complaints are constant both from residents of the city and summer sojourners along the north shore.

Alderman Walter Robertson of the committee on police said that the facts just disclosed should have been communicated to his committee before, and that the police would have been instructed to get a move on.

Alderman Bell introduced the order calling on the police to put a stop to the sale of liquor and to speeding.

FRANKLIN LANE

SAYS THE AMERICAN RAILROAD IS SUPREME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—"I return from the international railway conference at Bern (Switzerland) with much greater enthusiasm over the American railroads as agencies of transportation than I ever had before."

This statement was made yesterday by Franklin K. Lane, a member of the interstate commerce commission, who was one of the representatives of the United States to the international railway conference.

"The conference established beyond question, I think, the supremacy of the American railroad from the standpoint of efficiency," continued Mr. Lane.

"Europe is just as much distressed over the high cost of living as is the United States, and I think that in the near future we shall have an international regulation of money systems."

"One thing we have got to do in this country that Europe is far ahead of us on is in providing pensions for our civil employees."

"Europeans regard our methods as barbarous and say frankly that they have outgrown them by 50 years."

"Another thing in which we are far behind Europe is in the matter of employers' liability. Every man in England has to pay damages for an injury that is suffered by his employee. The employers generally insure against this damage."

A NORTH JETTY

AT THE MOUTH OF THE COLUMBIA RIVER

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 7.—The next session of congress will be asked to set aside funds for the construction of a north jetty at the mouth of the Columbia river to supplement the work of the south jetty that is now almost completed. The Oregon delegation will be backed by the recommendations of the chief of army engineers and the secretary of war, so it is expected authority to commence work will be granted without difficulty.

The proposed breakwater will cost in the neighborhood of $1,255,000, and it is expected to place the work on the continuing contract basis that will assure its completion without halting the improvement.

The single jetty now about completed is not sufficient for deepening the canal into the Columbia river to the required depth of 40 feet. A careful measurement of the water on the bar at the mouth of the river, both before and since the jetty improvement was started, shows a noticeable gain in depth, which now reaches to about 30 feet.

The south jetty, by confining the river current and the flow of the tides into and out of the river, has caused the cutting away of the sands to a considerable extent. When the north jetty is built, it will end at a point about two miles north of the extreme point of the south jetty. This will narrow the flow of the river current and the tides at that point and it is believed by the engineers that the erosion of the river bottom will bring about a depth of at least 40 feet at low tide.

The south jetty has been built over six miles out to sea from the ocean shore at the mouth of the Columbia river. It is expected to extend it half a mile farther this summer, when it will be complete.

NIGHT EDITION
GRAHAME-WHITETo Try Flight to Boston Light
This Afternoon

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Blue skies greeted the aviators at the Boston-Harvard aero meet today and the sun was quickly burning up the fog and haze that has hung over the field at Attleboro during the four days of damp weather since the opening of the meet last Saturday. The weather forecast for the day predicted a fair day today and the officials of the meet announced that with the closing of the fog in the harbor the professional aviators would attempt the flight to Boston Light and return for the Globe $10,000 prize.

The forenoon hours of the meet today were occupied by the amateur aviators. William N. Hilliard made a short flight in the Burgess-Curtiss biplane this morning, but only rose above the ground a few feet. Upon the request of navy officials it was announced that today localities would be dropped from a height of 1800 feet if conditions permitted.

In the flight to the Light a government torpedo boat will follow every aviator who goes out over the harbor. In preparation for his flight to Boston Light in an attempt to capture the $10,000 prize, Claude Grahame-White in a Farman biplane tried out his engines in a sky dash over Dorchester bay. After hovering over the bay for a few moments the aviator returned, alighting in front of the grand stand. Manager McDonald of the Grahame-White forces announced that the flight would try for the Boston Light prize this afternoon if the wind did not exceed 10 miles an hour. At 2 p. m. the wind velocity was eight miles an hour while at Boston Light the wind had a velocity of seven miles.

It was also announced that Glenn H. Curtiss would attempt to break the speed record during the afternoon. The Bee triplane, which was damaged earlier in the week, was trundled out of the hangars this afternoon in preparation for a flight.

The first professional event of the day was the flight of Glenn H. Curtiss three times about the miles and a quarter course in an attempt for the speed record. Mr. Curtiss' time was six minutes, 29 1/2 seconds. On Monday Grahame-White covered the same course in six minutes and one second.

In a trial at accuracy in stopping, Grahame-White in his Farman biplane was unsuccessful in stopping his engine and bringing his machine to a dead stop within a circle 200 feet in diameter. He did, however, establish the first mark in this event.

SUES HER HUSBAND FOR $10,000
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The complaint in a suit brought by Mrs. Lillian Patterson Dale to recover $5000 worth of jewelry and $5000 damages from her husband, Francis C. Dale, a real estate broker of 43 Exchange place, was filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday. Mrs. Dale is the daughter of Dr. Frank N. Patterson of 51 West Fifth street. She was married in January, 1909.

She alleges that between July 16 and 29 last her husband took by force the $5000 worth of jewelry which she had owned before her marriage. She asks for $5000 in cash if her husband can't restore the jewelry and for $5000 damages in addition. The jewels are a topaz brooch surrounded with diamonds and pearls, a pair of solid gold cufflinks, a cameo stud and a pair of dagger pins set with diamonds, sapphires and rubies. The Dales have been living at 145 West Seventy-sixth street.

CANADA HOISTS HER FLAG
DEVONPORT, Sept. 7.—The cruiser Globe, which was purchased by the Canadian government for $1,075,000, has been commissioned for service with the Canadian navy.

She will sail for Halifax in October.

FINANCIAL MATTERS DISCUSSED
MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 7.—The sessions of the St. Jean the Baptist societies were today devoted to the discussion of the financial matters of the association and routine matters of a like character. The annual nomination and election of officers will take place tonight.

Thomas J. Enright, Esq., has returned from his camp at Willow Dale where he and his family have been for the summer and has taken up his city residence on Fletcher street.

BELVIDERE BOYS

TO ENTER HOLY ANGELS COLLEGE AT BUFFALO

Masters William O'Connell of Everett street, and John Egan and James McCarthy of Pleasant street left yesterday afternoon for Buffalo, where they will enter Holy Angels college to be trained under the direction of the Oblate Fathers. The boys were given a great send-off by their friends, and made the trip to Boston accompanied by Rev. E. P. Sullivan, O. M. I., and one of the companions, Lucien Brunelle, in an auto. They were the guests of Fr. Sullivan at one of the Boston hotels and enjoyed a fine dinner before boarding the train for Buffalo. All three boys are members of the O. M. I. Cadets.

THE MEANEY MATCH

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 7.—The Meaney match at 500 yards for the General E. P. Meaney trophy was shot and finished today. The five leading contestants were Captain Casey, Connecticut, fifty; Lieutenant Pasol, U. S. Infantry, 45; Private Fehr, District of Columbia, 48; Captain Wise, Massachusetts, 48; Sergeant Knust, New York, 46; Private Hanford, New York, 48.

WOMAN DRUGGED ON TRAIN
PARIS, Sept. 7.—Mme. Scaglio, an American woman living on the Rue Washington, Paris, while going to Lourdes yesterday was drugged by a man who was a fellow passenger on the train somewhere between Bordeaux and Paris.

The stranger stole her handbag containing 200,000 francs ($40,000) worth of jewelry and 700 francs ($140) in notes and escaped with the booty.

WON SONDER RACE

MARION, Sept. 7.—The Clima, owned and sailed by Guy Lowell of the Eastern Yacht club won the first sonder yacht race today in the elimination trials for the selection of an American team. The yachts sailed over a triangular course in a light northwest breeze with the last leg to windward.

The fog led on the two reaches, closely followed by the Helen but turning to windward the Clima and Beaver went out ahead and defeated the Buzzards Bay boats. The Biblot was called back by the committee and did not complete the course.

AMERICAN OUT $960

PARIS, Sept. 7.—The latest American to fall a victim to a French confidence game is Charles Clark, an engineer of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Clark while walking along the street saw a stranger drop a package. He picked the package up and restored it to the stranger, who was profuse in his thanks.

A third party who witnessed the transaction invited all hands to adjourn to a cafe for drinks in honor of such honesty. The usual program followed and Mr. Clark realized presently that he had been relieved of $960 francs, or about $960.

DR. HYDE DIED SUDDENLY

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Dr. James Nevins Hyde of Chicago, well known throughout the country as a surgeon and medical authority, died suddenly at his summer residence at Proulx Neck, Me., last night.

Dr. Hyde was born in Norwich, Conn., in 1840 and was a graduate of Phillips Andover academy, Yale university and the University of Pennsylvania medical school. During the Civil War he was assistant surgeon in the United States navy. He was an author of several standard publications.

FISHERIES DISPUTE

The Most Important Point Conceded to England

THE HAGUE, Sept. 7.—The century-old fisheries dispute, the source of constant diplomatic friction between the governments of the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Newfoundland, was finally closed today with the award of the international court of arbitration largely in favor of the United States. The American government is sustained on points 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7, out of the total of the seven points in which the issue was framed.

Great Britain wins on questions 1 and 5. While the United States triumphs on five of the seven points, point 5, decided in favor of Great Britain, has been held by Englishmen as the most important of those submitted. The fifth point was stated in the form of this question:

"From where must be measured the three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbors referred to in article 1 of the American-British treaty of 1818?"

United States fishermen claimed the right to take the measure from any part of the British North American shore and therefore the liberty to fish in the middle of any Newfoundland bay or estuary having a radius of more than three miles. The British contention was that the line should become assured from an imaginary line connecting the headlands. The peace court sustained the British contention.

Point 1, on which Great Britain also was sustained, embodies the question of whether any local laws adopted by British colonies must be submitted for approval to any foreign power having a treaty on a similar subject with the imperial government.

This point was considered of great importance also to the British and their triumph will be a matter of much satisfaction to them.

FISHERMEN NOT JUBILANT

GLoucester, Sept. 7.—The decision of the international court of arbitration at The Hague in favor of the United States in the Newfoundland fisheries dispute with Great Britain was not jubilantly received by the Gloucester fishermen. The two points won by Great Britain were as follows:

Point 1.—That Great Britain shall regulate the time and methods of fishing and the implements used.

Point 5.—That the three-mile limit around Newfoundland shall be from headland to headland and not follow the line of bays as contended by the United States.

THE DECISION

SUBMITTED ONLY AFTER A PROTRACTED HEARING

THE HAGUE, Sept. 7.—The international court of arbitration after hearing prolonged arguments today, rendered its decision in the Newfoundland fisheries case submitted by the governments of the United States and Great Britain but which also involved the local governments of Canada and Newfoundland. Neither country wins a clear-cut award but the Americans claim a substantial victory.

The general issue was presented in seven questions. On these the tribunal supports the United States in five instances.

The British consider the two points decided in their favor, number one and five, as of the highest importance. On number one, however, the United States has raised certain questions of equity. The court was unanimous on all questions except the fifth and from the decision of this, Louis Drago, the member from the Argentine republic, gave a dissenting opinion largely supporting the American contentions.

On all others of the seven main questions the tribunal sustains the principal contentions of America. Summarizing question two, three, four, sixth and seven, they were decided in favor of the United States. Americans consider that winning the right to an impartial commission to budget the present and future Newfoundland regulations was of high importance.

Regarding point one, on which the American consul has raised questions of equity resulting in the submission of the matter to a special commission, the tribunal holds that the right of Great Britain to make fishing regulations without the consent of America is inherent in the former's sovereignty, but in the exercise of the right to make limited regulations the latter must not violate the treaty of 1818 or be so advantaged as to give the local fishermen an advantage over the Americans. The regulations are necessary for the protection and preservation of the fisheries and the public order, but must not violate the treaty. The court states that the reasonableness of the regulations requires expert information for the proper settlement of disputes that may arise.

The provisions of the award apply not only to future legislation by the imperial government and the colonies but require that the existing statutes and regulations to which the Americans have objected be submitted to a commission which shall judge of their reasonableness, necessity and fairness in the light of the principles laid down by the tribunal.

In conclusion, it is said that the reasonableness of the fishing regulations must be determined through expert information. The tribunal directs the appointment of a commission.

ists, calls upon America and Great Britain to designate commissioners within one month and appoint as a third commissioner, Dr. Hoek. The commission is to submit its report to the Hague tribunal. If the commissioners fail of unanimity the tribunal will adjudicate the matter.

POINTS INVOLVED

IN THE FISHERIES ARBITRATION JUST SETTLED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The seven points involved in the fisheries arbitration were, in brief, as follows:

First.—Must any reasonable regulations made by Great Britain, Canada and Newfoundland in the form of municipal laws, ordinances or rules (such ordinances being appropriate or necessary for the preservation of the fisheries, desirable on grounds of public order and morals, equitable and fair as between local fishermen and inhabitants of the United States), be subject to the consent of the United States?

Second.—Have the inhabitants of the United States, while exercising the liberty to take fish on the treaty coasts, a right to employ as members of their fishing crews persons not inhabitants of the United States?

Third.—Can the liberties to take, dry and cure fish in treaty designated places be subjected without the consent of the United States to the requirements of entry or report at customs houses or the payment of dues or any similar conditions?

Fourth.—Can restrictions be imposed upon American fishermen making the exercise of the privileges granted them by the treaty to enter certain bays or harbors for shelter, repairs, wood and water, conditional upon the payment of light or harbor or other dues on entry, or reporting at customs houses or any similar conditions?

Fifth.—What is a bay within the treaty's meaning?

Sixth.—Does the treaty give the inhabitants of the United States the same liberty to take fish in the bays, harbors and creeks of Newfoundland as in Labrador?

Seventh.—Are the inhabitants of the United States whose vessels resort to the treaty coast to exercise the liberties referred to in article one of the treaty entitled to have for those vessels, when duly authorized by the United States in that behalf, the commercial privileges on the treaty coasts accorded by agreement or otherwise to the United States trading vessels generally?

AGAINST BALLINGER

Investigating Committee Wants Him Removed

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—At an executive meeting of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee today Senator Dancan C. Fletcher of Florida, a democrat, introduced a resolution holding that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger was an unfaithful public officer and should be removed. Representative Madison, the republican insurgent from Kansas, offered a resolution holding that the charges which have been made by Gifford Pinchot and Louis Glavis, a former chief of a field division of the general land office, were sustained.

Representative James (democrat) Kentucky, offered an amendment to Mr. Madison's substitute resolution providing for the removal of Mr. Ballinger from office and Mr. Madison accepted the amendment.

The vote came upon the substitute of Mr. Madison as amended by the motion of Mr. James and the roll was called. Those voting for the substitute were:

Senator Fletcher, W. E. Purcell of North Dakota, democrat; Representative James Graham of Illinois, democrat; Representative Madison, republican; and Representative James. When the vote was being taken Senator George Sutherland of Utah, republican, and Representative Samuel McCall of Massachusetts, republican, left the committee room insisting that the full committee should be present. The democratic members replied that they had been months considering the evidence, that a quorum was present, and had a right to transact business. Senator Nelson, the chairman of the committee, took the vote, voting present himself and then made the ruling that no quorum was present.

Mr. James made the point of order that no member had raised the point of no quorum. The committee then took a recess until Friday when reports in keeping with the resolution of Senator Fletcher and the amendment thereto offered by Mr. Madison will be submitted.

ASSAULTED OFFICER

Court Ordered Man to Pay a Fine of $10

In police court today Luke Dwyer was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on Patrolman Delphis Citroux. The latter testified that while he was arresting a man last night the defendant interfered with him. Patrolman Lemay corroborated the testimony of the first witness. Dwyer was found guilty and fined $10 for assault, the case of drunkenness being placed on file.

Henry St. Lawrence, of Burlington, who was being arrested when Dwyer interfered, denied that he was drunk, but the testimony against him was damning despite the fact that he had a witness to testify in his behalf. A fine of $2 was imposed.

Beer Party Interrupted

Bridget Cannon and Thomas and Susan Moore were having a little social party in a house in upper Gosham street last night when Patrolman Swanwick entered without invitation and gave the trio a free ride to the police station where they were booked for drunkenness. The women admitted that they were drunk but Thomas denied the allegation. They were found guilty and fines of $2 each were imposed.

Drunken Man in Court
"Not guilty," shouted Edward Woolley, when the clerk asked him to plead to a complaint charging him with drunkenness. The case was said to go to trial when Edward showed signs of intoxication and he was removed to a cell below in order to sober off.

Other Offenders

William Campbell, who is on parole from the state farm, was returned to that institution. Stephen Richards was sentenced to five months in jail. Francis H. Collins, Michael P. Wall and Richard Caslick were fined $5 each and five first offenders were fined $2 each.

Case Continued

The case of Tony Carroll, charged with larceny, which was to have been heard this morning, was continued until Sept. 10th. The postponement was due to the fact that the case was considered by the grand jury yesterday and if a true bill is reported the matter will go up to the superior court.

6 O'CLOCK SOCIALISTIC MAYOR Refused to Act on Committee to Receive Roosevelt

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—Shortly after Mr. Roosevelt arrived here today and before he sat down to breakfast at the Pfister hotel he found himself involved in a controversy with Emil Seidel, the socialistic mayor who had declined to act upon the reception committee which welcomed the colonel to Milwaukee in a contribution to the "Big Stick," a newspaper published by the Milwaukee Press club for this occasion. Mayor Seidel stated that "if Mr. Roosevelt comes to Milwaukee holding the same ideas which he expressed in an article published by him March 20, 1910, it is clear that he cannot serve the cause of honesty and decency in American political life."

"It is possible that I have misunderstood the article," stated Mayor Seidel, "but inasmuch as I am a socialist and as he has designated socialism as a thing which is against morals and religion—'abhorrent,' 'revolting'—which would 'replace the family and home life by a glorious state of free lunch counters and a state founding asylum'—I am sure that he will be pleased that I am not personally connected with his reception in the city."

Charging the colonel with "a cunning and deliberate purpose to create a false impression" he declared that the visitor could lay no claim to the right of preaching either morality or religion or civic righteousness.

"In the speaking tour of Mr. Roosevelt through the west," said Mayor Seidel, "I fail to see anything of importance beyond political plans and designs. As such, of course, it is of no special service to the present city administration. The problems that now confront our city are of much the same nature as those the nation faces."

Upon being shown this statement, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"On this trip I have made no partisan political speeches and of course shall not break through the rule now by discussing either the state party matters, or the municipal party matters and at present, of course, the dominant municipal party in Milwaukee is the socialistic party. If anyone wishes to know my views on what is usually called socialism they will find them set out in such fashion that it is impossible to misinterpret or misunderstand them in the articles to which the mayor in his letter refers, and I advise them to read the articles themselves and not what the mayor says of them."

The Press club's special publication, "The Big Stick," especially disavowed responsibility for the mayor's utterances, saying that "Mr. Roosevelt will understand that Milwaukee's welcome is none the less wholehearted—hardly the less unanimous—because the mayor has seen fit to voice a socialistic dislike for the president."

"It has been stated to me since my arrival here," said Colonel Roosevelt today, "that in spite of Senator La Follette's having carried the primaries in fair and open contest an effort will be made to beat him in the legislature. I do not for one moment believe this, because any such conduct would be from every point of view an outrage and would be a deliberate violation of good faith. When in Oregon the democratic candidate for senator, Governor Chamberlain, carried the primaries and it was proposed that the republican legislature should turn him down. I very strongly and publicly took the position that such an act would be one of bad faith by the legislature toward the people and I take the same position here in regard to Senator La Follette."

PLENTY OF WATER

The Pumping at Two Stations May be Curtailed

The rainy weather of the last week or more has so decreased the consumption of water that the water department believes it can curtail the pumping at the Boulevard and Centralville stations to three days a week. The reservoir showed 20 feet, 10 inches this morning and that is "some" high. The number of gallons being pumped each day is 2,000,000 and the department believes that that number of gallons can be pumped on a three days schedule.

The grade crossing work is making more work for the water department, and so far as odds and ends are concerned this has been the busiest summer in the history of the department. The six inch pipe in Walker street has been temporarily cut off because of the grade crossing work in that street and a similar condition of affairs exists in Upper Middlesex street. The widening of the bridge in that street will probably render it necessary for the water department to lay a pipe over the bridge while the work is going on.

LAFOLLETTE'S PLURALITY 40,000

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—Returns today indicate, U. S. Senator La Follette's plurality for renomination at 40,000 votes over his opponent. He ran at least 20,000 votes ahead of the state ticket. He will have the next legislature back of him. His vote carried with it a large majority of the legislative nominees.

SPALDING LAND OFFERED TO THE CITY

View of the plot of land offered the city for park purposes. The land is in front of the Spalding house in Parker street and has been offered the city by Hannah M. Spalding, who would have it named Parker-Spalding square in memory of two families closely connected with the Revolutionary period. The plot of land contains 1875 feet. The matter of accepting the land for park purposes went to the board of aldermen last night and was referred to the park commission.

Macdonald, pastor of the Fifth Street Baptist church. The bearers were Sylvester Bean, Joseph Packard, Adam Shaw and Robert J. Gilmore. Burial was in the family lot in the Edson cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

ROWE.—The funeral of Mr. Geo. L. Rowe took place this morning from his late home, 45 Marion street. The deceased was an old and respected resident of this city, having been for a number of years a foreman in the street department. Through his kind and gentle disposition he had made a great many friends, as was shown by the large number in attendance at his funeral today.

The cortege proceeded from the house to St. Patrick's church, where at nine o'clock a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Joseph Curtin. The church choir sang the Gregorian mass. Solos of the mass were sustained by Miss Alice E. Murphy and Mr. Andrew A. McCarthy. As the body was being borne from the church the choir intoned "De Profundis." Mr. John Kelly presided at the organ and also directed the choir.

AUTO DRIVER

KNOCKED DOWN OFFICER WHO HALTED MACHINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Police Officer Maher of the traffic squad, who was stationed at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street yesterday afternoon, was told by a man in an automobile that two men were driving a runaway up Fifth avenue in a reckless manner. The runaway came along in a minute and Maher signalled the men to stop. One of them jumped from the carriage and began to abuse the policeman for stopping him. A nightseeing automobile drew up behind them, and the man from the runaway demanded that the chauffeur of the car be arrested. He then knocked Maher down.

One of the persons who saw the affair was Magistrate Carrigan. He told Maher that he would appear in the men's night court as a witness, but later he found that he couldn't. The two men who were arrested said that they were William Bartlett of 300 East Thirty-fifth street and Thomas Butler of 442 East Thirty-first street. Magistrate Appleton sentenced them to the workhouse for thirty days.

FOREST FIRES SPREADING
CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 7.—Forest fires that have been burning for the last week in the vicinity of Glenbrook are rapidly spreading and calls have been sent to this city for assistance. The flames are moving toward Marie Lake.

1910 CHRISTMAS DECORATION

Some of us who were once younger, used to hear a good deal about a certain hot place, intimately and permanently concerned with our hereafter and future welfare. The place was vividly described even to the fuel mixture and the material used for paving the floors. It is all just as true today as it was then. But the cold hereafter is another proposition. Winter is a cold reality. We have intimate knowledge of what is coming our way next December. The subject is one of the propositions of "tomorrow," even though you can convince yourself that there is "no tomorrow"—that tomorrow never comes. The cold will come even if tomorrow does not. Prepare for it. Put away a supply of winter fuel. Lowell Gas Light Company Coke at $4.75 per chaldron. It makes a splendid Christmas decoration for the cellar and supplies real cheer for the entire house.

DRINKING CUPS

The following opinion relative to the use of common drinking cups in the public schools was given by the city solicitor today:

Lowell, Sept. 6, 1910.
Mr. A. K. Whitcomb,
Supt. of Schools.
Dear Sir:

I have your letter of August 24th asking my opinion as to the present status of the law restricting the use of common drinking cups in the public schools.

During the present year an act was passed by the legislature, entitled "An act to restrict the use of common drinking cups," (Chap. 28, Acts of 1910). It provides substantially that the state board of health may prohibit the use of common drinking cups and buildings as it may designate the providing of a common drinking cup and may establish rules and regulations for this purpose. For the enforcement of the law, it makes any violation of the rules thus established a misdemeanor punishable by a fine.

Whether up to the present time rules have been adopted by the state board of health prohibiting the use of the common drinking cup in buildings of Lowell, the duty of providing the same will devolve upon the Lands and Buildings department.

Very truly yours,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

AN EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—An earthquake believed to have been about 4500 miles away was recorded on the seismograph at Georgetown university early today. The tremors, which lasted from 3.14 to 3.35 o'clock, were very slight and in an east and west direction.

GUILFORD IS CHAMPION

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 7.—The remarkable feature of the state golf tourney at the Manchester Country club yesterday was the winning of the Rollins cup and therefore the state championship of J. R. Guilford of this city. Young Guilford is but 15 years of age. Last year he qualified but failed to get in on the winning.

The semi-finals were:
J. R. Guilford of Manchester defeated Cooper of Manchester, 5 up, 2 to play.

C. W. Bess of Portsmouth defeated Crook of Exeter, 1 up, 18 holes.

In the finals Guilford defeated Bess, who is one of the best left handed players in New England, up 18 holes.

May Not be Called to Trial Until January

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 7.—District Attorney Higgins announced today that the trial of Hattie Leblanc, the French girl who is charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover, the Waltham laundryman in Waltham last November, will probably not be held before January. The grand jury of Middlesex county is now in session and as soon as its findings have been returned there will be a session of the criminal court.

In November the district attorney will have to argue against exceptions taken in several murder cases, including those of Chester Jordan, charged with killing his wife; Thomas Mantie and James Delorey, who are accused of murdering Annie Mullins and Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, the Cambridge woman who was convicted of killing Stewart McTavish.

Another session of the criminal court sits in December and at present it is the belief of Mr. Higgins that the Leblanc case cannot be reached before January.

COL. ROOSEVELT

Visited the Boys and Girls Trades Schools

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—Col. Roosevelt arrived from St. Paul about 6 o'clock this morning and for nearly 24 hours will be the guest of the Milwaukee Press club on the occasion of his silver jubilee celebration. He was greeted by 3000 persons.

After breakfast at the Hotel Pfister, Colonel Roosevelt was taken on an automobile trip and during the forenoon visited the boys and girls trades schools and later took luncheon with a number of newspaper publishers and managing editors.

During the day the colonel will call at the Deutscher club and will hold a short reception at the Hotel Pfister. Late this afternoon Mr. Roosevelt will join with the newspapermen at the Press club in a Bohemian luncheon and following this will address a big meeting at the auditorium and an overflow gathering at the Hippodrome.

A souvenir of Colonel Roosevelt's visit is the publication in the Press club of a single edition of "The Big Stick" containing a welcome printed in four languages and there are caricatures, editorials, all "Rooseveltian." Autos were in waiting at the station to take the colonel and his party to the hotel for breakfast.

The absence of Emil Seidel, the socialist mayor of the city, from the reception committee, caused some comment among members of the colonel's party.

DANIEL A. WHITE CONG. TOWNSEND

Nominated for Governor Swept the State for by Socialists Senator

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—The socialist state convention met yesterday at Paine Memorial hall, with an attendance of 38 delegates from 30 cities and towns, including two Lynn women, Mrs. Harriet O'Driscoll and Mrs. Eliza J. Hitchcock, and unanimously nominated by acclamation this state ticket, the first in the field:

Governor, Daniel A. White, Brockton.
Lieutenant-governor, Patrick A. Mahoney, Boston.
Secretary of state, Mrs. Harriet O'Driscoll, Lynn.
Treasurer, Sylvester J. McBride, Watertown.
Attorney-general, Harold Metcalf, New Bedford.

Auditor, Ambrose Miles, Lynn.
The convention simply ratified the action of the conference of clubs, held Sunday and Monday, attended by 231 delegates who decided upon state candidates and platforms.

This state central committee was elected:
Alfred Hodgins, Cambridge; George J. Power, St.oughton; Squire E. Putney, Beverly; Victor McCone, Lynn; Charles E. Blaisdell, Somerville; Calvin M. Verbeck, Malden; R. Colson, Saugus; John Mullen, Newton; Orlando Benson, Brockton; John Weaver Sherman, Boston.

The platform, read by Franklin H. Wentworth of Salem, which was unanimously adopted, demands, among other things, enactment of laws abolishing the United States senate and capital punishment; free meals for all school children; a legal maximum working day of eight hours; state insurance of all workers against sickness, invalidity, old age, accidents and unemployment; raising of the school age to 16 years; prohibition of labor by children under 16 years of age; prohibition of injunctions in labor disputes; equal pay for equal work to men and women in public and private employment; equal suffrage regardless of sex.

D. A. White, candidate for governor, and ex-Mayor James F. Carey of Haverhill, addressed the convention, of which Charles E. Fenn of Worcester was chairman, and Julius Heurich of Braintree secretary. Albert Hess of Randolph was chairman of the committee on credentials.

The next state convention will be held at Worcester.

AMERICAN HELD

He is Suspected of Robbery

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Sept. 7.—The case of James A. Cook, the American conductor who was held in jail in this city for months as a result of the robbery of a freight train in his charge, was recalled by the arrest at Irapuato yesterday of William O. French, also an American freight conductor, on a charge growing out of a similar robbery in that place. French, it is said, will be held for 72 hours pending an investigation of the robbery. Three Mexican brakemen were also placed in jail charged with being implicated.

WISCONSIN PRIMARIES
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—Additional returns from yesterday's primaries in this state show the following nominations for congress:
Fifth district—Henry Cochems, republican, of Milwaukee.
Fifth district—Joseph P. Carney, democrat, of Milwaukee.
Sixth district—Michael F. Burke, democrat, of Beaver Dam.
Cochems is the former football star who nominated La Follette for the presidency at the Chicago convention in 1908.

On the democratic state ticket John W. Callahan of Milwaukee will be named for the office of secretary of state.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 7.—In yesterday's primary elections in Michigan, Congressman Townsend is conceded by supporters of Senator Burrows to have swept the state in the fight for the republican endorsement for United States senator. Mr. Townsend's plurality is admitted today to be better than 17,000. Charles E. Osborn of Saint Marie has a lead of 17,000, equally as good in the contest for the republican gubernatorial nomination.

Returns from two-thirds of the precincts in the state give these figures: Senatorial—Townsend 48,622; Burrows 31,096.
Gubernatorial—Osborn 39,993.
Lieutenant governor—Kelly 24,014; Ames Musselman 24,911.

In the third congressional district Representative Washington Gardner, a standpatter and Cannon supporter, is defeated by over 2000 majority by J. M. Smith of Charlotte. Congressman George Loid is being hard pressed in the tenth district by Frank Buell of Bay City and in the twelfth, the upper peninsula district, Messrs. Rogers is running a close race, with Angus W. Kerr of Culmer, an avowed Cannon man.

WOMAN BIT BABY
SAYS SHE JUST COULD NOT HELP DOING IT
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A penchant for babies, white or colored, and an admitted inability to pass them without kissing and biting them, landed Elizabeth McGuirk, 35 years old, of 105 East 117th street, in a cell in the East 126th street police station last evening.

Mrs. Lillian Smothers, colored, of 4 West 135th street, put her 18 months old daughter Ruby in a go-cart yesterday afternoon and went down to the street and in the twelfth, the upper peninsula district, Messrs. Rogers is running a close race, with Angus W. Kerr of Culmer, an avowed Cannon man.

Mrs. Smothers grabbed the handles of the baby cart and pursued, accompanied by a trailing wake of children. The woman turned down Park avenue, and at the corner of 119th street Patrolman Dillon, whom Mrs. Smothers had accosted, placed the McGuirk woman in a cell.

"Like children, white or black," she said, "and when I saw that one I just couldn't help kissing it and giving it a little love bite. I didn't mean any harm."

She was locked up on a charge of assault.

BANK DEPOSITORS

Want to Know What the Bank's Plans Are

BIDDEFORD, Me., Sept. 7.—Between 200 and 300 depositors of the York County Savings bank, which was closed three weeks ago with an estimated shortage of $300,000 in the accounts of its former treasurer met in Assembly hall last night and instructed a committee of five to call on the bank's officers for more exact information as to the situation and the officers' plans.

The meeting was called at the instance of several of the largest depositors to see what action should be taken by the depositors to protect their interests in the affairs of the bank, now under investigation by Bank Examiner Shelton and the trustees.

This hall proved too small to accommodate the crowd and many were unable to hear the remarks of those who spoke. A large number of women were present.

Edward C. Luques of Saco, president and Joseph Bolduc of this city was secretary.

Ex-Mayor Nathaniel B. Walker, retained as counsel by the originators of the meeting, addressed the depositors. He referred to seeming delay in giving out detailed information of the bank's affairs and thought the depositors were not to be blamed for taking steps to protect their interests.

Mr. Walker cautioned the depositors, however, against hasty action. He said that if the bank should be closed permanently and its affairs liquidated, while depositors would undoubtedly get a dividend within a reasonable time from such assets as were represented by mortgages on real estate, there would probably be a prolonged delay in realizing anything from stocks and bonds held by the bank.

The market for these securities, he pointed out, was such that if a receiver were appointed they would be disposed of, in all probability, only after waiting for better prices than now prevail.

Before resorting to any legal proceedings Mr. Walker advised the depositors to appoint a committee to see the officers of the bank and ascertain if possible more exact information as to the condition of the institution and also whether the officers proposed to attempt resuming operations or to liquidate. He thought the officers must now know enough about the bank's affairs to enable them to decide this last question.

The following committee was appointed to interview the bank officers: Edward C. Luques, Joseph Bolduc, Charles Walker, John J. Dunn and Llewellyn Smith. The committee expects to see the officials tomorrow.

Several of the depositors spoke in criticism of the slowness with which information of the results of the bank examiners' investigation have been made public.

Mr. Joseph E. Cassavant of Sanford condemned the policy of allowing the deposited treasurer, Richmond H. Ingorsoll, now lying ill at his home, to be guarded only by members of fraternal societies to which he belonged. Mr. Cassavant said he believed Mr. Ingorsoll should be placed under arrest and guarded by police.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—While thoroughbred horse racing is on its last legs in nearly every state in the Union, the harness racing game has become more popular than ever. NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—While thoroughbred horse racing is on its last legs in nearly every state in the Union, the harness racing game has become more popular than ever. In fact, many turfmen are of the opinion that trotters and pacers will occupy the position once held by the runners in the hearts of the sporting public. To prove this assertion the devotees of harness racing point to the fact that many new men are entering the field and are willing to pay small fortunes for horses to race under their colors. LANGFORD WON Defeated Jeannette in a Strenuous Bout

Some 100 local fight fans journeyed to Boston in the rain last evening to see the Langford-Jeannette bout and every one of them said afterward that he would go farther and in a big rain storm to see such a bout, for it was the best ever pulled off in the Armory club and demonstrated the fact that at the strenuous art of self-defense the colored man has it all over his white brother for endurance.

It was a slashing contest and the decision, going to Langford, was perfectly proper, although there were many who still believe that in a finish contest Jeannette could win, for they recall his performance against McVey in Paris last year when after getting an awful licking from McVey he succeeded in putting Sam away in 10 rounds.

Another great feature of the go was the refereeing of Charlie White of New York, the prince of referees. White made a great hit with those of the members who had never seen him work before. There was no chance to lose with White the third man in the ring. Hugh McIntosh, the Australian light promoter, arrived in time to see the closing rounds, and while Jeannette looked bad then, McIntosh claimed that he was far from being all in and that he would lead Langford a merry race in a contest of longer duration than 15 rounds.

When Langford and Jeannette stepped into the ring it was plain to the members that both had been through a careful course of preparation for the bout, for they looked in superb shape, and the way that they withstood the rights and lefts that they handed to each other all through the bout showed that they were.

While Jeannette looked to be the heavier of the two there was not a great difference in their weight, and he gave him any advantage in that respect. That the bout went the full distance was somewhat of a surprise, though the fans were aware that Jeannette is one tough fellow to stow away in such a short time.

Langford was fanned by most of the members as the winner, and the way he outscored Jeannette in a majority of the rounds showed that they were not wrong in their calculations. A few times it looked as if Langford would make the result a decisive one, but Jeannette's wonderful recuperative powers stood him in good stead, and he always came back before Langford could get over the K. O. punch.

WOMAN FOUND DYING

She Was Taken to Chelmsford Street Hospital Where She Died

—Her House Was Well Furnished and the Woman Had $67 in Money

Jennie Perrigo, an elderly woman, who was a nurse by occupation, was found at the point of death in a room at 48 Winter street early Monday morning and removed to the City hospital, at which place she died yesterday afternoon. Little is known of the woman other than that she was a nurse and at one time lived in Pawtucket with her more recently she had been in Maynard, having come to Lowell from that place about a week ago. Death was due to natural causes, the examining physician stating that peritonitis was the cause.

Early Monday morning Patrolmen O'Keefe and Johnson were passing through Winter street when they heard groans emanating from a room in the house numbered 48. An investigation by the patrolmen led to the finding of Miss Perrigo, who was in a very weak condition. The ambulance was summoned and the woman was taken to the City hospital where she received treatment, but her condition was such that it was impossible to save her life.

WOMAN WAS ROBBED

But She Defended Man, Who Took Her Jewelry

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—John J. Vance, alias "John Sullivan," alias "Johnny the Pig," is a fictionist, as well as a burglar, and is a good fictionist, whereas he is a very poor burglar.

The story of his life, which he told to Mrs. Ella B. Russell of 27 McDonough street, Brooklyn, whom he robbed of $1500 worth of jewelry, was so convincing, in spite of its almost unbelievable "plot" that she reported it yesterday to Magistrate Harris as a possible defense of the prisoner.

If the story is true, John Vance was kidnapped when two years old by a man who had once been a suitor for the hand of his mother. From his babyhood he was educated in the art of crime to serve the vengeance of this man against the woman who had refused to marry him.

Mrs. Russell declares she has letters and other evidence to substantiate this story, but she declines to make the documents public.

She has had specialists examine Vance, and they have reported that his story of the continuous beatings upon the head is obviously true. They believe him unbalanced in mind, so far as his moral sense is concerned.

Vance was released from Dannemora only two weeks ago, after serving a five years' sentence for burglary. On the recommendation of a friend, Mrs. Russell gave him a position in her home as a man of all work. After a few days he vanished, and $1500 worth of her jewelry disappeared simultaneously.

Vance was arrested yesterday at the Salvation Army station in One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, Manhattan. He had most of the stolen stuff with him and pawn tickets representing the rest.

He said that after his release from prison he had visited one of his old haunts in Manhattan and had overheard something to show that his kidnapper was still living and that his parents were also alive. He had advertised in an attempt to locate his parents (he produced the "ads" to prove this statement) and he said it was to get more money to continue the advertising that he robbed his benefactress.

BIG SEWER JOB

In Dutton St. Not an Easy One

Of all the jobs that the sewer department has tackled in years there has been none more formidable than the deepening of the sewer in Dutton street. The work is progressing slowly because of the fact that it is a great big ledge from start to finish, and despite the fact that there has been a deal of blasting, no accidents have occurred—not as much as a pane of glass has been broken. The sewer is being lowered to a depth of 16 feet.

The regular meeting of Betsey Ross circle, 21, ladies of G. A. R., was held last night and much business was transacted. By vote of those present, the supper before the meetings will begin at the next meeting, Sept. 20, and it is hoped that all members will be present to have a social time after the vacation. Communications in regard to the national convention were read and acted upon.

STAGE JEWELRY

NEW YORK MAN HAD BASKETFUL OF IT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A first cabin passenger on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosser, in yesterday from Bremen and Cherbourg, whose name was said to be Emil Aarons, caused a flurry among the customs inspectors. Aarons came off the ship with two good sized baskets. An inspector who stuck his hand into one of these baskets pulled out several blue cloth bags about the size of a pillow filled with small and very hard chunks of something. He opened a bag and drew out a handful of what appeared to be blue stones. "If they're amethysts," said the inspector to himself, "they ought to be worth a hundred thousand or something like that."

Other stones, with blue predominating, were in another bag, and still another contained what the inspector thought might be topazes. The inspector called to another man in uniform and they read the passenger's declaration together. In it the passenger had admitted himself the possessor of a large amount of glass stones for stage jewelry. He said that he had been told the duty would not be over $30. This, it was said, was just what he did pay.

BOTH DIE IN AUTO

Judge and Sister-in-Law Were the Victims

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 7.—Judge William H. Andrews, a retired member of the New York bar, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Nellie Nelson of Brooklyn, were killed by a twenty-foot automobile last night by an unmanageable automobile, which came crashing down upon them, killing both.

The tracks of the auto from the road indicated that the machine had been steered straight for a ten-foot stone retaining wall, jumping from the wall and turning a complete somersault. Examination of Judge Andrews showed no marks, and it was the belief of the physicians that he was either attacked with heart failure or apoplexy before the accident happened, and while unconscious steered the machine off the road, or that he became frightened and lost control of the car.

The tragedy occurred on the Durham road, about three miles from Middletown, while Judge Andrews and Mrs. Nelson were returning from an afternoon ride. The machine was a one-seat electric runabout, which had been lent to the judge by the manufacturer, pending the delivery of a large electric car he recently ordered. Had not Dr. Harold A. Meeks, of Meriden, come along in his car behind them the runabout, plunging its victims beneath it, might have lain in the ravine for hours without discovery.

Car's Wild Plunge
Dr. Meeks was about two hundred feet behind the judge's car, when he saw the runabout suddenly veer from the road and plunge over the stone ledge of retaining wall, which spans the highway at that point.

As it went over the man and woman were tossed headlong from the seat. A single scream and a crash told the one witness what had happened.

Dr. Meeks stopped his car and ran down the ravine and found that both Judge Andrews and Mrs. Nelson were fast under the wreckage. He could not lift the runabout and rushed for aid to the home of Richard Davis.

When the machine was rolled over Mrs. Nelson was dead, and though Judge Andrews still was breathing and there was no mark on his body, he died from internal hemorrhage before he could be removed to the Davis home, whither the bodies were taken pending the arrival of the coroner.

Steering Gear Broken

Dr. Meeks said the runabout was not going more than twenty miles an hour. Examination indicated that the steering gear had broken. It also showed that Judge Andrews had shut off the power just before the fatal plunge. The roads were slippery from the recent rain.

The breaking of the tragic news to Mrs. Andrews at their home in Portland caused her nervous collapse. She was reported in a serious condition last night. The Andrews had lived in Portland for the last four years, with the exception of last winter, when they resided in Brooklyn, where Mrs. Nelson was a trained nurse. Judge Andrews kept an office at Broadway and Fulton streets, New York, and made frequent business trips to Manhattan.

CHILD RESCUED

Was Pulled From Tracks in Time

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Cornelius D. Austin of Penn street, South Quincy, risked his life at Quincy station yesterday in snatching from in front of an inbound express a child, whose name is unknown to the police.

The incident happened when many people were waiting for the 11:04 inbound train. An express which precedes this train was coming from the Granite street bridge, and just before it reached the station the child was noticed standing in the middle of the tracks. He had been seen a few moments before when in the company of two women, and evidently had wandered on the tracks without their seeing him.

It wasn't until the train was almost upon the little fellow that his predicament was noticed. Several men started toward the boy, while the women on the platform turned their faces, fearing that the train was about to strike the lad. Austin made one spring to the edge of the platform, reached out and grabbed the boy and yanked him clear of the tracks just as the locomotive of the express shot by.

There were many sighs of relief breathed when it was seen that Austin and the boy had escaped injury, and Austin was congratulated for his act. The names of the child or the women with him are unknown. They took the 11:01 train for Boston.

INVALID'S CHAIR WAS PRESENTED TO THE KING'S DAUGHTERS

At a meeting of Opportunity circle of the King's Daughters of the First Baptist church, held last evening, the memory of Sarah E. Midgeley was honored. Mrs. Midgeley, whose charity, sympathy and benevolence endeared her to everybody with whom she came in contact, died last April. Letters were read from many aged and invalid people, adding tributes to Mrs. Midgeley's memory. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. M. K. French, leader. The secretary, Miss Hinds, read a letter from Mr. Craven Midgeley, husband of the late Mrs. Midgeley, presenting the circle, on behalf of himself and family, and as a memorial of her, a beautiful invalid's chair. This chair is to be used under direction of the King's Daughters, by invalids who may need it. Mrs. French made appropriate remarks accepting the chair on behalf of the organization, and prayer was said by the pastor of the church, Rev. S. W. Cummings.

The chair was dedicated to the service it is to render, and it is hoped that not only in this but in other organizations devoted to Christian work, the presentation of the chair may be a suggestion for further gifts of use for like purposes. A silver plate on the back of the chair bears this inscription:

"Presented to the King's Daughters of the First Baptist church of Lowell, Mass., by Craven Midgeley, in memory of his wife, Sarah E. Midgeley, who died April 21, 1910."

BATH, Me., Sept. 7.—At the democratic rally last night Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, who has been mentioned as one of the gubernatorial candidates in Massachusetts at the next election, exploited his idea of the Payne-Aldrich tariff. Said he:

"Comparing the wholesale prices which prevailed in 1897 with those of April, 1910, we find that the increase, according to the Dun and Gibson index numbers, is 66 per cent. In other words, the purchasing power of the 1897 dollar has been reduced to 60 cents."

"The Lodge report on the cost of living states that, while the increased production of gold has exerted a positive effect on the cost of living by cheapening the standard of price and increasing credits, it is not contended that the increase in gold production is the dominant or even a principal cause of the rise of prices. This finding makes the conclusion of the commission that the tariff has not been a material factor in the advance of prices even more bewildering."

"The suggestion has recently been made by the president that duties should be revised by taking up one scheduled at a time. When the democratic party attempted this in 1892, the republicans had only sneers for the 'Popcorn' tariff bills, as they facetiously called them. No one would rejoice more than I if such a method could ultimately be adopted. There is certainly no reason, however, why the notoriously indefensible jokers and disguised increases in the Payne-Aldrich act, now daily coming to light, should not instantly be corrected by congress."

"Our protectionist friends will find, however, that many difficulties will arise when single schedules are taken up for revision from the fact that most of the protected schedules are so interwoven that it will be very difficult to revise any one without at the same time also revising others."

THRILLING RESCUE

MADE BY YOUNG MAN AT ATLANTIC CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 7.—The most thrilling rescue of the season was made before several thousand boardwalk promenaders, when Thomas Young, 19 years old, almost fully dressed, swam to Antonio Pasella, who was drowning off South Carolina avenue. The rescued man was unconscious when brought ashore, but was revived.

Young was seated in a pavilion with Councilman Cuthbert, just before dark, when he saw a moving object about 200 yards from the shore. Suddenly screams were heard above the pounding of the surf. Young vaulted over the rail, dashed to the water's edge, and threw off his coat and shoes. Next he grabbed a can buoy left on the beach by life guards, and plunged into the breakers.

People swarmed from piers and hotels to watch the rescue. Young had got half way to the struggling musician when Pasella went under. Young plunged in, while those on shore shouted encouragement. When Pasella bobbed to the surface, after sinking the second time, the lad was at his side. The drowning man threw his arms around his rescuer.

Young freed himself, after a struggle, and slipped the rope of the can buoy over the now exhausted bather, and towed him in.

Young got a great ovation.

GRAFT INQUIRY

Will Commence in New York Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—After months of preparation and delay the curtain will rise at last on the legislative graft hunt today. The committee appointed as the extraordinary session of the legislature for the purpose of investigating reports of corrupt practices in the legislature and the state department, recommending reform legislation, will begin its public hearings in the aldermanic chamber in City hall.

It was definitely announced yesterday by M. Jim Bruce, chief counsel of the committee, that the disclosures made in the course of the Alldis trial before the senate and the Hotchkiss investigation of the fire insurance companies in connection with the credits that appear in certain ledgers of the brokerage house of Ellingwood & Cunningham for the benefit of a number of influential legislators from the Odell administration will be investigated first.

This part of the inquiry is expected to engage the committee several days. Tracy Rogers, whose activities at Albany in connection with the reaction lobby at the state capital were lightly touched upon both by Mc Hotchkiss in his investigation and by counsel for Ben Conger during the Alldis trial will be the first witness to day.

He will be followed on the stand by Fred James W. Cunningham and other various legislators whose names were brought out during the Hotchkiss investigation as having accounts with his brokerage firm. Those already subpoenaed include Congressman George R. Mulby, Ex-Senator John H. Aldis, Ex-Senator Louis A. Goodsell and former Assemblyman Louis Bell, both from Orange County. Also, James T. Rogers and former clerk of the assembly, Archie Baxter.

The books of the firm will be a conspicuous exhibit. They will be used to follow the Wall street trail, and the testimony which appeared in the testimony at the Alldis trial will then be taken up. Later it is the purpose of the committee to investigate fire insurance and security insurance, as it is enabled to do by virtue of the powers granted it by the assembly.

It was announced yesterday that from now on the hearings will continue from week to week. The committee has planned to devote three days every week to public hearings and to give part of the remaining time to executive sessions in preparation for the future.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Clyde Fitch, the eminent playwright, after taking a look at his own comedy "Girls," stated that he liked it best of any play he had ever written; and unless his latest, which is soon to appear at the Opera House, is something of a world-beater, Lowell theatre-goers will agree with him that "Girls" is his best.

"Girls" was the attraction at the Opera House last evening and was presented by a company fully adequate in every detail to exacting demands. The audience was far too small for such an excellent production, but those who were there made up in enthusiasm for what was lacking in numbers, for "Girls" is one large budget of up-to-date, clean and refined fun, and it was served up in faultless manner by a well-balanced company of artistic fun makers.

"Girls" there are three of them, three up-to-date self-supporting American girls, bachelor girls, who vow they will never marry and then all get hitched in the end after the funniest kind of courtships. The audience is not only let in to all their secrets but meets them right at home in their bachelor apartments, and even the hold men are permitted to watch them start to retire.

Of the three girls one is an out and out man hater and she destroys temporarily any susceptibilities that might be in the hearts of her two room mates. The girls take an oath which is supposed to be binding, but at the first opportunity two of them forget it. The third finally becomes a victim to a man's plea, and that's the story in a nutshell, though the development of the transformation gives opportunity for a barrel of fun.

"Pamela Gordon" the man hater, certainly was one until the inevitable and irrepressible man hater in sight and she was most artistically depicted by Mabel Mortimer. Kate West, who was the first to break the oath, was excellently presented and charmingly witty by Miss Kate Guyon. Violet Langston, whose affections are finally bestowed upon a grumpy old man, was most delightfully presented by Lorraine Marshall. Alice Penneyer and Adele Alcott had the remaining feminine parts of importance and each contributed her share to the general enjoyment of the play. The male characters were equally well taken. Ralph J. Herbert in the role of Edgar W. Holt, the conqueror of Pamela, kept the audience on the broad grin and they were all with him in his commendable effort. George H. Sprague, Charles Durgan and Frank Raymond were cast in congenial roles, while the minor parts were well taken and a weak spot in the cast would be impossible to find. The scenery and accessories were complete and a smooth and thoroughly pleasing performance was given.

"THE MIDNIGHT SONGS"

Low Fields' mammoth spectacular musical production, which ran for 26 weeks at the Broadway theatre, New York, will be the Shubert's offering at the Opera House next Friday and Saturday. This marvellous play of music, vaudeville, comedy and drama, with its cast of over 100 people, special vaudeville company of dancers and singers, English pony ballet, Pullman train in motion, and realistic theatre scene with an audience of 500 people, makes its first visit to this city. This engagement, it is expected, will mark an epoch in local theatricals.

It will be recalled by those familiar with the doings of the theatre and more especially by many who regularly visit New York that "The Midnight Songs" ran at the Broadway theatre for nearly a year. The exact period was 38 weeks. After that the play visited Boston, Washington and Philadelphia, rounding out 86 consecutive weeks without the loss of a single performance.

Some idea of the enormity of the production may be gained from the fact that the weekly payroll of the "extra" people averages nearly $600. These people are used in the marvellous scene which shows the interior of an opera house with its tiers of boxes, orchestra seats, balcony and gallery. Every member of the cast—and there are over 100 people—takes part in this scene, and it is necessary to engage a number of "chips" to properly give the illusion.

Neither scene which never fails to win applause and invariably calls for wonderment, is that showing a Pullman train in motion with a bride party on the rear platform waving good-byes to the audience. This scene is patented and is used exclusively by "The Midnight Songs."

There are thirty musical numbers. Raymond Hubbell having written the score. Glen McDonough, who is responsible for "The Jolly Bachelors" and "The Summer Widowers," wrote the book, and Ned Weyburn staged the production. Arthur Voegtlin, of the New York Hippodrome designed and built the production.

As added features of "The Midnight Songs" Low Fields will present the English pony ballet and a special company of vaudeville artists who take part in the theatre scene.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

It's easy enough to account for the phenomenal success of Laddie Cliff, the topknotter at Hathaway's theatre, this week. Cliff is gifted with an ability to imitate which is second only to Harry Lauder, and some critics of vaudeville place him on the same plane with the eminent Scotch comedian. All of Cliff's types are distinctly English, and he gives an excellent idea of his talents when he sings the song of the (ack.

Altogether he gives six songs, besides dancing eccentric stunts and giving a monologue. It's a great boy, and all who see him vote him that.

Burichard, Flynn & Parker, "Just Us Three," have a singing act replete with artistic touches. The trio constitute the best male singing aggregation heard here in a long time. Other acts on the bill are: Woods & Woods trio, light wire performers; Van Der Koors, in a quick sleight of hand act; Jarvis & Martin, comedy jugglers; Elsie Ridgely & Co., in "The Other Woman"; Thea Lightner, pianologist, and the motion pictures.

Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

BIG LIGHT TRUST

With a Capital of $50,000,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The $50,000,000 cities service corporation incorporated in Delaware last week, is to be the holding company for the Denver Gas & Electric company, the Empire District Electric company and the Spokane Gas & Fuel company. The capital is divided into 20,000,000 common and 30,000,000 6 per cent. cumulative preferred. The common has been authorized to the full amount and will be exchanged for the shares of the three operating companies to the total of $5,000,000. Of the balance $500,000 has been set aside for corporate purposes, and the remaining $14,500,000 will be retained in the treasury.

Henry L. Doherty & Co., who are the bankers and syndicate managers of the merger, are to receive $500,000 in common stock of the new company for their services at this time and an additional $500,000 in 10 per cent. installments as the outstanding common stock is increased.

1910 CHRISTMAS DECORATION

Some of us who were once younger, used to hear a good deal about a certain hot place intimately and permanently concerned with our hereafter and future welfare. The place was vividly described even to the fuel mixture and the material used for paving the floors. It is all just as true today as it was then. But the cold hell after is another proposition. Winter is a cold reality. We have intimate knowledge of what is coming our way next December. The subject is one of the propositions of "tomorrow," even though you can convince yourself that there is "no tomorrow," that tomorrow never comes. The cold will come even if tomorrow does not. Prepare for it. Put away a supply of winter fuel. Lowell Gas Light Company Coke at $4.75 per chaldron. It makes a splendid Christmas decoration for the cellar and supplies real cheer for the entire home.

FOR POST OFFICE

Examination for Clerks and Carriers

The federal civil service department has sent out the following notice of an examination for postal clerks and carriers in the local post office:

The next annual examination for clerks and carriers in the Lowell, Mass., post office will take place on Nov. 5, 1910, at Lowell, Mass.

Applicants must have reached their 18th birthday, but not their 45th birthday, on the date of the examination. They must be citizens of the United States, and those of the male sex are required to be at least 5 ft. 4 inches tall without shoes and not less than 125 lbs. in weight in ordinary clothing. Full particulars in regard to this examination, with specimen questions, are furnished with each application blank and can be obtained from G. H. Gurney, local secretary, at the Lowell, Mass., post office, or Edward E. Stephens, secretary First civil service district, Boston, Mass. Applications must be filed with the latter not later than Oct. 1, 1910.

PROF. JAMES' ESTATE
CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 7.—The entire estate of the late Professor William James of Harvard university is bequeathed to his widow, Alice H. James, under the terms of the educator's will which was filed for probate in the East Cambridge court today. The value of the estate is not given. Mrs. James and her son, Henry James, Jr., a namesake of Professor James' brother, the novelist, are named as co-executors. The will was dated August 29, 1885.

Member of the Associated Press

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

There has been enough talk about that "feeble-minded bill." The city should pay the bill and stop quibbling. If the attorney general should proceed to collect the bill he would not look to the Charity Board.

PUNISHING CANNON DEMOCRATS

The Cannon democrats are falling by the wayside as fast as they go before the voters for reelection. That is the treatment they deserve. Reps. Livingstone and Howard, among the oldest members in congress in point of service, have been defeated in the Georgia primaries.

When a democrat betrays his party to the extent of supporting a man whose chief distinction has been the dexterity with which he turned down democratic measures, that democrat should be called to account.

The Cannon republicans, as well as the Cannon democrats, should be downed by all fair-minded people in the interest of fair play. Cannonism is in bad odor and the decent republicans who have downed this parliamentary autocrat deserve credit for upholding fair play and the dignity of the national house.

The time has come when the democratic party can accomplish little or nothing except it insists upon strict loyalty from all its elected officials in state and nation. The men who would sell out to Cannon are unworthy the name of democrats and deserve not only to be retired from office but to be driven out of the democratic party.

STOP THE SPREAD-EAGLE ORATORY

It would be a benefit rather than an injury to this country if the people were less talked at, if Col. Roosevelt and some of the other prominent spellbinders who are talking for effect would retire from the limelight and let the people alone.

The harangues that serve only the political purposes of those who deliver them are of no use to the country as a whole. We have widespread discontent, but this continual discussion of public affairs without any chance of its being followed up by action serves only to increase the discontent.

The people need relief from this storm of public controversy, involving Roosevelt, Taft, Ballinger, Sherman, Pinchot and a great many others. Besides, when a man like Roosevelt gets up and criticizes the decisions of the supreme court of the United States he is little short of inciting the multitude to riot and insurrection. Had some democrat assailed the supreme court as he has done, his name would be associated with the "undesirable citizens" whom Roosevelt himself has stigmatized as enemies of the country.

We presume these political tours must be tolerated until something breaks. According to Roosevelt's own admission his tour is paid for by the magazine of which he is editor. He is in an advertising scheme, the success of his magazine being the prime consideration, and for this he is stirring up the people of the country. His own personal object is probably to place himself in line for the presidential nomination in 1912. Other candidates may also have ulterior motives to serve but the country is the loser in the increased discontent and unrest resulting from such campaigns.

ROOSEVELT FAVORS WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

Among the very best reforms advocated by Colonel Roosevelt is the workmen's compensation act. This is not original with Mr. Roosevelt, but he embodies it among his policies just as if nobody had ever heard of it before. It is now part and parcel of his political creed, and if his advocacy helps along this much-needed reform the workmen of this country will have reason to rejoice.

The whole subject of the workmen's compensation act has been discussed repeatedly in this paper. We can go further and say that several years ago a Lowell man was a member of a committee to consider the relations existing between employer and employee. That committee recommended a workmen's compensation act, and drafted a measure that has since been before the legislature in practically the same form, but failed of enactment.

It is quite probable that a workmen's compensation act will be among the reforms of the near future in this state. This method of compensating injured employes has been adopted with the most satisfactory results all over a score of countries. The United States, however, is behind in this matter, and it is quite likely that Massachusetts will take the lead in giving the country one of the best acts of this kind in existence. At the last session of the legislature the matter was discussed, and Speaker Walker declared that it was the most important subject that had been considered during the session.

The measure will come up again, and since it is thoroughly understood by employers, public service companies and labor organizations, it is likely that instead of formidable opposition there will be an overwhelming majority in favor of enacting the measure.

When a workman is injured in a factory it is not just or right that he should be compelled to sue for damages. As a rule the average workman is not well equipped to enter litigation with a big corporation. He usually gets the worst of the fight even where his claims are reasonable and just.

Where a workman is killed, it is still worse to have his family left to fight a legal battle with but slight prospects of success.

There should be a law to fix the compensation according to the extent of the injury. With this fact known in advance employers would know just what to expect when an accident would occur.

Insurance companies might have to rearrange their rates on liability insurance, but that should not be allowed to militate against the bill. The companies as a rule are capable of taking care of themselves, and will always insist upon receiving a sufficient amount for the protection afforded.

SEEN AND HEARD

"I will make the corporation come to time," shouted Mr. Roosevelt in Toledo.

He made the Equitable Life come to time with a $50,000 campaign contribution.

He made the beef trust come to time with a big campaign contribution.

He made the Standard Oil come to time with another big campaign contribution.

He made E. H. Harriman, after a personal conference in the White house, come to time with $200,000.

These are only a few of the corporations and plutocratic interests Mr. Roosevelt made come to time in the 1904 campaign when he was a candidate for the presidency to succeed himself.

Turn on the light!—New York World.

I'D LIKE TO GO

It seems to me I'd like to go Where bells don't ring, nor whistles blow, Nor clocks don't strike, nor guns don't sound, And I'd have stillness all around—

Not real stillness, but just the trees' Low whisperings, or the hum of bees, Or brooks' faint bubbling over the stones, In strange, softly tangled tones.

Or maybe a cricket or katydid, Or the songs of birds in the hedgehog hid, Or just some such sweet sounds as these To fill a tired heart with ease.

If 'twere't for sight and sound and smell

I'd like the city pretty well; But when it comes to getting rest, I like the country lots the best.

Sometimes it seems to me I must Just quit the city's din and dust And get out where the sky is blue, And say, now, how does it seem to you? —Eugene Field

A wanderer from the empire of the crescent, desiring to shake off the allegiance of Turkey, appeared before Assistant Clerk Barney in the office of the Superior court at Taunton, last week, and made application for first papers. The applicant was a woman, and while she could not speak any amount of English, yet was most intelligent. When asked if she wanted to become a citizen of this country she raised her eyes and declaimed most fervently that she not only wanted the blessing of living here always, but she "was going to die here, yes." Whereupon she was served with the first papers and left supremely happy.

HOW HAPPY THE WORD 'CUTICURA' SOUNDS TO ME

For It Cured My Baby of Itching, Torturing Eczema. First Came when Between 3 and 4 Weeks Old. Used Everything Imaginable. 2 Cakes Soap and One Box Ointment Cured.

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable. I had one doctor's bill after another but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I was obliged to use Cuticura. It cured her in a few days. I had nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can't praise Cuticura enough. I can tell my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old she has been healthy and was never without the terrible eruption but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child. Mrs. H. E. Rosenthal, 2004 Williston St., Baltimore, Md., Mar. 10, 1910."

country newspaper cannot well avoid treading on somebody's toes continually; he must expect to be censured often for unintentional failures; must expect hard work and little thanks; must expect to be called a coward because he does not "pitch into" everything that somebody thinks is wrong, and a fool if he speaks out too plainly on public evils; he must expect to grind other people's axes—and turn the grindstone himself. Still we think it is one of the noblest professions on earth; the one in which the earnest man can do the most good to his fellow man, and in which an honorable man can wield much power for good.—Wareham Courier.

JUST A TRADE CIRCULAR

(Johnstown Democrat.) We are indebted to a local jobber for an interesting and instructive trade circular issued by a New York importing house. It is a "cold-blooded" commercial document and utterly unconscious of the dynamite it contains.

It is merely a "trade circular" to be exact. All quotations in it are subject to the fluctuations of the market, but at the end of the circular we find that the following deductions (on account of the tariff) are to be made from all goods sent on bond to Canada:

Currents, per lb. 2 c
Dates, per lb. 1 c
Almonds (in shell) per lb. 4 c
Filberts per lb. 4 c
Walnuts, per lb. 3 c
Migs, per lb. 2 1/2 c
Peanuts per lb. 1 c

So there you have a little educational treatise on the tariff. It shows that the American consumer—the woman who does the buying—must pay all the way from a cent to four cents a pound more for such delicacies as those listed above as her Canadian sister. Thus the currents for which the American dealer pays 7 1/2 cents are sold to the Canadian dealer for 5 1/2; the almonds for 11 cents; the walnuts for which the American pays 13 1/2 the Canadian buys for 10 1/2; and so through the list.

These business circulars are sometimes more illuminating than they seem. Johnstown Democrat.

The Great

LOCKHART MILL-END SALE

Opens Friday at 9 a. m.

We want the people of Lowell and vicinity to read the prices we will quote TOMORROW on new goods of dependable character.

Perhaps you are not aware that extensive alterations are going on in our store—Progress must have its way—we are going to take on 4000 extra feet of selling space. Breaking through the walls into our new annex necessitated taking two doctor's offices, a tailor's, a dressmaker's rooms and a large hall, in all seven large rooms—Brickmasons, carpenters, plumbers, electricians, etc., are in our way.

So much merchandise is coming in for this Mill End Sale—and will continue to arrive daily from now on—that we haven't room to hold it as we ordinarily would do—we must get rid of it as fast as it arrives—it will be thrown on the counters and sold at decided price reductions during this sale.

Under our present congested conditions we are forced to unload. We are going to have more room for our great Cloak and Suit departments and we are going to open up a new Millinery department—the best of its kind in the city.

Do you wonder we've grown when you take into consideration that we give our patrons merchandise of a substantial quality at a lower price than that asked by others?

DON'T FORGET THE MILL-END SALE FRIDAY

We need Experienced Salespeople especially for our Rug, Bedding and Upholstery Departments. Apply at once.

LYNN ALDERMEN

To Discharge Police Officer Who Was Candidate for Mayor

LYNN, Sept. 7.—The Lynn aldermanic committee on police last evening recommended that Reserve Officer Ebern Sears, Jr. be discharged from the force, the committee having decided that he is guilty of charges of insubordination and of creating a disturbance in the office of the deputy chief of police. Sears has asked for a hearing before the full board, and this will be granted him Monday evening.

Sears was a candidate for mayor of Lynn last year and announced that he is to be a candidate for that office this fall. He was formerly in charge of the liquor squad, and attracted attention by his success in catching illegal liquor dealers. He has many friends throughout the city and is not without enemies.

The present trouble of Sears grew out of an affair in which his wife was involved. Mrs. Sears was recently found guilty of an assault on Mrs. Mary Disbrow. The altercation between the women arose from Mrs. Sears' assertion that her husband had been giving too much attention to Mrs. Disbrow. Word that the women were in collision reached Capt. William Rowe at police headquarters and the captain sent Patrolman Sader to the scene. Mrs. Sears was not arrested, but voluntarily accompanied the officer to the captain's office.

While Mrs. Sears was telling her version of the affair to the captain, Reserve Officer Sears entered the room and, asserting that he had witnessed the assault, ordered Capt. Rowe to place Mrs. Sears under arrest.

Thereupon, it is alleged, Sears grabbed his wife by the arm, explaining: "I place you under arrest for assault." Capt. Rowe seized Sears by the arm and ordered him to release his hold on Mrs. Sears. The superior officer then told Mrs. Sears to leave the station, and told Patrolman Sader to notify Mrs. Disbrow that she could make a complaint to the court against Mrs. Sears if she cared to do so. The captain also ordered Sears from the room.

Later, it is charged, Sears entered Capt. Rowe's presence and shouted to him: "I shall prefer charges against you for neglect of duty."

Chief Clarke, on information from Capt. Rowe, preferred charges against Sears, and it was on these charges that the committee last evening reported to the board.

Mrs. Sears was brought before Judge Lamphus on complaint of Mrs. Disbrow and found guilty of assault. Her case was placed on the docket.

has received an offer from the Watch and Ward society to be that organization's agent in Lynn, and that he will expose unsavory conditions in the city. Sears himself last evening had no comment to make on the situation.

JOHN J. McGRANE

MADE KNIGHT COMMANDER OF ST. GREGORY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—John J. McGrane, a jeweller and head of McGrane's Catholic tours, has been appointed a knight commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great by Pope Pius X. Four years ago he was made by the pontiff a Knight of St. Gregory. The new title gives Mr. McGrane special privileges, such as occupying a distinguished post at papal ceremonies.

Mr. McGrane, who lives at 36 1/2 River erside drive, is now travelling abroad. As has been his custom for years, he conducted a party of about 200 pilgrims, all prominent American Catholics, on a trip to Rome. They had an audience with the pope on Aug. 8 and later with Cardinal Merry del Val, secretary of state. Then they started for the Oberammergau "Passion Play." They will embark for home at Queenstown Sept. 18 on board the Lusitania.

Next to his annual pilgrimage Mr. McGrane is best known in his services to the Catholic church through his gift of the property and building at Hawthorne, this state, which is now Christopher Columbus College. It is a training school for Italian young men who are preparing for the priesthood.

STAMPING

POLITICAL GOSSIP

Distribution of Nomination Papers Has Started

And With It the Gossip of What's Going to Happen in State Politics — Some Interesting Contests to be Decided—Caucuses Fall on September 27

Labor Day is over and now for politics. The caucuses are called for September 27th but up to today there has been little political talk.

Today, however, appears to be the opening day of the political season for politics was the principal topic of discussion down town this morning.

The republicans have opened their headquarters at the corner of Central and Market streets, but Secretary Gowan informed the writer this morning that the opening of the season has been fairly as the nomination papers did not arrive until yesterday.

The democrats opened their headquarters in the Rockingham building this morning with Sec. Owen Monahan in charge. This year the committee has secured the entire floor and has installed a new secretary, Mr. J. Higgins.

The time for filing nomination papers closes on September 15th.

The State Delegations

The democrats are particularly interested in the state convention this year, owing to the uncertainty as to the identity of the man who will lead the democratic forces as the candidate for the governor. In years gone by, credentials to the democratic state convention have gone begging, but this year there is a big demand for a place on the delegation from all the wards.

The republicans this year are not particularly interested in the state convention as there is no contest for the head of the ticket. But the republicans have a convention in which all want to get, and that is the district attorney affair. The last one has gone down in history without a precedent, the contest which resulted in the election of District Attorney John J. Higgins, taking a day and a night. No district attorney in Middlesex county has ever had as tough a hard work as had Mr. Higgins, for he had to fight about all the lawyers in the state within the past two years have come within his jurisdiction. Now comes Max Waldo Collier, a Cambridge lawyer and an anti-county ring man who is an avowed candidate against Mr. Higgins and who wants to meet him on the stump, and another heavy one informed the writer that in the event of Mr. Higgins running again, he would withdraw, but that was long ago. Now the information comes from the lower end of the county that Mr. Collier is in the contest.

The Congressional Contests

It was reported around town and at City hall this morning that Hon. James B. Casey will be a candidate for congress against Col. James H. Carmichael in the democratic primaries. Col. Carmichael has been in the field for some time but as yet Mr. Casey has not given a decided answer though friends of his this morning felt confident that he would be a candidate. On the republican end Col. Ames, while fighting strenuously for the position of United States senator, expects that a loyal constituency will tender him the nomination for congress without any question. The colnet figures that if he can't have one position he will be satisfied with the other. The political spectacle of one man running for congress and United States senator at the same time is probably a new record for political activity.

The Senatorial Districts

In the country senatorial district which includes wards five and nine of Lowell and most of the remainder of the universe, the Ames and Lodge forces are to have a lively battle, the Ames people attempting to unseat the present incumbent, Senator Bennett, who is a strong Lodge man. The Ames candidate in this district is James W. Kilham of Reading and the Ames supporters sincerely hope that he will be elected. Alderman Owen Brennan may be the democratic candidate.

In the eighth Middlesex district ex-Rep. Henry W. Draper and Hon. Fisher H. Pearson are to be the democratic candidates. Senator Hubbard is seeking a fourth term and he is opposed by ex-Rep. Charles F. Varnum and Ames P. Best, the well known milk man. Mr. Best is new to the field as a candidate never having held office before.

The Representative Field

The representative field in most districts has a sufficient number of candidates to make matters interesting. In the 14th district Rep. Stevens will get the nomination unopposed while John J. Mahoney in all probability will be re-nominated by the democrats. Town Clerk Brennan of Dracut was prominently mentioned as a candidate but he has not consented to run. Word one will present no candidate against Rep. Stevens according to an appointment which gives Dracut the nomination this year.

In the 15th district a red hot three cornered fight is on, though not a noisy one for in this district which includes ward two, alone, the candidates work by house to house canvasses rather than through rallies and public demonstrations. The candidates are Rep. Edward Keenan, who is seeking a second term; Dennis Murphy, who was a candidate last year, running well, and Councilman Goulin. All three have large followings and it is a good bet that they will get out a phenomenal vote on caucus day. In this district a nomination means an election.

So it is in the 16th district, which includes wards four and five, a nomination means an election, and by the withdrawal of Rep. Martin Conter, five active candidates have jumped in and are hustling. The five are Eugene Toomey of the school board, ex-Overser of the Poor Jeremiah McGlinchey, ex-Councilman Michael J. Markham, ex-Councilman John J. O'Connell and ex-Rep. Timothy Murphy.

The 17th district, which includes wards three, six and seven, and which is ranked as a doubtful district, has Reps. Erson E. Barlow and George Marchand seeking re-election while Councilman Kilpatrick of ward three and Councilman Howe of ward seven are said to be in the contest. This is the district in which the Lodge forces attempted to have a democrat run as their candidate. Stephen J. Monahan, who ran so well last year, will be a democratic candidate again and his friends expect to land him this time.

Rep. Charles T. Kilpatrick seeks a re-nomination, which means an election. In the 18th district, ward eight, and Joseph Craig is mentioned as his opponent.

In the 19th district Rep. Cuff will receive the re-nomination without a contest and looks like a winner again. Lawyer Marble is mentioned as his republican opponent, but as the result of the fine record made by Rep. Cuff this year he will have no difficulty in obtaining strong republican support along with the entire strength of his party.

PRIZE OF $20,000

American Aviator is the First to Try For It

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Weymann, the American aviator, started just before noon today in an attempt to win the special Michelin prize of $20,000 offered for the first aviator, who, with a passenger, flies in six hours from Paris to the top of Puy-de-Dôme after circling the steeple of the cathedral at Clermont-Ferrand.

The conditions of the prize demand a feat considered the most difficult yet set out for the aviator. When Mr. Michelin offered the prize, which by the way must not be confounded with the Michelin aviation trophy offered for the longest annual flight in an enclosure, it was thought by some that he was joking. However, the premium stood and subsequently Louis Paulhan announced that he would undertake the journey.

To Weymann goes the honor of the first try. He ascended at 8:45 a.m. and at 11:05 a.m. he crossed the starting line above St. Cloud. He used a Farman biplane and carried a passenger as required. The rules provide that the aviator may start anywhere in the departments of the Seine Atois. He must first turn a complete circle around the Arc de Triomphe in Paris, and arriving at Clermont-Ferrand, he must circle the spires of the cathedral and make a landing on the summit of the Puy-de-Dôme.

The trip must be made with two persons in the machine and within six hours. The Puy-de-Dôme is a mountain 4800 feet high near Clermont-Ferrand. The distance to be covered is 217 miles "as the crow flies."

Milkman Was Arraigned in Police Court Today

The case of Amos P. Best, a local milkman, charged with violation of the milk law—adding water to milk—was heard before Judge Samuel P. Hadley in police court this morning.

On cross examination the inspector testified that he shook the milk in the jars before taking the samples.

Said Water Was Added

Herman C. Lythgoe, state analyst, testified to receiving the samples and made three tests. He said the standard of solids in milk is 12.15 and his analyses showed that the sample numbered 12.554, which was taken from the pint jar, contained 11.72 per cent total solids, 4.15 fats, 7.57 solids, not fat.

Further tests showed that the specific gravity was 1.027 per cent, refraction of milk serum 35.7, and determination of ash of milk serum 55.7.

Continuing witness said: "I determined that water was added to the milk owing to the low gravity. The amount of water added was between 12 and 14 per cent. The other sample (that taken from the quart jar) was not watered and was above the legal standard."

On cross examination by Mr. Owens, Mr. Lythgoe said that the standard of fats required is 4.15 per cent, while his analysis of the sample showed but 3.35 per cent and the standard of solids is 12.15 and but 11.72 showed.

He also added that the analysis of the ash showed that the milk had been watered.

"Milk Was Not Adulterated"

Amos P. Best, the defendant, said Mr. McCarthy stopped him in Charles street on the date in question and took two samples and gave him two. He said he got his milk from various places and mixed the different milks in a large tank and then filled the receptacles.

"Did you make any attempt to have the samples turned over to you by the inspector analyzed?" asked Mr. Owens.

"Yes, I did when I received a notice from the state," answered Mr. Best. "Who did you go to to have them analyzed?"

"I went to Ayer's and saw a Mr. Flynn, later telephoned to the Textile school and found that none of the chemists were there, also tried Principal Irish of the High school but was unable to locate him."

"Did you try anybody else?"

"Yes, Prof. Prescott of Massachusetts Institute of Technology."

"Did you try Mr. Master?"

"No, sir."

Witness said he sent the samples to Mr. Prescott. He denied that he had added any water to the milk and said that both samples had been taken out of the same tank. He added that when he learned that of the two samples taken out of the same tank, one was found to be all right and the other it was claimed to be below the standard required by law, his suspicions were aroused, and that was what led to his having been analyzed.

On cross examination by Mr. Wilson, witness said that Walter Hartwell took the samples to Prof. Prescott in Boston.

Expert Testimony

Prof. Samuel C. Prescott, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who testified that he is a chemist, analyst and bacteriologist and had analyzed 50,000 samples of various kinds, said he examined the sample in question on August 26, the milk at that time being sour. The bottles, he said, were sealed and were apparently in the same condition they were when turned over to the defendant by the inspector. Witness also recognized the seal of the state board of health on the bottles.

Witness later delivered the samples to Herman C. Lythgoe, state analyst of the board.

On cross examination the inspector testified that he shook the milk in the jars before taking the samples.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE FOR BOYS ON MERRIMACK STREET

Attend French Parochial Schools Opened Today

Nearly three thousand children, whose ages ranged from five to fifteen years, wended their ways to the parochial schools of the French-American denomination yesterday. At St. Joseph's college 715 were registered, 1428 made their way to the school in Moody street which is under the supervision of the Grey Nuns of the Cross, the St. Louis parochial school showed an attendance of 614 children and at South Lowell, St. Mary's school, 76 pupils reported.

While the number which reported yesterday was rather large it will be increased very materially during the week for many of the children are not sent to school until the opening of the public schools.

St. Joseph's college opened with a new director, Rev. Bro. Leon Marcel, who comes from La Malbaie, Quebec, where for the past two years he has been directing the Marist school.

The Grey Nuns of the Cross have the greatest number of pupils in charge, 1433 reporting. Of this number, 916 girls registered at St. Joseph's convent, 188 small boys at the kindergarten, and 337 boys and girls at the Notre-Dame de Lourdes school.

Miss Eva Renaud is a new teacher at the school.

At St. Joseph's convent, Miss Dori-mene Jamin, who graduated last June from the convent of Conitcook, Que., has been added to the teaching corps.

Seventy-six pupils were registered at St. Mary's school. Miss Emma Crepeau again has charge, with her sister, Miss Antoinette Crepeau, as assistant.

At St. Louis' school, 614 pupils reported. The teaching corps consists of 13 sisters of the Assumption.

The Fawcettville school, now being built for the smaller boys and girls of that section, is not quite ready for occupancy.

BOARD OF TRADE HEADQUARTERS

The directors of the board of trade will resume their monthly meetings on September 15th when they will make arrangements for the dedication of their new rooms on the top floor of the Central building diagonally across the corridor from their present limited quarters. The new quarters are light and airy and the assembly hall will hold 150 comfortably.

DEMOCRATIC GAINS PEOPLE STUNNED INSURGENTS WON

Vermont State Ticket-Elect

Governor, John A. Mead of Rutland, Lieutenant governor, Leighton P. Stack of St. Johnsbury, Secretary of state, Guy B. Bailey of Essex, Treasurer, Edward H. Devitt of Montpelier, Auditor, Horace E. Graham of Craftsbury, Attorney general, John G. Sargent of Ludlow.

Members of Congress

First district, David Foster of Burlington, Second district, Frank Plumley of Northfield.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Returns for governor in the state election yesterday from 220 out of 275 election districts, including 190 out of 248 cities and towns, give Mead, republican, 28,694; Watson, democrat, 14,880.

The corresponding vote in 1908 was: Prouty, republican, 37,861; Burke, democrat, 13,607.

These returns show a republican loss of 24 per cent, and a democratic gain of 7 per cent. If the same percentage is maintained throughout the state, Mead's election is indicated by about 17,500 plurality, compared with 29,645 given Prouty in 1908.

The democrats are celebrating the results as a party victory, but the republican leaders are inclined to charge the poor showing to the ruin, which kept the farmers at home and in a small degree to the personal unpopularity of the head of the ticket.

The whole republican state ticket was elected, but the democrats made some gains in the legislature.

Both republican candidates for congress were elected.

THE DEMOCRATS

REDUCED THE REPUBLICAN PLURALITY BY 12,000

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Although there were a number of little hill towns still unreported, the republican and democratic leaders scanned the returns of yesterday's election today with considerable interest. That Dr. John A. Mead of Rutland, the lieutenant governor, should have been advanced to full governorship by a plurality of about 17,500 in an off year when the republican pluralities have run close to 20,000 on those occasions during the past 25 years, was a matter of fruitful thought on the part of the leaders of the party. The democratic managers, while not at all jubilant over the excellent showing of Lawyer Watson, the party leader, expressed a firm conviction today that the reduction of the republican plurality by more than 12,000 since 1908 was more than an unusual endorsement of democratic issues by the people of Vermont.

The democrats also made heavy business, try "The Sun" "Want" column.

Girls Who Work

are especially exposed to the dangers of female organic disorders. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has enabled thousands of girls to hold their positions. Read what these girls say:

Phila., Pa.—"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier saved my life. When I was 14 years old I was regular and then it went away for a long time. I went to many doctors but none helped me, so I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions. I took the Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and now I am strong and healthy again. I cannot express my gratitude to you."—Lizzie Weber, 4152 N. Fairhill St., Phila., Pa.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"Having suffered for five long years with suppression and great pain every month, spending big money for doctors and getting no cure, I at last went to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine with little hopes, but found just what I needed. To-day I am regular and have no pain, thanks to your advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Lizzie Steiger, 5510 Fleet Ave., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls will do the same for any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

These testimonial letters are the genuine and truthful statements from honest people.

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there is lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Lightning Set Bungalow on Fire

LENOX, Sept. 7.—In a terrific storm which swept up the Yokun valley late yesterday afternoon, the storm centre of which was over the Lenox golf course, a bolt of lightning struck a bungalow on the Lenox golf links, set it on fire and stunned Mrs. Samuel Seligman and Miss Cecil Seligman of New York, C. Howard White of London and Duncan Cryder, the New York club man, who had taken shelter in the bungalow.

Mr. White and Mr. Cryder had just finished their last hole when the storm descended. The Seligmans, caught in the downpour, had hastened indoors, when one of the bolts which had been playing over the field shot down and struck one end of the club house.

It ripped off shingles and passed downward through a brick chimney and fireplace into the ground below. On one side of the fireplace were the Seligmans drying themselves before a blaze which had been started.

In the men's lounge room Mr. Cryder stood before a table drinking ginger ale. The lightning knocked the glass from his hand to the table. The glass did not upset, and after all the excitement was over Mr. Cryder went back and finished his drink.

The bungalow took fire, but was extinguished by caddies and the rain, which fell in torrents.

Mrs. Seligman and Miss Seligman were taken to a hotel, where they recovered from the shock of the experience. One of the grounds men on the Hotel Aspinwall grounds was struck and splintered by an electric bolt.

ENGINEER RICE

SAYS DUST OF BITUMINOUS COAL IS DEADLY TO MINER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—That the dust of bituminous coal is an explosive more insidious, threatening and deadly to the miner than fire, is the assertion of George S. Rice, chief mining engineer of the bureau of mines. This is contrary to what has been the general belief, nevertheless it has been proved beyond doubt by the experiments of the last two years at the Pittsburgh Testing Station of the United States Geological Survey, which is now a part of the bureau of mines.

While many mine operators and miners have believed that coal dust would ignite from an explosion of firedamp, in a mine, nearly all of them contended that the dust in a mine free from gas could not explode. Consequently, in many mines where no firedamp could be detected, miners have paid little attention to the accumulation of dust from the cutting of the coal, and it is in these mines, Mr. Rice declares, some of the great disasters have taken place.

In a bulletin which has just been issued by the bureau, Mr. Rice refers especially to the appalling series of great, widespread disasters that occurred in the United States in 1907, as evidence of the terrible havoc wrought by dust explosions. On January 23, at the Picher mine, Colorado, there were twenty-four deaths; on January 26, at the Penco mine, West Virginia, twelve deaths; on January 28, at the Stuart mine, near Fayetteville, W. Va., ninety deaths; on February 4, at the Thomas mine, Thomas, West Virginia, twenty-five deaths; on December 1, at the Naomi mine, Pennsylvania, thirty-five deaths; on December 1, at the Alton mine, West Virginia, occurred the greatest disaster in the history of coal mining in the United States, 358 lives having been lost; on December 16, at the Volante mine, Ala., fifty-six men were killed; and on December 19, at the Darr mine, 230 men were killed. In this black month of December alone, says Mr. Rice, 548 men were sacrificed, chiefly from the effects of coal dust, which if not the initial cause, in all cases was the agency carrying death.

It was after these explosions that the federal government took up an inquiry into the causes of the disasters and established the testing station at Pittsburgh. The very first work was to prove to the mine operators and miners that coal dust alone would explode. The dust was placed in a cylinder 100 feet long and six feet in diameter, with a cannon imbedded in one end. This cannon was filled with black powder and discharged by electricity into the coal dust. In practice, it was found there was a terrific explosion, even more violent than that caused by firedamp. Each succeeding experiment went further to prove that coal dust is the real great danger of the mines. Firedamp, according to Mr. Rice, carries its own warning. Whenever gas is present in a mine in dangerous quantities, a blue flame rises from the safety lamp to notify the miner but coal dust, though visible, does not attract attention unless present in large quantities. Firedamp is generally found in certain parts of the mine, and except in notable and very exceptional cases is controllable by means of the ventilating currents. It is by mischance a body of firedamp is ignited in a mine, the force of the explosion is terrific, but the effect is localized unless firedamp is present, or unless (as rarely happens) an explosive mixture of air and gas extends through large areas of the mine. In a mine that is dry, dust accumulates everywhere, and the best fire from the ignition and combustion of the bituminous dust may traverse miles of rooms and entries and even wreck structures at the entrance of the mine.

One of the unaccountable phases of the coal dust problem has been the disinclination of operators and miners to believe that the dust could explode without the presence of gas. The United States was not alone in this, for the French engineers, refused to believe in this until the great disaster occurred at Courrières in 1906, in which 1080 men lost their lives. Since that terrible catastrophe, a testing station has been established in France, and now the French engineers are fully convinced of the dangers of coal dust. Now since it is generally accepted that bituminous coal dust is explosive, the federal investigators have been looking for the remedy. Various experiments, in sprinkling the roadways of the mines, in saturating the air entering the mine with steam so as to produce a humid effect, in placing zones of stone dust in the mines, have all been tried with various success. A number of these experiments are described by Mr. Rice in the bulletin. Interesting chapters on different phases of the work have been contributed by such well-known men as J. C. W. Farrar, Axel Larson, Frank Linn and C. H. Scholz. The Bulletin, which is No. 426, can be had by addressing the Director of the Bureau of Mines, Washington, D. C.

Bass Overwhelmed Ellis in New Hampshire Election

HON. ROBERT P. BASS, REPUBLICAN NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

State Machine is Badly Wrecked —Cy Sulloway Escaped the Insurgents in His Race for Congress

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—New Hampshire's first state-wide primaries were featured yesterday by the victory of the progressive republicans over the so-called regulars. State Senator Robert P. Bass of Peterborough, the progressive leader, receiving the republican nomination for governor over Bertram Ellis of Keene, the regular standard bearer, by a substantial margin.

With half the state counted, Bass led Ellis by 5757 votes, showing unexpected strength in cities where Ellis was supposed to be stronger, and maintaining his strength in the country districts.

All the interest of the primaries was centered on the republican struggle, as there was no contest in the democratic ranks. The progressives received one setback in the congressional fight, Congressman Cyrus A. Sulloway of Manchester, generally rated as a regular, securing the congressional nomination in the First district over Sherman B. Burroughs, progressive, by a substantial margin.

Congressman Frank D. Currier had no party opposition to the republican renomination in the Second congressional district. Despite a heavy rain the republican vote was large.

The democratic vote for Clarence E. Carr of Andover for governor and for Mayor Eugene E. Reed of Manchester for the congressional nomination in the First district and Henry H. Metcalf of Concord in the Second district, all of whom were unopposed, was light.

Widespread interest was manifested in New Hampshire's primaries, the first experiment of this kind to be conducted in the eastern states, and the outcome of the sharp struggle between the progressive and regular republicans for the gubernatorial nomination was watched in the expectation of getting some idea of the popular feeling concerning the struggle for party control within the republican ranks.

One of the chief minor features of the election was the defeat in this city of delegates to the state convention of U. S. Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, chief supporter of Col. Ellis, and ex-Senator William E. Chandler, who had been prominent in the support of Mr. Bass.

That President Taft was keeping his finger on New Hampshire's political pulse was indicated by a telegram received here from him during the night asking for information as to the result of the primary.

THE "INSURGENTS"

SCORED A TWO TO ONE VICTORY IN PRIMARIES

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—By the ratio of approximately 2 to 1 the republicans of New Hampshire have followed the example of the party in California and Kansas and nominated a "progressive" candidate for governor. With only 16 scattered polling precincts reported out of a total of 289 in the state, Robert P. Bass of Peterborough, the "progressive" candidate, received more than 19,000 votes, against 9900 cast for Bertram Ellis of Keene, the "regular" candidate in yesterday's primary elections—the first ever held in this state. Clarence E. Carr of Andover, the democratic candidate, was unopposed for the party nomination for governor. He received nearly 6700 votes. The "progressive" victory did not extend to the congressional contest in the First district where Congressman Sulloway of Manchester, generally counted as a "regular," won a decisive victory over Sherman B. Burroughs, a Manchester attorney, who was the "progressive" candidate. Congressman Frank Currier was unopposed in the Second district.

The majority of the republican campaign, the tariff and other national issues played but little part, the fight of the "progressives" being directed against alleged control of state affairs by corporate influences.

The candidates for governor were the only ones running for a state office voted for, the legislature electing the other state officers.

The majority of prominent republicans regard the primary system as a marked improvement over the old system of making nominations through the election of delegates to a convention. The democrats favor the new law. Many members of both parties appear to be of the opinion that primary election day should be changed to a date nearer the November season in order to shorten the long period of campaigning which is now necessary.

FOUND DEAD

WOBURN MAN USED EITHER AND A SPONGE

WORURN, Sept. 7.—James McDermott of 11 Grove street was found dead by his sister yesterday afternoon when she returned from a visit to friends over Labor day. The man was found lying on his bed, a sponge saturated with ether and morphine, across his mouth and nostrils.

Medical Examiner Harrison G. Blake, who was notified, said the man had been dead at least eight hours. He declared the case one of suicide. The family have so far been unable to assign any cause for the act. For some years, and up to a short time ago, McDermott was a crossing tender at Central square, Woburn.

ON FISHING TRIP "JOE" FOX DEAD

The Famous Polo Star Passed Away

The many friends of Joseph P. Fox, the well known polo promoter and former player, will be deeply pained to hear of his death which took place yesterday at his home, 311 Adelphi street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The deceased was a Lowell boy, but left here to go on the western circuit playing polo. When the polo craze reached Lowell he returned and played goal tend for the Lowell team and enjoyed the reputation of being the star goal tend of the country. While a member of the Lowell team he met with an accident in a game which resulted in the loss of the sight of one eye while he narrowly escaped death from blood poisoning. Later he successfully managed the Lowell team and when the game went west he located in that section. For the past few years he has been identified with the management of skating rinks and polo teams in many states.

Mr. Fox is survived by his wife, Sadie, of Brooklyn, N. Y., his mother, Mrs. Ellen Fox of Lowell, two brothers, John and Thomas, both of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Nellie White and Mrs. Henry E. Bird of this city and Miss Annie Fox of New York. The body will be brought to this city for burial by Undertakers Malley & Sons.

Mrs. Fox, mother of the deceased, was removed to the Lowell General hospital yesterday morning. Her condition is reported critical.

THE MILK RATES

Whitings Announce Reduction in Them

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Close on the heels of the disclosures made yesterday, that Governor Draper had practically locked horns with the railroad officials over the new milk transportation rate, the Whiting people threw a bombshell of their own into the field by a circular announcing that hereafter they will only consider Massachusetts milk which is delivered on their platform at Boston and that they believed they would be able to assure the milk producers that this would not mean a reduction of more than a cent and a quarter per can from the winter rate agreed on at the June conference.

It appears that not only is the governor well into it, but even the lieutenant governor has taken a hand, and Senator Lodge has also quietly been trying to urge efforts for a reduction of rates or a return of conditions more agreeable to the farmer.

Just at this time, with elections almost within touching distance, a war of attrition is being waged, and it is certain to set the producers by the ears.

The Whiting company, in its special circular to the producers, sets the responsibility for this on the Saunders act.

Yesterday, at Worcester, Speaker Walker added to the discussion on the subject when he said: "The transportation problem is of the essence of the milk problem. The railroads must appreciate their responsibility. Their rates must be so made as to encourage and not discourage the production of milk near the site of the market. The rates must be so fixed as not to discriminate against Massachusetts milk. To this end the public authorities and the railroads must co-operate."

"It is folly for health authorities to set up and maintain a system of inspection here and then permit milk in competition with our milk to come over the border from unsuspected farms, where farmers are permitted to produce milk under cheaper conditions. This does not protect our consumers and tends to drive the milk producing business out of the state. This we cannot and will not permit."

"An aggravating factor in the milk problem is the large milk contractor. I am convinced that the milk supply of a great city like Boston can be successfully handled only on a large scale and in a wholesale way. The state must so act as to prevent monopoly and to encourage competition—competition in buying and competition in selling. The former to protect the producer and the latter to protect the consumer."

Beverly Kitchen Bars to be Closed
Wife is in a Dangerous Condition

BEVERLY, Sept. 7.—The board of aldermen passed an order last evening instructing the police of the city to enforce both the liquor law and the law against automobile speeding, after an animated discussion in the board, in which it was charged that the police have been for some time past notably indifferent to both these laws.

It was the first meeting of the board since the summer vacation, and took place in the new chamber in city hall. Alderman McPherson charged that liquor is being sold openly in kitchen bars and so-called club rooms, and that thirty people come here all the way from the dry city of Salem and get all the liquor they want to take home with them.

Alderman Loring scored the police for neglect to prosecute auto speeders, who, he declared, are not molested, though complaints are constant both from residents of the city and summer sojourners along the north shore.

Alderman Walter Robertson of the committee on police said that the facts just disclosed should have been communicated to his committee before, and that the police would have been instructed to get a move on.

Alderman Bell introduced the order calling on the police to put a stop to the sale of liquor and to speeding.

A NORTH JETTY

AT THE MOUTH OF THE COLUMBIA RIVER

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 7.—The next session of congress will be asked to set aside funds for the construction of a north jetty at the mouth of the Columbia river to supplement the work of the south jetty that is now almost completed. The Oregon delegation will be backed by the recommendations of the chief of army engineers and the secretary of war, so it is expected authority to commence work will be granted without difficulty.

The proposed breakwater will cost in the neighborhood of $12,000,000, and it is expected to place the work on the continuing contract basis that will assure its completion without halting the improvement.

The single jetty now about completed is not sufficient for deepening the canal into the Columbia river to the required depth of 40 feet. A careful measurement of the water on the bar at the mouth of the river, both before and since the jetty improvement was started, shows a noticeable gain in depth, which now reaches to about 30 feet.

The south jetty, by confining the river current and the flow of the tides into and out of the river, has caused the cutting away of the sands to a considerable extent. When the north jetty is built, it will end at a point about two miles north of the extreme point of the south jetty. This will narrow the flow of the river current and the tides at that point and it is believed by the engineers that the erosion of the river bottom will bring about a depth of at least 40 feet at low tide.

The south jetty has been built over six miles out to sea from the ocean shore at the mouth of the Columbia river. It is expected to extend it half a mile farther this summer, when it will be complete.

Crowd of Street Railway Men Leave Salem Harbor

According to a "Macaroni" wireless received at The Sun office at 2:01.33 1-5 this afternoon there is every indication that there will be a depression in the local fish markets this week. The despatch received at this office indicates that there will be such an influx of fish that the markets will either have to lower their prices or give the members of the fishy tribe away, for tonight a special car containing employees of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co., with a few invited friends who have their degrees as disciples of Isaac Walton, will arrive in Lowell. In another special car, which will follow, there will be several thousand pounds of fish, if the reports received at this office are correct.

The fishermen are, in the main, employees of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. and the conductors especially are adept in pulling in the lines as a result of their practice in pulling in fares. While fishing in fares on the cars it is a case of "in" and "out," according to the register; today it was a case of everything coming in and nothing going out, with the exception of a few of the seasick individuals, who, instead of pulling in the fish for food, fed the fishes over the side of the boat.

The party to the number of about fifty swung left Lowell at 2:15 o'clock, and after a most enjoyable ride arrived at Salem shortly after 4 o'clock and boarded Capt. Peabody's two masted schooner "Willie-ga-lunk." Owing to the low tide there was some difficulty in making the get-a-way, but Thomas Flynn, the popular conductor on the Christian Hill-Pawtucketville line, who wears one of those smiles which refuses to come off, took a headlong dive into the water and with the tow line tied around his waist pulled the boat off the flats where it was stranded. Tom is a wonder at aquatic sports and after being hauled into the boat he said that his towing of the boat was merely child's play. He used the Australian crawl stroke while he was acting as low boat and stated later that he did the stunt in order to get into condition to make the swim from Charlestown bridge to Boston light, which he intends to attempt some pleasant Sunday when the cars are not running.

Fat Fels, who travels on the front end of the car conducted by Mr. Flynn, was the real hero of the trip. By the way, Fels is a student of aviation and he surprised the members of the party at daybreak this morning when he launched his little monoplane and traveled over the water for several miles and returned. Fels, with consternation, his fellow fishermen inquired as to his reason for launching the plane in the deep, but he was there with the answer, stating that he made the trip in order to locate the fishing grounds so that the party would not have to lose time.

That Fels found the place where there were schools of fish goes without saying, for when the anchor was dropped Pat Hammersley was the first man to drop his line, one with 34 hooks, on it—and within three minutes he had brought several fine fishes to the surface. One of them was a corker, weighing 17 pounds, nearly as heavy as Pat himself, but the rental man, who accompanied him, was in danger of losing his reputation by hooking the small ones. Pat was out for "Pollock" and was told he would have to steer the bark to Pollock's rip.

While many of the fisherfolk were seasick during the voyage, Hammersley was there on the side of the boat from early morning until the despatch was received, for he did not fear seasickness.

Mr. Hammersley dispenses his remedy for seasickness.

EXTRA FOR FEDERAL JOBS

Batch of Examinations to Be Held Here Soon

Government Offers $1000 Per Year For Physicians and $600 Per Year For Trained Nurses, But Offers $2000 For a Civil Service Examiner

Persons who would like government positions under Uncle Sam will be interested in the following notices of federal civil service examinations to be held at the postoffice in this city at dates given below.

It will be noted from the salaries announced that the government doesn't pay very extravagant salaries for some of its positions, but the jobs are generally for life and in many cases there is a chance for advancement.

On Sept. 14 an examination will be held for the position of physician in the Indian service, salary $1000. There are five vacancies to be filled.

On the same date an examination will be held for printers in the weather bureau at a salary of $1250 per year.

On Sept. 21 an examination for trained nurses in the Philippine services will be held. There are six vacancies, three positions paying $600 per year and maintenance and three paying $500 per year and maintenance.

On the 21st also an examination will be held for assistant in wireless telephony at a salary of $1080 per year for the purpose of establishing an eligible list.

The best job mentioned according to the salary is that of U. S. civil service examiner, for which an examination will be held on Sept. 26. This position pays $2000 per year.

On Oct. 5th an examination is called for electrical assistant in the signal service at New York, the job paying $500 per year.

The government offers $1500 per year for an assistant chemical engineer in forest products for Madison, Wis., and the examination will be held on Oct. 5. On the same date also an examination for the position of assistant chemist in forest products will be held. This position also pays $1500. Likewise the position of mycologist for forest products for which an examination will take place on Oct. 5th.

Further particulars may be obtained from Secretary John W. Murphy of the board of trade.

TWO PERSONS KILLED

KALISPELL, Mont., Sept. 7.—Two persons were killed, 15 were seriously injured, five perhaps fatally, and twenty others suffered minor injuries in the wreck of an east-bound Burlington train on the Great Northern today at Coram, 30 miles east of Kalispell. The train was en route from Seattle to Kansas City.

PAPAL LEGATE APPOINTMENTS

Impressed With Loyalty Made be New Mayor of of People Lawrence

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—Cardinal Vanuelli of Rome has been profoundly impressed by the extraordinary enthusiasm manifested by the visitors to the Eucharistic congress here. The cardinal today requested the Associated Press to make known his appreciation.

"I am almost overcome by the devotion and loyalty of the Catholics who have assembled here," he said, "and have noted the cordial attitude of those who are not of our faith. Say for me that I shall not fail to make this known to the Holy Father."

The congress was formally inaugurated last night at St. James cathedral with the reading of the papal brief and discourses by the cardinal legate and Mgr. Bruchesi, archbishop of Montreal.

OUT ON STRIKE

SAUCEPAN MAKERS WANT MORE PAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A general strike of these tin workers who are known as assortment workers began yesterday in factories in Manhattan, Brooklyn and other parts of Long Island and in New Jersey. About 1000 quit yesterday and 1000 more are to strike today. The demands of the strikers, who were recently organized as local 300 of the International Alliance of Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, are for 10 per cent increase in wages and recognition of the union. Their present wages range from $9 to $14 a week.

The strikers say that all the large firms which make a specialty of this work are affected. They make tin saucepans and other kitchen utensils. There are about 10,000 in the trade in New York and adjoining towns, of whom about 2500 are in the union.

HUNTER SHOTS ANOTHER

BRAZIL, Ind., Sept. 7.—Mistaking the bare head of Thomas Holden, aged 19, for a squirrel, William Bowles, aged 25, fired a charge of shot into Holden's body Monday. It caused his death today. The two had been hunting near Holden's home, but had become separated. Holden climbed a tree to escape a squirrel, and Bowles fired the fatal shot. One hundred and ninety shot entered Holden's chest.

LAWRENCE, Sept. 7.—Mayor Cahill made his initial appearance as the presiding officer of the board of aldermen at a meeting held last night. He made several appointments, all of which were confirmed.

Daniel F. Daly and Albert Demers were reappointed and confirmed park commissioners. Edward F. Joyce was appointed and confirmed a constable. He may now be appointed dog officer. City Engineer Marble reported that it would cost $384,000 to cover the Spicket river.

Mayor Cahill, in answer to a question by Alderman Scanlon, said the committee on claims will meet as soon as the city solicitor can attend. The committee has not met since Ex-Mayor Kane's administration.

A large basket of flowers was on the mayor's desk in honor of his first meeting with the aldermen. It bore the inscription, "Good Luck," and was the gift of Violet Manion, daughter of Ex-Councilman John T. Manion. Mayor Cahill is the little girl's godfather.

POSTAL CLERKS

ARE HOLDING THEIR CONVEN- TION AT SARATOGA

The annual convention of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks is being held at Saratoga, N. Y., this week, but the local clerks are conspicuous by their absence. At a meeting of the clerks of the local branch, held recently, it was decided not to send any delegates.

It seemed to be a foregone conclusion that President Frank P. Rogers of Chicago would be re-elected and the principal matter to be considered outside of that was the proposed extension of the vacation period from 15 to 30 days.

TROPICAL STORM RAGING

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The local weather bureau has received the following advisory report from Washington.

Tropical storm of considerable intensity near and south of Porto Rico moving west by north. San Juan reports maximum wind of 72 miles per hour and a torrential rain.

(Signed) Moore.

GRAHAME-WHITE

To Try Flight to Boston Light This Afternoon

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Blue skies greeted the aviators at the Boston-Harvard aero meet today and the sun was quickly burning up the fog and haze that has hung over the field at Atlantic during the four days of damp weather since the opening of the meet last Saturday. The weather forecaster on the field predicted a fair day today and the officials of the meet announced that with the closing of the fog in the harbor the professional aviators would attempt the flight to Boston Light and return for the Globe $10,000 prize.

The forenoon hours of the meet today were occupied by the amateur aviators. William N. Hillard made a short flight in the Burgess-Curtiss biplane this morning, but only rose above the ground a few feet. Upon the request of navy officials it was announced that today bombs would be dropped from a height of 1800 feet if conditions permitted.

In the flight to the Light a government torpedo boat will follow every aviator who goes out over the harbor.

In preparation for his flight to Boston light in an attempt to capture the $10,000 prize, Claude Grahame-White in a Farman biplane tried out his engines in a sky dash over Dorchester bay. After hovering over the bay for a few moments the aviator returned, alighting in front of the grand stand. Manager McDonald of the Grahame-White forces announced that the English aviator would try for the Boston light prize this afternoon if the wind did not exceed 10 miles an hour. At 2 p. m. the wind velocity was eight miles an hour while at Boston light the wind had a velocity of seven miles.

It was also announced that Glenn H. Curtiss would attempt to break the speed record during the afternoon.

The Red triplane, which was damaged earlier in the week, was trundled out of the hangars this afternoon in preparation for a flight.

The first professional event of the day was the flight of Glenn H. Curtiss three times about the miles and a number course in an attempt for the speed record. Mr. Curtiss' time was six minutes, 29 1/2 seconds. On Monday Grahame-White covered the same course in six minutes and one second.

In a trial at accuracy in stopping, Grahame-White in his Farman biplane was unsuccessful in stopping his engine and bringing his machine to a dead stop within a circle 200 feet in diameter. He did, however, establish the first mark in this event.

BELVIDERE BOYS

TO ENTER HOLY ANGELS COL- LEGE AT BUFFALO

Masters William O'Connell of Everett street, and John Egan and James McCarthy of Pleasant street left yesterday afternoon for Buffalo, where they will enter Holy Angels college to be trained under the direction of the Oblate Fathers. The boys were given a great send-off by their friends, and made the trip to Boston accompanied by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O. M. I., and one of the companions, Lucien Brunelle, in an auto. They were the guests of Fr. Sullivan at one of the Boston hotels and enjoyed a fine dinner before boarding the train for Buffalo. All three boys are members of the O. M. I. Cadets.

THE MEANEY MATCH

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 7.—The Meaney match at 500 yards for the General E. P. Meaney trophy was shot and finished today. The five leading contestants were Captain Casey, Connecticut, fifty; Lieutenant Paul, U. S. Infantry, 45; Private Fehr, District of Columbia, 48; Captain Wiles, Massachusetts, 48; Sergeant Knust, New York, 48; Private Hamford, New York, 48.

CANADA HOISTS HER FLAG

DEVONPORT, Sept. 7.—The cruiser Niobe, which was purchased by the Canadian government for $1,075,000, has been commissioned for service with the Canadian navy.

She will sail for Halifax in October.

ASSAULTED OFFICER

Court Ordered Man to Pay a Fine of $10

In police court today Luke Dwyer was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on Patrolman Dolph Groux. The latter testified that while he was arresting a man last night the defendant interfered with him. Patrolman Lomay corroborated the testimony of the first witness. Dwyer was found guilty and fined $10 for assault, the case of drunkenness being placed on file.

Henry St. Lawrence, of Burlington, who was being arrested when Dwyer interfered, denied that he was drunk, but the testimony against him was damaging despite the fact that he had a witness to testify in his behalf. A fine of $2 was imposed.

Beer Party Interrupted
Bridget Cannon and Thomas and Susan Morse were having a little social party in a house in upper Goshen street last night when Patrolman Swanwick entered without invitation and gave the trio a free ride to the police station where they were booked for drunkenness. The women admitted that they were drunk but Thomas denied the allegation. They were found guilty and fines of $2 each were imposed.

Drunken Man in Court
"Not guilty," shouted Edward Woolsey, when the clerk asked him to plead to a complaint charging him with drunkenness. The case was about to go to trial when Edward showed signs of intoxication and he was removed to a cell below in order to sober off.

Other Offenders
William Campbell, who is on parole from the state farm will be returned to that institution. Stephen Richards was sentenced to five months in jail. Francis H. Collins, Michael P. Wall and Richard Cusick were fined $6 each and five first offenders were fined $2 each.

Susan Dawson, despite the fact that her husband complained against her, was given a suspended sentence of five months in jail.

Case Continued
The case of Tony Carrell, charged with larceny, which was to have been heard this morning, was continued until Sept. 10th. The postponement was due to the fact that the case was considered by the grand jury yesterday and if a true bill is reported the matter will go up to the superior court.

Damas and Rose Grennan were arrested by Patrolmen Abbott and Lemay for being drunk. The man was fined $6 while the woman was sentenced to one month in jail.

IS WORTH $340 THAT IS THE VALUE SET ON ONE CENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The convention of the American Numismatic association was formally opened yesterday morning in the American Numismatic society building at 156th street and Broadway. Bauman L. Belden, secretary of the Numismatic society of New York; D. Macon Webster, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Frank C. Higgins, president of the New York Numismatic club, made speeches of welcome. Dr. J. M. Henderson of Columbus, Ohio, answered in behalf of the association.

Lyman H. Low of New York made an address in which he asked the American Numismatic association to make notes and record of coins for the benefit of future historians.

Henry Chapman of Philadelphia was in town arranging a miscellaneous exhibition of coins and medals in which was the finest specimen known of a pine tree shilling, issued by the state of Massachusetts in 1652. Another coin he shows is a liberty cap cent of 1793, which Mr. Chapman bought recently in the Mouge sale for $340. He had previously owned it but sold it for $200. One of two grand plaquettes of Goethe, by Schaff, from which a medal was made is in the Chapman collection.

In the afternoon the Numismatic association took autos and saw upper Manhattan, including the coin cabinet in the evening they ate a Roman dinner in Colazzi's restaurant in West Twenty-fourth street.

FINANCIAL MATTERS DISCUSSED
MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 7.—The sessions of the St. Jean the Baptist societies were today devoted to the discussion of the financial matters of the association and routine matters of a like character. The annual nomination and election of officers will take place tonight.

Thomas J. Enright, Esq., has returned from his camp at Willow Dale where he and his family have been for the summer and has taken up his city residence on Fletcher street.

THE FIRST TRIP OVER THE NEW LINE TO WEST CENTRALVILLE

While the formal opening of the new electric line through West Centralville will not take place until tomorrow morning the first trip over the newly laid rails took place this morning when a special car containing Supt. Thomas Lees and Division Supt. Farrington of the Boston & Northern and a representative of the state railroad commission inspected the line. They found the rails, poles, trolley wires and everything in general in excellent condition and ready for the formal opening.

SELLS OUT BUSINESS
E. E. McAuliffe of Unity, Me., has purchased the business of H. E. Noyes & Son, commission merchant in Western avenue. H. E. Noyes died as the result of an automobile accident in North Chelmsford several weeks ago, and his son, Harry, who is engaged in the automobile business, did not feel that he could give enough of his time to the commission business to warrant its continuance by him, hence the sale. Mr. McAuliffe bought the business and took charge September 1.

AGAINST BALLINGER

Investigating Committee Wants Him Removed

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—At an executive meeting of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee today Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida, a democrat, introduced a resolution holding that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger was an unfaithful public officer and should be removed. Representative Madison, the republican insurgent from Kansas, offered a resolution holding that the charges which have been made by Gifford Pinchot and Louis Glavis, a former chief of a field division of the general land office, were sustained.

Representative James (democrat) Kentucky, offered an amendment to Mr. Madison's substitute resolution providing for the removal of Mr. Ballinger from office and Mr. Madison accepted the amendment.

The vote came upon the substitute of Mr. Madison as amended by the motion of Mr. James and the roll was called. Those voting for the substitute were:

Senator Fletcher, W. E. Purcell of North Dakota, democrat; Representative James Graham of Illinois, democrat; Representative Madison, republican, and Representative James. When the vote was being taken Senator George Sutherland of Utah, republican, and Representative Samuel McCall of Massachusetts, republican, left the committee room insisting that the full committee should be present. The democratic members replied that they had been months considering the evidence, that a quorum was present, and had a right to transact business. Senator Nelson, the chairman of the committee, took the vote, voting present himself and then made the ruling that no quorum was present.

Mr. James made the point of order that no member had raised the point of no quorum. The committee then took a recess until Friday when reports in keeping with the resolution of Senator Fletcher and the amendment thereto offered by Mr. Madison will be submitted.

LAUNCH SEIZED

Filibustering Expedition Was Frustrated

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—What the police believe to be a filibustering expedition was frustrated today by the seizure of a launch in the upper harbor near the Erie basin. A police launch, testing a new searchlight in the early hours accidentally discovered a suspicious craft and overhauled it. The captured craft contained two men and packages containing 19,000 rounds of ammunition.

THE BIG TUNNEL

UNDER EAST RIVER OPENED FOR PASSENGER SERVICE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The opening of the regular passenger service in the Pennsylvania tunnel under the East river connecting with Long Island railroad commences shortly after midnight tonight and a full schedule of 600 trains a day in both directions will be maintained.

GEN'L ELLIOTT TO RETIRE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Maj. Gen. Elliott, commandant of the United States marine corps, who has been at Gloucester, Mass., on leave of absence since the recent shakeup in his service, has returned to his duties in command of the corps. He will retire for age on Nov. 30.

BAD MONEY CIRCULATED

A money nickel, a very good imitation, is in circulation, and if you are in the habit of handling nickels, be hooves you to beware. The nickel is dated 1883 and is very fresh in appearance and bears the motto "In God We Trust." It is lighter and smaller, however, than the bona fide nickel.

GRAFT INVESTIGATION

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Within two hours of the beginning today of the Merritt legislative committee investigation into the charges of corruption at Albany, G. Tracey Rogers, for years a representative of the street railroad interests at the Albany capital, testified his brokerage firm had earned partnership accounts for former Senator Fred R. Green, and Assemblyman Louis Bedel, and had a number of senators and representatives on its lists. He testified to having in 1900 bought stock for James T. Rogers, republican leader of the assembly, and for the late Speaker S. Fred Nixon. Traction privileges in the streets of New York were passed that year. Mr. Rogers had said he had nothing to do with the passage of the bill.

Mr. Michael J. Johnson, organist of St. Patrick's church, left this city this morning for Montreal, where he will attend the Eucharistic congress, which opened in that city yesterday afternoon. During his stay in Montreal he contemplates several side trips to the historic cities in the province.

LAWRENCE PEOPLE

WILL NOT HAVE A POLO TEAM THIS YEAR

LAWRENCE, Sept. 7.—Lawrence will not have polo the coming season. That fact was decided Saturday when it was found that no suitable location could be secured in Lawrence for a polo rink.

A committee representing polo interests came to this city Saturday, talked over with a real estate owner about some vacant land, upon which could be built an ideal rink. This rink would be in the heart of the city and the land is large enough to allow a good sized rink to be built. The price asked was too high so the promoters left Lawrence satisfied that nothing would be done, by them at least.

Saturday was the last day set aside by these promoters in which to find a location in Lawrence. The time is rapidly drawing to a close when arrangements must be made for the polo season of 1910-11. A franchise would have to be secured and this, apparently, is the easiest proposition, according to the promoters.

The hardest thing is to secure a location in Lawrence and this seems impossible. All the polo managers want Lawrence in the league, as they consider this city one of the best polo towns on the circuit. Just now Lawrence is dead as far as polo is concerned.

MEETING OF OYSTERGROWERS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 7.—Franklin Horn of this city, president of the Rhode Island Oystergrowers association, has called a special meeting of that body for Friday of this week at Providence for the purpose of discussing the recent action of the Rhode Island shellfish commission in condemning a majority of the oyster beds on the ground that the water over them is polluted. President Horn thinks it probable that some action will be taken by the association in connection with the commission's findings.

The question of the payment of taxes to the state by the oystergrowers, it is understood, may enter into the discussion on the ground that as the beds are condemned the payment of taxes on them should cease to some extent.

QUALITY

It's quality that counts; it's quality that makes heat; it's quality that makes it. It's quality that makes possible the consumption of ninety per cent of the combustible part of it, leaving a light, clean ash. Lastly, it's quality that lessens your fuel bills—your cost of paying for dirt, refuse or unburnable. The Coals I handle, Lackawanna, Susquehanna, White Ash, Reading, Wilkes-Barre and Black Diamond deserve all the good things I and my patrons say for it. A ton will talk as loud as a car bell.

CRASHED IN FOG

The Steamers Gov. Cobb and City of Gloucester in Collision

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—In the thickest fog that has enveloped the harbor and bay in years, the steamers Gov. Cobb and the City of Gloucester crashed together in Broad sound yesterday afternoon.

The City of Gloucester was the more seriously damaged and she crept back to her berth on the north side of Central wharf with her starboard bow above the guards crushed in.

The dense fog was responsible for the accident, and to the fact that both vessels were feeling their way cautiously can be attributed the escape from a serious disaster with possible loss of life.

The Gov. Cobb, one of the steel propelled boats of the Eastern steamship company, in command of Capt. W. H. Allan, and crowded with returning vacationists was on her way from St. John, Eastport and Portland. The City of Gloucester, Capt. Linniken, was bound to Gloucester from the city with a big freight and 20 passengers.

In a statement to a reporter Capt. Allan of the Gov. Cobb said that he never saw the fog so thick. He said that before he got to the harbor he slowed down and it was so thick that he stopped his boat several times. At 2:50 p. m., when just inside of Deer island light, Capt. Allan heard the City of Gloucester dead ahead. He sounded the whistle several times and then signaled the engineer to reverse engines. The Cobb was barely moving when the City of Gloucester hit her a glancing blow on the starboard side, indenting one of the starboard bow plates. There was a deafening sound of crushing timber as the vessels came together.

The City of Gloucester, which is not half the size of the other craft, had the planking in her starboard bow stove in for nearly 20 feet. The break was about five feet wide. There was great excitement on board the smaller boat.

Women Almost Hysterical

Mrs. Florence Chisholm of Everett, who was in the women's cabin, was thrown to the floor and fainted. The other women on board had become almost hysterical and the officers and male passengers had difficulty in calming them.

Although the damage to the Gloucester boat was all above the water line, Capt. Linniken decided to return to port and she swung into her berth just before 5 o'clock. Among those on board were Mrs. E. P. Foster of Malden, Mrs. P. Anderson of Rockport, John Bailey and James Thorp of Gloucester.

The freight was taken out of the damaged vessel and transferred to the steamer Cape Ann, which sailed for Gloucester last evening. The City of Gloucester will haul over to the Atlantic works at East Boston to undergo repairs.

John A. Brown of East Douglass, who was returning on the Gov. Cobb with his wife from a visit to Portland, admitted that he was badly frightened. He said he was knocked off his seat by the shock. He said there was no panic on board, but most of the passengers got the fright of their lives.

The officers of both vessels acted with good judgment. The steamer Prince George, outward bound to Yarmouth, N. S., came down from the city, and for a time it looked as if the three vessels would come together in a second collision, but this was prevented by the skilful handling of the wheelmen.

So far as could be learned, the accident was entirely unavoidable. The damage to the Cobb will not delay her sailing on schedule. Agent E. S. Merchant of the Gloucester line said the damage to the City of Gloucester would amount to between $1000 and $2000. He said he was satisfied that both captains did everything in their power to prevent the accident and that it was unavoidable.

Owing to the accident to the steamer City of Gloucester, the company will discontinue the 10 a. m. trip from Boston and the 2:15 p. m. trip from Gloucester.

Barge Berkeley on Fire

Several near-collisions and accidents occurred during the fog, and fireboat 47, while answering a call for assistance from the barge Berkeley, which caught fire while anchored in Nantasket road, ran into a black freight boat and was forced to return to the city.

The fate of the barge caused some concern among shipping interests. Up to a late hour last night it was not known whether the fire had been extinguished or the barge had been consumed.

The Berkeley arrived here last Sunday from Lewes, Del., with a cargo of 1000 tons of fish scraps for the Bradley fertilizer works at Weymouth. She lay at anchor in the roads, waiting to be towed to her discharging berth.

At 2 yesterday afternoon the captain discovered smoke issuing from the forward hold, and the small crew immediately rushed to quarters and began to fight the fire. The engine room was filled with smoke and the men were driven back by the fumes of ammonia, which nearly overcame them before they could reach the open air.

The captain, realizing that their position was precarious, rowed ashore and telephoned the city for assistance. The tug William H. Clark and fireboat 47, with District Chief Ritchie on board, started down. On reaching buoy 2 the fog was so thick that the fireboat put about and returned to her berth. Chief Ritchie said it was so thick he could not see 10 feet away.

It was reported that the Clark succeeded in locating the barge and with her fire apparatus may have succeeded in quenching the flames.

Cormorant Ashore at Fort Warren

Capt. Chase of the steamer Howard, which groped her way up the harbor and swung into her berth at Battery wharf at 6:17 last evening, reported the city tug Cormorant ashore at Fort Warren, on the westerly side of the channel. Alongside the tug was a dumping scow which was also probably ashore. The Cormorant was nearly high and dry although she was standing upright. Capt. Chase said she would probably remain there until the flood tide, early this morning.

The Howard was 10 hours late on account of the fog. She came from Norfolk with fifty passengers and a big freight and first struck into the fog off Block Island. When Handerchief light-ship was reached the fog was so thick that Capt. Chase decided to anchor, and the mudhooks remained down for five hours. On reaching Boston light at 2 p. m. yesterday the opaque mass shut in again and the steamer lay at anchor between the light and Fort Warren for three hours.

Capt. Chase said that Vineyard sound was filled with a fog-bound fleet of schooners, tugs and barges.

The entire New England coast was wrapped in the heavy pall. Steamers from coastwise and provincial ports made port in the morning with their officers weary from a night of constant vigil at the wheel. Passengers had little sleep, for the whistles were sounded almost continuously.

Among the early arrivals were the steamer City of Augusta, Capt. J. A. Lett, from Savannah; the Capt. Hawes, from New York; the Capt. Brown, from Bangor; the Capt. Linscott, from Portland; and the Coastwise, Capt. Crowley, from Baltimore.

A wireless message received stated that the Liverpool line steamship Devonian, on her way from Liverpool, was 100 miles east of Boston light at 8 a. m. and would reach her berth in East Boston at 5:30 in the afternoon. The liner had been delayed by the fog and failed to put in an appearance. She is believed to have anchored outside.

On board the Devonian are 16 of the crew of the British tramp steamer West Point, which foundered at sea following a fire on board. Upon arriving here the castaways will be taken in charge by the British consul general, who will arrange for sending them to their homes in England.

ALDERMEN OPPOSED

Would Not Appropriate $3000 for Street Laborers

Wedding Gift Presented to Alderman Byam — Several Protest Against the Erection of Poles by Electric Light Co.—Charity Dept. Bill Up for Consideration

At a meeting of the board of aldermen held last night, Alderman Byam, who has taken unto himself a wife, was presented a silver set and there was nothing phony about it, either.

The presentation was by Alderman Qua and, just for that, the presentation speech was a very neat one. It was the first meeting of the aldermen since the vacation period and there was a deal of business on hand. The proposition to appropriate $3000, additional for street laborers was defeated on a tie vote. The communication from the board of charities to the mayor and city council relative to the feeble-minded bill, so called, was placed on file.

Alderman Gray called to order at 8:45. The first up was a hearing on the petition of the Lowell Electric Light company for the erection of a pole in Merrimack street. J. Joseph Hennessy, Esq., representing Annie R. Minnault, appeared as a remonstrant. The location petitioned for is on her property and Mr. Hennessy said it was an absolute subversion of the people's rights for the corporation to erect the pole and then to ask permission to do so afterwards. Dr. Robinson Mignault made stout and earnest protest. He said that when he returned from his vacation he found the pole in position, although the hearing on the matter was several weeks away. The petitioners did not appear.

The petition of Peter F. Tighe to have a building in Livingston street was granted. Hearings were held on petitions of the Lowell Electric Light corporation for the erection of a pole in Grace street, and of the New England Telephone & Telegraph company for the erection of a pole at the corner of Middlesex and Bulfinch streets; two poles at the corner of Wood and Middlesex streets, and one pole at the corner of Hildreth street and Aiken avenue.

Alderman Connors, representing Mr. Toupin objected to the company putting up a pole in Hildreth street, before being granted the right to do so.

Councilman Aikin, representing heirs of the P. Z. Hebert estate, was a remonstrant.

A hearing on the petition of William E. Hinchley, to keep, sell and store gasoline, was held. A hearing on the petition of the Thompson Hardware company to keep, sell and store gasoline at 100-102 Middle street and at 2 Shattuck and 151-153 Merrimack streets was held. A hearing on petition of the street department to keep, store and use gasoline was held. Neither petitioners nor remonstrants appeared.

A hearing on the petition of the B. & N., to erect poles in Hildreth and other streets was held. Alderman Connors motioned to adjourn, but before the aldermen had left their seats, Chairman Gray introduced Alderman Qua, who made the presentation to Alderman Byam. The speech was a neat one and Mr. Byam responded with a fervent "I thank you."

BEATEN AND ROBBED

Man Who Won Money Roughly Used by Guests

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Sept. 7.—

Breathless and shaking with excitement, Henry Koch of Mt. Vernon, a chauffeur employed by the William W. Swan Taxicab company of New Rochelle, hurried into New Rochelle police headquarters at 1 o'clock yesterday morning and told the sergeant that a man had been killed in his taxicab and thrown into the road, and he had been compelled to drive several soldiers he had in the cab back to the garage, and promised under threats never to reveal what had happened. He said the soldiers had paid for the taxicab with a $100 bill.

Later in the morning Detective Fennell found a man with battered face, shirt covered with blood and his clothes torn and covered with mud, waiting for the Fort Slocom boat at the government dock at New Rochelle. The man said he was Jerry Murphy of Jersey City, and had been beaten and robbed by soldiers. He declared he was going to Fort Slocom to "settle with the soldiers" and get his money back. Murphy told the officer that he had won $1000 in a game at Coney Island on Monday and had come to New Rochelle to celebrate.

He said he met Henry A. Cuff, a soldier stationed at Fort Slocom, who was an old friend, and that Cuff had introduced him to two soldiers who were with him. They went to the Lafayette hotel, where they had several drinks. Murphy said he had showed them his roll of money and told them how he had won it.

A taxicab ride was suggested, and the four started down the Boston post-road toward New York city. When near "Four Corners," Williamsbridge, he said the soldiers attacked him and beat him until he was unconscious. When his senses returned, he said, he was lying in the road alone, and his money gone.

Detective Fennell, accompanied the man to Fort Slocom, and there Murphy pointed out two soldiers, who, he declared, were the men who had attacked and robbed him. The soldiers are known as Hans Witzel and Philip Cabano.

Hidden in Witzel's locker was found $154.90, which Witzel said Murphy had given him to keep, for fear of losing it. Cuff was arrested in New Rochelle. He said that Witzel and the other soldier had robbed Murphy, and that he did not interfere because he was afraid.

He admitted having received $25 as his share of the robbery. Witzel and Cabano are held by the military authorities in the event of the New York police demanding them.

6 O'CLOCK SOCIALISTIC MAYOR Refused to Act on Committee to Receive Roosevelt

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—Shortly after Mr. Roosevelt arrived here today and before he sat down to breakfast at the Pfister hotel he found himself involved in a controversy with Emil Seidel, the socialistic mayor who had declined to act upon the reception committee which welcomed the colonel to Milwaukee as a contribution to the "Big Stick," a newspaper published by the Milwaukee Press club for this occasion. Mayor Seidel stated that "if Mr. Roosevelt comes to Milwaukee holding the same ideas which he expressed in an article published by him March 20, 1910, it is clear that he cannot serve the cause of honesty and decency in American political life."

"It is possible that I have misunderstood the article," stated Mayor Seidel, "but inasmuch as I am a socialist and as he has designated socialism as a thing which is against morals and religion—'abhorrent,' 'revolting'—which would 'replace the family and home life by a glorious state of free lunch counters and a state foundling asylum'—I am sure that he will be pleased that I am not personally connected with his reception in the city."

Charging the colonel with "a cunning and deliberate purpose to create a false impression" he declared that the visitor could lay no claim to the right of preaching either morality or religion or civic righteousness.

"In the speaking tour of Mr. Roosevelt through the west," said Mayor Seidel, "I fail to see anything of importance beyond political plans and designs. As such, of course, it is of no special service to the present city administration. The problems that now confront our city are of much the same nature as those the nation faces."

Upon being shown this statement, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"On this trip I have made no partisan political speeches and of course shall not break through the rule now by discussing either the state party matters, or the municipal party matters and at present, of course, the dominant municipal party in Milwaukee is the socialistic party. If anyone wishes to know my views on what is usually called socialism they will find them set out in such fashion that it is impossible to misinterpret or misunderstand them in the articles to which the mayor in his letter refers, and I advise them to read the articles themselves and not what the mayor says of them."

The Press club's special publication, "The Big Stick," especially disavowed responsibility for the mayor's utterances, saying that "Mr. Roosevelt will understand that Milwaukee's welcome is none the less wholehearted—hardly the less unanimous—because the mayor has seen fit to voice a socialistic dislike for the president."

"It has been stated to me since my arrival here," said Colonel Roosevelt today, "that in spite of Senator La Follette's having carried the primaries in fair and open contest an effort will be made to beat him in the legislature. I do not for one moment believe this, because any such conduct would be from every point of view an outrage and would be a deliberate violation of good faith. When in Oregon the democratic candidate for senator, Governor Chamberlain, carried the primaries and it was proposed that the republican legislature should turn him down. I very strongly and publicly took the position that such an act would be one of bad faith by the legislature toward the people and I take the same position here in regard to Senator La Follette."

PLENTY OF WATER

The Pumping at Two Stations May be Curtailed

The rainy weather of the last week or more has so decreased the consumption of water that the water department believes it can curtail the pumping at the Boulevard and Centralville stations to three days a week. The reservoir showed 20 feet, 10 inches this morning and that is "some" high. The number of gallons being pumped each day is 2,000,000 and the department believes that that number of gallons can be pumped on a three days' schedule.

SPALDING LAND OFFERED TO THE CITY

View of the plot of land offered the city for park purposes. The land is in front of the Spalding house in Parker street and has been offered the city by Hannah M. Spalding, who would have it named Parker-Spalding square in memory of two families closely connected with the Revolutionary period. The plot of land contains 1875 feet. The matter of accepting the land for park purposes went to the board of aldermen last night and was referred to the park commission.

FUNERALS

BROOKS—The funeral of Mildred Edna, the seven months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks, took place on Sunday afternoon. The services that were held at the home of the parents in Grantville, were conducted by Rev. L. F. Havens of the M. E. church and were largely attended. Burial was in Fairview cemetery, Westford. Macdonald, pastor of the Fifth Street Baptist church. The bearers were Sylvester Bean, Joseph Beckard, Adam Shaw and Robert J. Gilmore. Burial was in the family lot in the Edison cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

BOWERS—The funeral of Mr. Geo. L. Bowers took place this morning from his late home, 45 Marion street.

The deceased was an old and respected resident of this city, having been for a number of years a foreman in the street department. Through his kind and gentle disposition he had made a great many friends, as was shown by the large number in attendance at his funeral today.

The cortege proceeded from the house to St. Patrick's church, where at nine o'clock a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Joseph Curran. The church choir sang the Gregorian mass. Solos of the mass were sustained by Miss Alice E. Murphy and Mr. Andrew A. McCarthy. As the body was being borne from the church the choir intoned "De Profundis." Mr. John Kelly presided at the organ and also directed the choir.

The bearers were six of his fellow-workmen, namely: Messrs. William Pife, James Martin, Thomas Fitzgerald, Daniel Callahan, Michael Guthrie and David O'Connor.

There were a number of beautiful

AUTO DRIVER

KNOCKED DOWN OFFICER WHO HALTED MACHINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Police-Master of the traffic squad, who was stationed at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street yesterday afternoon, was told by a man in an automobile that two men were driving a runaway up Fifth avenue in a reckless manner. The runaway came along in a minute and the officer signalled the men to stop. One of them jumped from the carriage and began to abuse the policeman for stopping him. A sightseeing automobile drew up behind them, and the man from the runaway demanded that the chauffeur of the car be arrested. He then knocked Maher down.

One of the persons who saw the affair was Magistrate Corrigan. He told Maher that he would appear in the man's night court as a witness, but in the morning he found that the two men who were arrested said that they were William Bartel of 300 East Thirty-fifth street and Thomas Butler of 442 East Thirty-first street. Magistrate Appleton sentenced them to the workhouse for thirty days.

CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 7.—Forest fires that have been burning for the last week in the vicinity of Glenbrook are rapidly spreading and calls have been sent to this city for assistance. The flames are moving toward Maricopa lake.

1910 CHRISTMAS DECORATION

Some of us who were once younger, used to hear a good deal about a certain hot place intimately and permanently concerned with our hereafter and future welfare. The place was vividly described even to the fuel mixture and the material used for paving the floors. It is all just as true today as it was then. But the cold hereafter is another proposition. Winter is a cold reality. We have intimate knowledge of what is coming our way next December. The subject is one of the propositions of "tomorrow," even though you can convince yourself that there is "no tomorrow"—that tomorrow never comes. The cold will come even if tomorrow does not. Prepare for it. Put away a supply of winter fuel. Lowell Gas Light Company Coke at $1.75 per cord. It makes a splendid Christmas decoration for the cellar and supplies real cheer for the entire house.

DRINKING CUPS

The following opinion relative to the use of common drinking cups in the public schools was given by the city solicitor today:

Lowell, Sept. 6, 1910.

Mr. A. K. Whitcomb,
Supt. of Schools.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of August 24th asking my opinion as to the present status of the law restricting the use of common drinking cups in the public schools.

Whether up to the present time rules have been adopted by the state board, I am unable to say, but you can ascertain by communicating with them and they will send you a copy of the same, if any exist.

In reply to your third question, it is my opinion that if, under any rule of the state board of health prohibiting the use of the common drinking cups, buildings as it may designate the providing of a common drinking cup and may establish rules and regulations for this purpose. For the enforcement of the law, it makes any violation of the rules thus established a misdemeanor punishable by a fine.

Whether up to the present time rules have been adopted by the state board, I am unable to say, but you can ascertain by communicating with them and they will send you a copy of the same, if any exist.

THE LEBLANC CASE

May Not be Called to Trial Until January

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 7.—District Attorney Higgins announced today that the trial of Hattie Leblanc, the French girl who is charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover, the Waltham laundryman in Waltham last November, will probably not be held before January. The grand jury of Middlesex county is now in session and as soon as its findings have been returned there will be a session of the criminal court.

In November the district attorney

will have to argue against exceptions taken in several murder cases, including those of Chester Jordan, charged with killing his wife, Thomas Mantr and James Delory, who are accused of murdering Annie Mullins and Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, the Cambridge woman who was convicted of killing Stewart McTavish.

Another session of the criminal court in December and at present it is the belief of Mr. Higgins that the Leblanc case cannot be reached before January.

COL. ROOSEVELT

Visited the Boys and Girls Trades Schools

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—Col. Roosevelt arrived from St. Paul about 8 o'clock this morning and for nearly 24 hours will be the guest of the Milwaukee Press club on the occasion of its silver jubilee celebration. He was greeted by 3000 persons.

After breakfast at the Hotel Pfister, Colonel Roosevelt was taken on an automobile trip and during the forenoon visited the boys and girls trades schools and later took luncheon with a number of newspaper publishers and managing editors.

During the day the colonel will call at the Deutsch club and will hold a short reception at the Hotel Pfister. Late this afternoon Mr. Roosevelt will join with the newspapermen at the Press club in a Bohemian luncheon and following this will address a big meeting at the auditorium and an overflow gathering at the Hippodrome. A souvenir of Colonel Roosevelt's visit is the publication in the Press club of a single edition of "The Big Stick" containing a welcome printed in four languages and there are caricatures, editorials, all "Roosevelts." Ants were in waiting at the station to take the colonel and his party to the hotel for breakfast.

The absence of Emil Seidel, the socialist mayor of the city, from the reception committee, caused some comment among members of the colonel's party.

DANIEL A. WHITE CONG. TOWNSEND

Swept the State for Senator

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—The socialist state convention met yesterday at Paine Memorial hall, with an attendance of 35 delegates from 30 cities and towns, including two Lynn women, Mrs. Harriet D'Orsay and Mrs. Eliza J. Hitebeck, and unanimously nominated by acclamation this state ticket, the first in the field.

Governor, Daniel A. White, Brockton. Lieutenant-governor, Patrick A. Mahoney, Boston.

Secretary of state, Mrs. Harriet D'Orsay, Lynn. Treasurer, Sylvester J. McBride, Watertown.

Attorney-general, Harold Metcalf, New Bedford.

Auditor, Ambrose Miles, Lynn. The convention simply ratified the action of the conference of clubs, held Sunday and Monday, attended by 331 delegates who decided upon state candidates and platforms.

This state central committee was elected: Alfred Hodgkins, Cambridge; George Roemer, St. Hosten; Squire E. Putney, Beverly; Victor McConne, Lynn; Charles E. Blaisdell, Somerville; Calvin M. Verbeck, Malden; R. Colson, Saugus; John Mullen, Newton; Orlando Benson, Brockton; John Weaver Sherman, Boston.

The platform, read by Franklin H. Wentworth of Salem, which was unanimously adopted, demands, among other things, enactment of laws abolishing the United States senate and capital punishment; free meals for all school children; a legal maximum working day of eight hours; state insurance of all workers against sickness, invalidity, old age, accidents and unemployment; raising of the school age to 16 years; prohibition of labor by children under 15 years of age; prohibition of injunctions in labor disputes; equal pay for equal work to men and women in public and private employment; equal suffrage regardless of sex.

D. A. White, candidate for governor, and ex-Mayor James F. Carey of Haverhill, addressed the convention, of which Charles E. Fenno of Worcester was chairman, and Julius Haurin of Haverhill secretary. Albert Hess of Randolph was chairman of the committee on credentials.

The next state convention will be held at Worcester.

AN EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—An earthquake believed to have been about 4500 miles away was recorded on the seismograph at Georgetown university early today. The tremors, which lasted from 3:14 to 3:35 o'clock, were very slight and in an east and west direction.

GUILFORD IS CHAMPION

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 7.—The remarkable feature of the state golf tourney at the Manchester Country club yesterday was the winning of the Rollins cup and therefore the state championship of J. R. Guilford of this city. Young Guilford is but 15 years of age. Last year he qualified but failed to get in on the winning.

The semi-finals were: J. R. Guilford of Manchester defeated Cooper of Manchester, 5 up, 2 to play.

C. W. Bass of Portsmouth defeated Crosbie of Exeter, 1 up, 18 holes.

In the finals Guilford defeated Bass, who is one of the best left handed players in New England, up 18 holes.

SAYS SHE JUST COULD NOT HELP DOING IT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A penchant for babies, white or colored, and an admitted inability to pass them without kissing and biting them, landed Elizabeth McGurk, 35 years old, of 108 East 12th street, in a cell in the East 12th street police station last evening.

Mrs. Lillian Smothers, colored, of 4 West 13th street, put her 13 months old daughter Ruby in a go-cart yesterday afternoon and went down to the rooms of the Legal Aid society, at 123rd street and Lexington avenue, for some advice. She left the baby asleep outdoors. Presently she heard it cry and ran out, to find teeth marks and blood on its left forearm. Two little girls said that a woman had kissed the child and then bit it.

Mrs. Smothers grabbed the handles of the baby cart and pursued, accompanied by a trailing wake of children. The woman turned down Park avenue and at the corner of 113th street Patrolman Dillon, whom Mrs. Smothers had accosted, placed the McGurk woman under arrest.

"I like children, white or black," she said, "and when I saw that one I just couldn't help kissing it and giving it a little love bite. I didn't mean any harm."

She was locked up on a charge of assault.

WISCONSIN PRIMARIES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—Additional returns from yesterday's primaries in this state show the following nominations for congress:

Fifth district—Henry Cochens, republican, of Milwaukee.

Fifth district—Joseph P. Carney, democrat, of Milwaukee.

Sixth district—Michael F. Burke, democrat, of Beaver Dam.

Cochens is the former football star who nominated La Follette for the presidency at the Chicago convention in 1903.

On the democratic state ticket John W. Callahan of Milwaukee will be named for the office of secretary of state.

AMERICAN HELD

He is Suspected of Robbery

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Sept. 7.—The case of James A. Cook, the American conductor who was held in jail in this city for months as a result of the robbery of a freight train in his charge, was recalled by the arrest at Imputo yesterday of William O. French, also an American freight conductor, on a charge growing out of a similar robbery in that place. French, it is said, will be held for 72 hours pending an investigation of the robbery. Three Mexican brakemen were also placed in jail charged with being implicated.

BANK DEPOSITORS

Want to Know What the Bank's Plans Are

BIDDEFORD, Me., Sept. 7.—Between 200 and 300 depositors of the York County Savings bank, which was closed three weeks ago with an estimated shortage of $300,000 in the accounts of its former treasurer, met in an assembly hall last night and instructed a committee of five to call on the bank's officers for more exact information as to the situation and the officers' plans. The meeting was called at the instigation of several of the largest depositors to see what action should be taken by the depositors to protect their interests in the affairs of the bank, now under investigation by Bank Examiner Skelton and the trustees.

The hall proved too small to accommodate the crowd and many were unable to hear the remarks of those who spoke. A large number of women were present.

Edward C. Luques of Saco, president and Joseph Bolduc of this city was secretary.

Ex-Mayor Nathaniel B. Walker, retained as counsel by the originators of the meeting, addressed the depositors. He referred to seeming delay in giving out detailed information of the bank's affairs and thought the depositors were not to be blamed for taking steps to protect their interests.

Mr. Walker cautioned the depositors, however, against hasty action. He said that if the bank should be closed permanently and its affairs liquidated, while depositors would undoubtedly get a dividend within a reasonable time from such assets as were represented by mortgages on real estate, there would probably be prolonged delay in realizing anything from stocks and bonds held by the bank.

The market for these securities, he pointed out, was such that if a receiver were appointed they would be disposed of in all probability, only after waiting for better prices than now prevail.

Before resorting to any legal proceedings Mr. Walker advised the depositors to appoint a committee to see the officers of the bank and ascertain if possible more exact information as to the condition of the institution and also whether the officers proposed to attempt resuming operations or to liquidate. He thought the officers must now know enough about the bank's affairs to enable them to decide this last question.

The following committee was appointed to interview the bank officers: Edward C. Luques, Joseph Bolduc, Charles Walker, John J. Dunn and Llewellyn Smith. The committee expects to see the officials tomorrow.

Several of the depositors spoke in criticism of the slowness with which information of the results of the bank examiners' investigation have been made public.

Rev. Joseph B. Cassavant of Sanford condemned the policy of allowing the deposed treasurer, Richmond H. Ingersoll, now living in at his home, to be guarded only by members of fraternal societies to which he belonged. Fr. Cassavant said he believed Mr. Ingersoll should be placed under arrest and guarded while sick by policemen. His remarks were applauded.

He then the Bates college team. Since then he has developed into a popular member of the Fat Men's club.

There is a story going the rounds in baseball circles that the Cleveland baseball team offered the sum of $500 for catcher Al Smith. The Washington club, says the Lawrence Eagle.

The story goes that Lajoie and the rest of the Cleveland team saw Hack in action, and liked him so well that the attention of the owners was attracted to the work of the former Lawrence backstop, with the result that the offer was made. Washington refused the offer and refused to part with the player for any sum, no matter how large it might be. The Washington club feels that Al Smith is going to develop into the best backstop of the major leagues and certainly Hack's best of friends here in Lawrence hope that it comes true.

Lawrence was paid pretty good money for Al Smith, but the Washington club is satisfied that he was bought cheap. If Al Smith's ability were known he would have brought to the local club twice the amount that Lawrence received. Many here upon whose recommendation Al Smith was purchased, has done a good year's work and his club is satisfied if he does nothing more than recommending Al Smith. Catchers are scarce in the big leagues, and where a dozen pitchers can be found, not a good backstop can be dug up. The backstops are getting harder to come by for the big leagues each year and no wonder Washington is chuckling with glee in getting such a promising youngster as Hack Al Smith.

T. H. Murnane, president of the New England League and baseball writer on the Boston Globe, had two squibs in yesterday's edition that are of interest to local fans. The first one says: "Lawrence has a dandy shortstop in Carlstrom, who escaped the draft."

Carlstrom came to this city from New Jersey, being recommended to Lawrence by Joe Hartner, the old Lawrence centerfielder. Carlstrom has made a big impression since he came here, but has not had experience enough as yet to be warranted being drafted. With another year or so in this league, he should develop into a mighty good ball player, as he has all the earmarks of a corner.

The other squib says: "See, Murnane and Pres. Murnane of the New England league stamp the stories regarding friction between the league officials as manufactured out of whole cloth."

In answer to the attack upon these officials as published in the Lynn item the other day and which was quoted in the columns of this paper, notwithstanding the denial all is not rosy in the league and if there is no feeling between Tim and Jake, still there are many managers in the league who do many things kindly to the way that their president and secretary are handling the affairs of the New England League. It would not require much to create a grand old rumpus within the ranks of the league and it would not at all be surprising if an uprising came that threatened the continuance of these officials in office. No one knows that better than Pres. T. H. Murnane and Sec. J. C. Murnane, who are holding in the light of trying to make little of the trouble that is brewing.—Lawrence Eagle.

CRESCENTS VICTORIOUS

The Crescents of the Stony Brook league triumphed the crack Royals in a fast 10 inning game by a score of 19 to 2.

The feature of the game was the batting of Dillon and the pitching of Jenkins who had 15 strikeouts to his credit, for the Crescents. Welch was the star for the Royals. The battery for the Crescents was Jenkins and Bennett, for the Royals, O'Connell and Collins.

BOTH DIE IN AUTO

Judge and Sister-in-Law Were the Victims

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 7.—Judge William H. Andrews, a retired member of the New York bar, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Nicoline Neilson of Brooklyn, were hurled over a twenty-foot embankment last night by an unmanageable automobile, which came crashing down upon them, killing both.

The tracks of the auto from the road indicated that the machine had been steered straight for a ten-foot stone retaining wall, jumping from the wall and turning a complete somersault. Examination of Judge Andrews showed no marks, and it was the belief of the physicians that he was either attacked with heart failure or apoplexy before the accident happened, and while unconscious steered the machine off the road, or that he became frightened and lost control of the car.

The tragedy occurred on the Durham road, about three miles from Middletown, while Judge Andrews and Mrs. Neilson were returning from an afternoon ride. The machine was a one-seat electric runabout, which had been lent to the judge by the manufacturer pending the delivery of a large electric that he recently ordered.

Had not Dr. Harold A. Meeks, of Meriden come along in his car behind them the runabout, plunging its victims beneath it, might have lain in the ravine for hours without discovery.

Car's Wild Plunge

Dr. Meeks was about two hundred feet behind the judge's car, when he saw the runabout suddenly veer from the road and plunge over the stone ledge of a retaining wall which flanks the highway at that point.

As it went over the man and woman were tossed headlong from the seat. A single scream and a crash told the one witness what had happened.

Dr. Meeks stopped his car and ran down the ravine and found that both Judge Andrews and Mrs. Neilson were fast under the wreckage. He could not lift the runabout and rushed for aid to the home of Richard Davis.

When the machine was rolled over Mrs. Neilson was dead, and though Judge Andrews still was breathing and there was not a mark on his body, he died from internal hemorrhage before he could be removed to the Davis home, whither the bodies were taken pending the arrival of the coroner.

Steering Gear Broken

Dr. Meeks said the runabout was not going more than twenty miles an hour. Examination indicated that the steering gear had broken. It also showed that Judge Andrews had shut off the power just before the fatal plunge. The roads were slippery from the recent rains.

The breaking of the tragic news to Mrs. Andrews at their home in Portland caused her nervous collapse. She was reported in a serious condition last night. The Andrews had lived in Portland for the last four years, with the exception of last winter, when they boarded in Brooklyn, where Mrs. Neilson was a trained nurse. Judge Andrews kept an office at Broadway and Fulton streets, New York, and made frequent business trips to Manhattan.

To Remove Superfluous Hair

Dr. Deval, the eminent physician, says: "I consider DeMire's the only safe, sure and radical cure for that very common and objectionable hair superfluity known as DeMire's. It is totally different from the powders, pastes and other remedies which simply break the hair off, making it grow heavier than before after each removal. Booklet containing full information of this remarkable treatment, with testimonials of physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals, prominent magazines and newspapers, will be mailed free in plain sealed envelope, on request to DeMire's Chemical Co., Park Ave. and 12th St., New York.

No honest dealer will offer a substitute on which he makes more profit. DeMire's is sold at all good stores, including

CHAS. S. HAMLIN

Makes an Attack on Tariff Framing

BATH, Me., Sept. 7.—At the democratic rally last night Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, who has been mentioned as one of the gubernatorial candidates in Massachusetts at the next election, exploited his idea of the Payne-Aldrich tariff. Said he:

"Comparing the wholesale prices which prevailed in 1897 with those of April, 1910, we find that the increase, according to the Dun and Gibson index numbers, is 66 per cent. In other words, the purchasing power of the 1897 dollar has been reduced to 60 cents."

"The Lane report on the cost of living states that while the increased production of gold has exerted a positive effect on the cost of living by cheapening the standard of price and increasing credits, it is not contended that the increase in gold production is the dominant or even a principal cause of the rise of prices. This finding makes the conclusion of the commission that the tariff has not been a material factor in the advance of prices even more bewildering."

"The suggestion has recently been made by the president that duties should be revised by taking up one schedule at a time. When the democratic party attempted this in 1892, the republicans had only sneers for the 'Popcorn' tariff bills, as they facetiously called them. No one would rejoice more than I if such a method could ultimately be adopted. There is certainly no reason, however, why the notoriously indefensible jokers and disguised incoherents in the Payne-Aldrich act, now daily coming to light, should not instantly be corrected by congress."

"Our protectionist friends will find, however, that many difficulties will arise when single schedules are taken up for revision from the fact that most of the protected schedules are so interwoven that it will be very difficult to revise any one without at the same time also revising others."

THRILLING RESCUE

MADE BY YOUNG MAN AT ATLANTIC CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 7.—The most thrilling rescue of the season was made before several thousand boardwalk promenaders, when Thomas Young, 19 years old, almost fully dressed, swam to Antonio Pasella, who was drowning off South Carolina avenue. The rescued man was unconscious when brought ashore, but was revived.

Young was seated in a pavilion with Councilman Cuthbert, just before dark, when he saw a moving object about 200 yards from the shore. Suddenly screams were heard above the pounding of the surf. Young vaulted over the rail, dashed to the water's edge, and threw off his coat and shoes. Next he grabbed a can buoy left on the beach by life guards, and plunged into the breakers.

People swarmed from piers and hotels to watch the rescue. Young had got half way to the struggling musician when Pasella, venturing, Young plunged on while those on shore shouted encouragement. When Pasella bobbed to the surface, after sinking the second time, the lad was at his side. The drowning man threw his arms around his rescuer.

Young freed himself, after a struggle, and slipped the rope of the can buoy over the now exhausted bather, and towed him in.

Young got a great ovation.

GRAFT INQUIRY

Will Commence in New York Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—After months of preparation and delay the curtain will rise at last on the legislative graft hunt today. The committee appointed as the extraordinary session of the legislature for the purpose of investigating reports of corrupt practices in the legislature and the state departments, recommending reform legislation, will begin its public hearings in the aldermanic chamber in City hall.

It was definitely announced yesterday by M. Linn Bruce, chief counsel of the committee, that the disclosures made in the course of the Aldrich trial before the senate and the Hotchkiss investigation of the fire insurance companies in connection with the credits that appear in certain ledgers of the brokerage house of Ellingwood & Cunningham for the benefit of a number of influential legislators from the Odell administrations will be investigated first.

This part of the inquiry is expected to engage the committee several days. G. Tracey Rogers, whose activities at Albany in connection with the tracey lobby at the state capital were lightly touched upon both by Mr. Hotchkiss in his investigation and by counsel for Ben Conger during the Aldrich trial will be the first witness to day.

He will be followed on the stand by Broker James W. Cunningham and the various legislators whose names were brought out during the Hotchkiss investigation as having accounts in his brokerage firm. Those already subpoenaed include (Congressman George R. Malby, Ex-Senator John P. Aldrich, Ex-Senator Louis A. Gonsell and Former Assemblyman Louis Redell, both from Orange, Ex-Assemblyman James T. Rogers and former clerk of the assembly, Archie Baxter.

The books of the firm will be a conspicuous exhibit. They will be used to follow the Wall Street trail, and the disclosures which appeared in the testimony at the Aldrich trial will then be taken up. Later it is the purpose of the committee to investigate fire insurance and security insurance, as it is enabled to do by virtue of the powers granted it by the assembly.

It was announced yesterday that from now on the hearings will continue from week to week. The committee has planned to devote three days every week to public hearings and to give part of the remaining time to executive sessions in preparation for the future.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Clyde Fitch, the eminent playwright, after taking a look at his own comedy "Girls," stated that he liked it best of any play he had ever written; and unless his latest, which is soon to appear at the Opera House, is something of a world-beater, Lowell theatre-goers will agree with him that "Girls" is his best.

"Girls" was the attraction at the Opera House last evening and was presented by a company fully adequate in every detail to exacting demands. The audience was far too small for such an excellent production, but those who were there came in with enthusiasm for what was lacking in numbers, for "Girls" is one large budget of up-to-date, clean and refined fun, and it was served up in faultless manner by a well balanced company of artistic film makers.

"Girls," there are three of them, three up-to-date self-supporting American girls, bachelor girls, who row they will never marry and then all get hitched in the end after the funniest kind of courtships. The audience is not only left to all their secrets but meets them right at home in their bachelor apartments, and even the bold men are permitted to watch them start to retire.

Of the three girls one is an out and out man hater and she destroys temporarily any susceptibilities that might beat in the hearts of her two room mates. The girls take an oath which is supposed to be binding, but at the first opportunity two of them forget it. The third finally becomes a victim to a man's plea, and that's the story in a nutshell, though the development of the transformation gives opportunity for a barrel of fun.

"Pamela Gordon," the man hater, certainly was one until the inevitable and irrepressible man move in sight and she was most amusingly depicted by Mabel Mortimer. Kate West, who was the first to break the oath, was excellently presented and charmingly withal by Miss Kate Guyon. Violet Lansdowne, whose affections are finally bestowed upon a grouchy office boy, was most delightfully presented by Laurence Marshall. Alice Pennoyer and Adele Abbott had the remaining feigning parts of importance and each contributed her share to the general enjoyment of the play. The male characters were equally well taken. Ralph J. Herbert in the role of Edgar W. Holt, the conqueror of Pamela, kept the audience on the broad grin and made a splendid effort. George H. Suranov, Charles Durgan and Frank Raymond were cast in congenial roles, while the minor parts were well taken and a weak spot in the cast would be impossible to find. The scenery and accessories were complete and a smooth and thoroughly pleasing performance was given.

"THE MIDNIGHT SONS"

Low Fields' mammoth spectacular musical production, which ran for 36 weeks at the Broadway theatre, New York, will be the Shubert's offering at the Opera House next Friday and Saturday when this marvelous play of music, vaudeville, comedy and drama, with its cast of over 100 people, special vaudeville company of dancers and singers, English pony ballet, Pullman train in motion, and realistic theatre scene with an audience of 500 people, makes its first visit to this city. This engagement, it is expected, will mark an epoch in local theatricism.

It will be recalled by those familiar with the doings of the theatre and more especially by many who regularly visit New York that "The Midnight Sons" ran at the Broadway theatre for nearly a year. The exact period was 36 weeks. After that the play visited Boston, Washington and Philadelphia, rounding out 36 consecutive weeks without the loss of a single performance.

Some idea of the enormity of the production may be gained from the fact that the weekly payroll of the "extra" people averages nearly $600. These people are used in the marvelous theatre scene which shows the interior of an opera house with its tiers of boxes, orchestra seats, balcony and gallery. Every member of the cast and there are over 100 people—takes part in this scene, but it is necessary to engage outside "help" to properly give the illusion.

Another scene which never fails to win applause and invariably calls for wonderment is that showing a Pullman train in motion with a bridal party on the rear platform waving good-byes to the audience. This scene is patented and is used exclusively by "The Midnight Sons."

There are thirty musical numbers. Raymond Lubbell having written the score. Glen McDonough, who is responsible for "The Jolly Bachelors" and "The Summer Widowers," wrote the book and Ned Wayburn staged the production. Arthur Voelgin, of the New York Hippodrome designed and built the production.

As added features of "The Midnight Sons," Lew Fields will present the English pony ballet and a special company of vaudeville artists who take part in the theatre scene.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

It's easy enough to account for the phenomenal success of Laddie Cliff, the tophat at Hathaway's theatre, this week. Cliff is gifted with an ability to imitate which is second only to Harry Lauder, and some critics of vaudeville place him on the same plane with the eminent Scotch comedian. All of Cliff's types are distinctly English, and he gives an excellent idea of his talents when he sings the song of the lark. Altogether he gives six songs, besides dancing eccentric steps and giving a monologue. He's a great boy, and all who see him vote him that.

Burkhardt, Flynn & Parker, "Just The Three," have a singing act replete with artistic touches. The trio constitute the best male singing aggregation heard here in a long time. Other acts on the bill are: Woods & Woods trio, right wire performers; Van Der Koors, in a quick sleight of hand act; Jarvis & Marlin, comedy jugglers; Elsie Ridgely & Co., in "The Other Woman"; Thea Lightner, pianologist, and the motion pictures.

Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

BIG LIGHT TRUST

With a Capital of $50,000,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The $50,000,000 cities service corporation incorporated in Delaware last week, is to be the holding company for the Denver Gas & Electric company, the Empire District Electric company and the Spokane Gas & Fuel company.

The capital is divided into $20,000,000 common and $30,000,000 6 per cent cumulative preferred. The common has been authorized to the full amount and will be exchanged for the shares of the three operating companies to the total of $5,000,000. Of the balance $500,000 has been set aside for corporate purposes, and the remaining $14,500,000 will be retained in the treasury.

Henry L. Doherty & Co., who are the bankers and syndicate managers of the merger, are to receive $500,000 in common stock of the new company for their services at this time and an additional $500,000 in 10 per cent. Installments as the outstanding common stock is increased.

1910 CHRISTMAS DECORATION

Some of us who were once younger, used to hear a good deal about a certain hot place intimately and permanently concerned with our hereafter and future welfare. The place was vividly described even to the fuel mixture and the material used for paving the floors. It is all just as true today as it was then. But the cold hereafter is another proposition. Winter is a cold reality. We have intimate knowledge of what is coming our way next December. The subject is one of the propositions of "tomorrow," even though you can convince yourself that there is "no tomorrow," that tomorrow never comes. The cold will come even if tomorrow does not. Prepare for it. Put away a supply of winter fuel. Lowell Gas Light Company Coke at $4.75 per cord. It makes a splendid Christmas decoration for the cellar and supplies real cheer for the entire house.

FOR POST OFFICE

Examination for Clerks and Carriers

The federal civil service department has sent out the following notice of an examination for postal clerks and carriers in the local post office:

The next annual examination for clerks and carriers in the Lowell, Mass., post office will take place on Nov. 5, 1910, at Lowell, Mass. POLITICAL GOSSIP

Distribution of Nomination Papers Has Started

And With It the Gossip of What's Going to Happen in State Politics — Some Interesting Contests to be Decided—Caucuses
Fall on September 27

Labor Day is over and now for politics.
The caucuses are called for September 27th but up to today there has been little political talk.

Today, however, appears to be the opening day of the political season for politics was the principal topic of discussion down town this morning.

The republicans have opened their headquarters at the corner of Central and Market streets, but Secretary Goward informed the writer this morning that the opening of the season has been tardy as the nomination papers did not arrive until yesterday.

The democrats opened their headquarters in the Rockingham building this morning with Sec. Owen Monahan in charge. This year the committee has secured the entire floor and has installed furniture, stationery, etc. The time for filing nomination papers closes on September 15th.

The State Delegations
The democrats are particularly interested in the state convention this year owing to the uncertainty as to the identity of the man who will lead the democratic forces as the candidate for the governor. In years gone by, credentials to the democratic state convention have gone begging, but this year there is a big demand for a place on the delegation from all the wards.

The republicans this year are not particularly interested in the state convention as there is no contest for the head of the ticket. But the republicans have a convention in which all want to get, and that is the district attorney affair. The last one has gone down in history without a precedent, the contest which resulted in the election of District Attorney John J. Higgins, taking place one day and a night. No district attorney in Middlesex county has ever had as much hard work as had Mr. Higgins, for so to relate about all the murders in the state within the past two years have come within his jurisdiction. Now comes Max Waldo Cohen, a Cambridge lawyer and an anti-county ring man who is an avowed candidate against Mr. Higgins and who wants to meet him on the stump, and another lively convention is promised. Mr. Cohen once informed the writer that in the event of Mr. Higgins running again, he would withdraw, but that was long ago. Now the information comes from the lower end of the county that Mr. Cohen is in the contest.

The Congressional Contests
It was reported around town and at City hall this morning that Hon. James B. Casey will be a candidate for congress against Col. James H. Carmichael in the democratic primaries. Col. Carmichael has been in the field for some time but as yet Mr. Casey has not given a decided answer though friends of his this morning felt confident that he would be a candidate. The political spectacle of one man running for congress and United States senator at the same time is probably a new record for political activity.

The Senatorial Districts
In the country senatorial district which includes wards five and nine of Lowell and most of the remainder of the universe, the Ames and Lodge forces are to have a lively battle, the Ames people attempting to unseat the present incumbent, Senator Bennett, who is a strong Lodge man. The Ames candidate in this district is James W. Kilham of Reading and the Ames supporters sincerely hope that he will, Alderman Owen Brennan may be the democratic candidate.

In the eighth Middlesex district ex-Rep. Henry W. Draper and Hon. Fisher H. Pearson are to be the democratic candidates. Senator Hibbs is seeking a fourth term and he is opposed by ex-Rep. Charles F. Varnum and Amos P. Best, the well known milk man. Mr. Best is new to the field as a candidate never having held office before.

The Representative Field
The representative field in most districts has a sufficient number of candidates to make matters interesting. In the 14th district Rep. Stevens will get the nomination unopposed while John J. Mahoney in all probability will be re-nominated by the democrats. Town Clerk Brennan of Dracut was prominently mentioned as a candidate but he has not consented to run. Ward one will present no candidate against Rep. Stevens according to an apportionment which gives Dracut the nomination this year.

In the 15th district a red hot three cornered fight is on though not a noisy one for in this district which includes ward two alone, the candidates work by house to house canvasses rather than through rallies and public demonstrations. The candidates are Rep. Edward Kearns, who is seeking a second term; Dennis Murphy, who was a candidate last year, running well, and Councilman Goukin. All three have large followings and it is a good bet that they will get out a phenomenal vote on caucus day. In this district a nomination means an election.

So it is in the 16th district, which includes wards four and five, a nomination means an election, and by the withdrawal of Rep. Martha Conley, five active candidates have jumped in and are hustling. The five are Eugene Tomney of the school board, ex-Overser of the Poor, Jeremiah McGinnley, ex-Councilman Michael J. Markham, ex-Councilman John J. O'Connell and ex-Rep. Timothy Murphy.

The 17th district, which includes wards three, six and seven, and which is ranked as a doubtful district, has Reps. Erson B. Barlow and George Marchand seeking re-election, while Councilman Killpatrick of ward three and Councilman Howe of ward seven are said to be in the contest. This is the district in which the Lodge forces attempted to have a democrat run as their candidate. Stephen J. Monahan, who ran so well last year, will be a democratic candidate again and his friends expect to land him this time.

Rep. Charles F. Killpatrick seeks a re-nomination, which means an election. In the 18th district, ward eight, and Joseph Craig is mentioned as his opponent.

In the 19th district Rep. Cuff will receive the re-nomination without a contest and looks like a winner again. Lawyer Marble is mentioned as his republican opponent, but as the result of the fine record made by Rep. Cuff this year he will have no difficulty in obtaining strong republican support along with the entire strength of his party.

PRIZE OF $20,000

American Aviator is the First to Try For It

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Weymann, the American aviator, started just before noon today in an attempt to win the special Michelin prize of $20,000 offered for the first aviator who, with a passenger, flies in six hours from Paris to the top of Puy-de-Dome after circling the steeple of the cathedral at Clermont-Ferrand.

The conditions of the prize demand a feat considered the most difficult yet cut out for the aviators. When M. Michelin offered the prize, which by the way must not be confounded with the Michelin aviation trophy offered for the longest annual flight in an enclosure, it was thought by some that he was joking. However, the premium stood and subsequently Louis Paulhan announced that he would undertake the journey.

To Weymann goes the honor of the first try. He ascended at 11:45 o'clock this morning and 11:55 officially crossed the starting line above St. Cloud. He used a Farman biplane and carried a passenger as required. The rules provide that the aviator may start anywhere in the departments of the Seine Aisne. He must first turn a complete circle around the Arc de Triomphe in Paris, and arriving at Clermont-Ferrand, he must circle the spires of the cathedral and make a landing on the summit of the Puy-de-Dome.

The trip must be made with two persons in the machine and within six hours. The Puy-de-Dome is a mountain 4800 feet high near Clermont-Ferrand. The distance to be covered is 217 miles "as the crow flies."

WILL FIGHT CASE

Milkman Was Arraigned in Police Court Today

The case of Amos P. Best, a local milkman, charged with violation of the milk law—adding water to milk—was heard before Judge Samuel P. Hadley in police court this morning. And it developed into one of the most important cases which have been brought to the attention of the court for years.

Both sides offered expert testimony, lawyers who have a good knowledge of the milk laws in particular were in the case and rather sensational testimony was offered, the climax being reached when the government contended that the samples given to the defendant by the inspector of the state board of health were not those which were produced in court, but that the latter were substitutes.

Before deciding the case it was agreed that another witness be summoned and that the sealing wax on the bottles presented in court by the defendant as well as those shown by the government be analyzed and a report made.

The case will be resumed next Monday morning.

James P. Owens appeared for the defendant and the government's case was presented by William H. Wilson.

Inspector McCarthy Called
The first witness for the government was Daniel A. McCarthy, inspector of milk and drugs for the state board of health. He testified that on July 12th he took samples from a wagon driven by Mr. Best. Witness did not know the name of the street where he took the samples, not being acquainted with the various streets in this city.

He took two samples, one from a quart jar and the other from a pint jar, the former sample being numbered 12,563 and the latter 12,564. Mr. McCarthy testified that he gave the defendant two samples and kept two himself. Both samples were sealed, the seal of the state board of health being used.

Witness later delivered the samples to Herman C. Lythgoe, state analyst of the board.

Said Water Was Added
Herman C. Lythgoe, state analyst, testified to receiving the samples and made three tests. He said the standard of solids in milk is 12.15 and his analyses showed that the sample numbered 12,564, which was taken from the pint jar, contained 11.72 per cent total solids, 4.15 fats, 7.57 solids, not fat. Further tests showed that the specific gravity was 1.027 per cent, refraction of milk serum 35.7, and determination of ash of milk serum 65.7.

Continuing, witness said: "I determined that water was added to the milk owing to the low gravity. The amount of water added was between 12 and 14 per cent. The other sample (that taken from the quart jar) was not watered and was above the legal standard."

On cross examination by Mr. Owens, Mr. Lythgoe said that the standard of fats required is 4.15 per cent, while his analysis of the sample showed but 3.35 per cent and the standard of solids is 12.15 and but 11.72 showed. He also added that the analysis of the ash showed that the milk had been watered.

"Milk Was Not Adulterated"
Amos P. Best, the defendant, said Mr. McCarthy stopped him in Charles street on the date in question and took two samples and gave him two. He said he got his milk from various places and mixed the different milks in a large tank and then filled the receptacles.

"Did you make any attempt to have the samples turned over to you by the inspector analyzed?" asked Mr. Owens.
"Yes, I did when I received a notice from the state," answered Mr. Best.
"Who did you go to to have them analyzed?"

"I went to Ayer's and saw a Mr. Flynn, later telephoned to the Textile school and found that one of the chemists were there, also tried Pawtucket High school but was unable to locate him."

"Did you try anybody else?"
"Yes, Prof. Prescott of Massachusetts Institute of Technology."

"Did you try Mr. Master?"
"No, sir."

Witness said he sent the samples to Mr. Prescott. He denied that he had added any water to the milk and said that both samples had been taken out of the same tank. He added that when he learned that of the two samples, taken out of the same tank, one was found to be all right and the other it was claimed to be below the standard required by law, his suspicions were aroused, and that was what led to his having been analyzed.

On cross examination by Mr. Wilson, witness said that Walter Hartwell took the samples to Prof. Prescott in Boston.

Expert Testimony
Prof. Samuel C. Prescott, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who testified that he is a chemist, analyst and bacteriologist and had analyzed 50,000 samples of various kinds, said he examined the sample in question on August 26, the milk at that time being sour. The bottles, he said, were sealed and were apparently in the same condition they were when turned over to the defendant by the inspector. Witness also recognized the seal of the state board of health on the bottles.

He made a triplicate analysis of the sample in question which showed 12.12, 12.16 and 12.13 per cent solids, an average of 12.13 per cent. The standard fat, he said, is 3.35 and he found approximately 3.3, 3.5 and 3.8 per cent. Witness said he found that the samples conformed with the law.

His determination of complete ash was .53 and added that the ash in milk varies owing to the breed of the cow and richness of the milk.

Prof. Prescott upon being questioned said that as a result of his analyses he would say that the milk had not been adulterated.

Bottles Produced

At this point the samples alleged to have been given Mr. Best and others alleged to be similar to those used by the state board were produced, and five or ten minutes was taken in scrutinizing the bottles, the seals, etc.

Resuming his testimony Prof. Prescott said that when he received the samples they bore the state seals and were numbered, the numbers on the labels being written with a hard pencil. Mr. Best, however, did not preserve the labels.

Bottles Were Substituted

Inspector McCarthy was recalled and stated that the seals on the bottles presented in court by the defendant were not the seals which he placed on the bottles. He said that during his experience with sealing wax he has made a careful study of the various kinds and during the past two years had imported the wax. He claimed that the wax on the bottles offered in court by the defense was a domestic wax.

Questioned, witness said that the seal was kept in his possession and made a sharp impression in the wax. He then took up one of the bottles which the defense claimed contained a sample of milk and stated that the letter "M" was rather faint.

Continuing, he said: "My inference is that my stamp has been duplicated. The heat would not have any effect on the color of the wax or impression."

Mr. Best Recalled

Mr. Best upon being recalled and questioned said that he would take his oath that the wax on the seals of the bottles in court was that put on by Mr. McCarthy.

At this point the court decided that the case was of so much importance that it would be well to continue it in order to locate Mr. Hartwell, who is stated to have the samples to Boston, and also to analyze the wax.

The case will be resumed Monday morning.

Mr. Best says that he is determined to fight the matter to the limit and feels that he will be exonerated.

WATER STREETS

On Monday and Saturday Evenings Suggested

The board of trade, through Mr. Garrett of the executive committee and Secretary Murphy, has requested Mayor Meehan to have the business streets wet down on Monday and Saturday nights for the benefit of the business men who, keeping their doors open on these evenings, complain of the dust. This is done in Boston, Lawrence and other cities. Messrs. Garrett and Murphy will hold a conference with Mayor Meehan at an early date relative to the matter.

MADE TOUR OF ALASKA

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 7.—Attorney General Wickersham and Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, arrived here last night aboard the United States fisheries steamer Albatross after a six weeks' tour of Alaska. A reception in honor of the visiting cabinet members will be given tomorrow evening at the Arctic club. Secretary of the Interior Ballinger will be present.

MEXICAN WAR VETERANS

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—"It now becomes my sacred duty to adjourn the National Association of Mexican War Veterans to meet again on that beautiful shore. I ask you to rise and adjourn this national association forever." With these words Mr. Moore Murdock, secretary of the association, disbanded it at the close of its final convention yesterday. The 25 survivors were too old, it was felt, to keep the organization together. None of the delegates present was under 70 years old.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends who extended sympathy and sent such beautiful floral tributes in their bereavement, and especially to the employees and office of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. (Signed) Mrs. Frederick Hassett, Thomas J. Sayors, John T. Sayors.

3000 CHILDREN

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE FOR BOYS ON MERRIMACK STREET

Attend French Parochial Schools Opened Today

Nearly three thousand children, whose ages ranged from five to fifteen years, wended their ways to the parochial schools of the French-American denomination yesterday. At St. Joseph's college 715 were registered, 1438 made their way to the school in Moody street which is under the supervision of the Grey Nuns of the Cross, the St. Louis parochial school showed an attendance of 614 children and at South Lowell, St. Mary's school, 74 pupils reported.

While the number which reported yesterday was rather large it will be increased very materially during the week for many of the children are not sent to school until the opening of the public schools.

St. Joseph's college opened with a new director, Rev. Bro. Leon Marcel, who comes from La Malabale, Quebec, where for the past two years he has been directing the Marist school.

The Grey Nuns of the Cross have the greatest number of pupils in charge, 1138 reporting. Of this number, 916 girls registered at St. Joseph's convent, 185 small boys at the kindergarten, and 337 boys and girls at the Notre-Dame de Lourdes school.

Miss Eva Renaud is a new teacher at the school.

At St. Joseph's convent, Miss Dorlaine Jaamin, who graduated last June from the convent of Contrecoeur, Que., has been added to the teaching corps.

Seventy-six pupils were registered at St. Mary's school, Miss Emma Crepeau again has charge, with her sister, Miss Antoinette Crepeau, as assistant.

At St. Louis' school, 614 pupils reported. The teaching corps consists of 13 sisters of the Assumption.

The Pawtucketville school, now being built for the smaller boys and girls of that section, is not quite ready for occupancy.

BOARD OF TRADE HEADQUARTERS

The directors of the board of trade will resume their monthly meetings on September 15th when they will make arrangements for the dedication of their new rooms on the top floor of the Central building diagonally across the corridor from their present limited quarters. The new quarters are light and airy and the assembly hall will hold 150 comfortably.

BANK EXAMINERS TRANSFERRED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Twenty national bank examiners, about one-fifth of the force enrolled by the government, were transferred to new fields today by an order from Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Returns for governor in the state election yesterday from 250 out of 275 election districts, including 100 out of 248 cities and towns, give Mead, republican, 28,694; Watson, democrat, 14,680.

The corresponding vote in 1908 was: Prouty, republican, 37,661; Burke, democrat, 13,007.

These returns show a republican loss of 24 per cent, and a democratic gain of 7 per cent. If the same percentage is maintained throughout the state, Mead's election is indicated by about 17,500 plurality, compared with 20,645 given Prouty in 1908.

The democrats are celebrating the results as a party victory, but the republican leaders are inclined to charge the poor showing to the rain, which kept the farmers at home and in a small degree to the personal unpopularity of the head of the ticket.

The whole republican state ticket was elected, but the democrats made some gains in the legislature.

Both republican candidates for congress were elected.

THE DEMOCRATS

REDUCED THE REPUBLICAN PLURALITY BY 12,000

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Although there were a number of little hill towns still unreported, the republican and democratic leaders scanned the returns of yesterday's election today with considerable interest. That Dr. John A. Mead of Rutland, the lieutenant governor, should have been advanced to full governorship by a plurality of about 17,500 in an off year when the republican plurality have run close to 20,000 on those occasions during the past 25 years, was a matter of fruitful thought on the part of the leaders of the party. The democratic managers, while not at all jubilant over the excellent showing of Lawyer Watson, the party leader, expressed a firm conviction today that the reduction of the republican plurality by more than 12,000 since 1908 was more than an unusual endorsement of democratic issues by the people of Vermont.

The democrats also made heavy business, try the Sun "Want" column.

gains in the legislature and while the senate in the coming session will be solidly republican, nearly forty democrats will sit in the house, an increase of twenty over two years ago.

reached 61,000 two years ago and declined to 50,000 yesterday fell heavily on the republicans, while the socialistic increase was considerable. The two minor parties, prohibitionist and socialist, however, were not a factor in the general result.

Lightning Set Bungalow on Fire

LENOX, Sept. 7.—In a terrific storm which swept up the Yukon valley late yesterday afternoon, the storm center of which was over the Lenox golf course, a bolt of lightning struck a bungalow on the Lenox golf links, set it on fire and stunned Mrs. Samuel Seligman and Miss Cecil Seligman of New York, C. Howard White of London and Duncan Cryder, the New York club man, who had taken shelter in the bungalow.

Mr. White and Mr. Cryder had just finished their last hole when the storm descended. The Seligmans, caught in the downpour, had hastened indoors, when one of the bolts which had been playing over the golf shot down and struck one end of the club house.

It ripped off shingles and passed downward through a brick chimney and fireplace into the ground below. On one side of the fireplace were the Seligmans drying themselves before a blaze which had been started.

In the men's lounge room Mr. Cryder stood before a table drinking ginger ale. The lightning knocked the glass from his hand to the table. The glass did not upset, and after all the excitement was over Mr. Cryder went back and finished his drink.

The bungalow took fire, but was extinguished by caddies and the rain, which fell in torrents.

Mrs. Seligman and Miss Seligman were taken to a hotel, where they recovered from the shock of the experience. One of the great pines on the Hotel Aspinwall grounds was struck and splintered by an electric bolt.

ENGINEER RICE

SAYS DUST OF BITUMINOUS COAL IS DEADLY TO MINER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—That the dust of bituminous coal is an explosive more insidious, threatening and deadly to the miner than firedamp, is the assertion of George S. Rice, chief mining engineer of the bureau of mines. This is contrary to what has been the general belief, nevertheless it has been proved beyond doubt by the experiments of the last two years at the Pittsburgh Testing Station of the United States Geological Survey, which is now a part of the bureau of mines. While many mine operators and miners have believed that coal dust would ignite from an explosion of firedamp in a mine, nearly all of them contended that the dust in a mine free from gas could not explode. Consequently, in many mines where no firedamp could be detected, miners have paid little attention to the accumulation of dust from the cutting of the coal, and it is in these mines, Mr. Rice declares, some of the great disasters have taken place.

In a bulletin which has just been issued by the bureau, Mr. Rice refers especially to the appalling series of great, widespread disasters that occurred in the United States in 1907, as evidence of the terrible havoc wrought by dust explosions. On January 23, at the Primero mine, Colorado, there were twenty-four deaths; on January 26, at the Penco mine, West Virginia, twelve deaths; on January 29, at the Stuart mine, near Fayette, Va., thirty deaths; on February 4, at the Thomas mine, West Virginia, twenty-five deaths; on December 1, at the Naomi mine, Pennsylvania, thirty-five deaths; on December 6, at the Monongah mine, West Virginia, occurred the greatest disaster in the history of coal mining in the United States, 38 lives having been lost. On December 18, at the Volante mine, Ala., fifty-six men were killed; and on December 19, at the Darr mine, 230 men were killed. In this black month of December alone, says Mr. Rice, 648 men were sacrificed, chiefly from the effects of coal dust, which if not the initial cause, in all cases was the agency carrying death.

It was after these explosions that the federal government took up an inquiry into the causes of the disasters and established the testing station at Pittsburgh. The very first work was to prove to the mine operators and miners that coal dust alone would explode. The dust was placed in a cylinder 100 feet long and six feet in diameter, with a cannon imbedded in one end. This cannon was filled with black powder and discharged by electricity into the coal dust. In practically every instance there was a terrific explosion, even more violent than that caused by firedamp. Each succeeding experiment went further to prove that coal dust is the real great danger of the mines. Firedamp, according to Mr. Rice, carries its own warning. Whenever gas is present in a mine it is dangerous quantities, a blue flame rises from the safety lamp to notify the miner but coal dust, though visible, does not attract attention unless present in large quantities. Firedamp is generally found in certain parts of the mine, and except in notable and very exceptional cases is controllable by means of the ventilating currents. If by mischance a body of firedamp is ignited in a mine, the force of the explosion is terrific, but the effect is localized unless dry coal dust is present, or unless (as rarely happens) an explosive mixture of dust and gas is blown through large areas of the mine. In a mine that is dry, dust accumulates everywhere, and the blast from the ignition and combustion of the bituminous dust may traverse miles of rooms and entries and even wreck structures at the entrance of the mine.

Now since it is generally accepted that bituminous coal dust is explosive, the federal investigators have been looking for the remedy. Various experiments, in sprinkling the roadways of the mines, in saturating the air entering the mine with steam so as to produce a humid effect, in placing zones of stone in the mines, have all been tried with various results. A number of these experiments are described by Mr. Rice in the bulletin. Interesting chapters on different phases of the work have been contributed by such well-known men as J. C. W. Frazer, Axel Larsen, Frank Thoms and Carl Schenck. The bulletin, which is No. 426, can be had by addressing the Director of the Bureau of Mines, Washington, D. C.

Bass Overwhelmed Ellis in New Hampshire Election

HON. ROBERT P. BASS, REPUBLICAN NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

State Machine is Badly Wrecked —Cy Sulloway Escaped the Insurgents in His Race for Congress

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—New Hampshire's first state-wide primaries were featured yesterday by the victory of the progressive republicans over the so-called regulars. State Senator Robert P. Bass of Peterborough, the progressive leader, receiving the republican nomination for governor over Bertram Ellis of Keene, the regular standard bearer, by a substantial margin.

With half the state counted, Bass led Ellis by 8757 votes, showing unexpected strength in cities where Ellis was supposed to be stronger, and maintaining his strength in the country districts.

All the interest of the primaries was centered on the republican struggle, as there was no contest in the democratic ranks.

The progressives received one setback in the congressional fight, Congressman Cyrus A. Sulloway of Manchester, generally rated as a regular, securing the congressional nomination in the First district over Sherman E. Burrage, progressive, by a substantial margin.

Congressman Frank D. Carrier had no party opposition to the republican nomination in the Second congressional district. Despite a heavy rain the republican vote was large.

The democratic vote for Clarence E. Carr of Andover for governor and for Mayor Eugene E. Reed of Manchester for the congressional nomination in the First district and Henry H. Metcalf of Concord in the Second district, all of whom were unopposed, was light.

Widespread interest was manifested in New Hampshire's primaries, the first experiment of this kind to be conducted in the eastern states, and the outcome of the sharp struggle between the progressive and regular republicans for the gubernatorial nomination was watched in the expectation of getting some idea of the popular feeling concerning the struggle for party control within the republican ranks.

One of the chief minor features of the election was the defeat in this city as delegates to the state convention of U. S. Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, chief supporter of Carl Ellis, and ex-Senator William E. Chandler, who had been prominent in the support of Mr. Bass.

That President Taft was keeping his finger on New Hampshire's political pulse was indicated by a telegram received here from him during the night asking for information as to the result of the primary.

THE "INSURGENTS" SCORED A TWO TO ONE VICTORY IN PRIMARIES

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—By the ratio of approximately 2 to 1 the republicans of New Hampshire have followed the example of the party in California and Kansas and nominated a "progressive" candidate for governor. With only 16 scattered polling precincts unreported out of a total of 289 in the state, Robert P. Bass of Peterborough, the "progressive" candidate, received more than 18,000 votes, against 9000 cast for Bertram Ellis of Keene, the "regular" candidate. In yesterday's primary elections—the first ever held in this state, Clarence E. Carr of Andover, the democratic candidate, was unopposed for the party nomination for governor. He received nearly 6500 votes. The "progressive" victory did not extend to the congressional contest in the First district where Congressman Sulloway of Manchester, generally counted ed as a "regular," won a decisive victory over Sherman E. Burrage, a Manchester attorney, who was the "progressive" candidate. Congressman Frank Carrier was unopposed in the Second district.

Throughout the republican campaign the tariff and other national issues played but little part, the fight of the "progressives" being directed against alleged control of state affairs by corporate influences.

The candidates for governor were the only ones running for a state office voted for, the legislature electing the other state officers.

The majority of prominent republicans regard the primary system as a marked improvement over the old style method of making nominations through the election of delegates to a convention. The democrats favor the new law. Many members of both parties appear to be of the opinion that primary election day should be changed to a date nearer the November session in order to shorten the long period of campaigning which is now necessary.

FOUND DEAD

WOBBURN MAN USED EITHER AND A SPONGE

WOBBURN, Sept. 7.—James McDermott of 11 Grove street was found dead by his sister yesterday afternoon when she returned from a visit to friends over Labor day. The man was found lying on his bed, a sponge saturated with ether and morphine, across his mouth and nostrils.

Medical Examiner Harrison G. Blake, who was notified, said the man had been dead at least eight hours. He declared the case one of suicide. The family have so far been unable to assign any cause for the act. For some years, and up to a short time ago, McDermott was a crossing tender at Central square, Woburn.

Girls Who Work

are especially exposed to the dangers of female organic disorders. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has enabled thousands of girls to hold their positions.

Read what these girls say:

Phila., Pa.—"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier saved my life. When I was 14 years old I was regular and then it went away for a long time. I went to many doctors but none helped me, so I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions. I took the Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and now I am strong and healthy again. I cannot express my gratitude to you."—Lizzie Weber, 4152 N. Fairhill St., Phila., Pa.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"Having suffered for five long years with suppression and great pain every month, spending big money for doctors and getting no cure, I at last went to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine with little hopes, but found just what I needed. To-day I am regular and have no pain, thanks to your advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Lizzie Steiger, 5510 Fleet Ave., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls will do the same for any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

These testimonial letters are the genuine and truthful statements from honest people.

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there is lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

ON FISHING TRIP

HAULING OUT A BIG ONE Mr. Hammersley dispenses his remedy for seasickness.

Crowd of Street Railway Men Leave Salem Harbor

According to a "Macaroni" wireless received at The Sun office at 2.01.33 1-5 this afternoon there is every indication that there will be a depression in the local fish markets this week. The despatch received at this office indicates that there will be such an influx of fish that the markets will either have to lower their prices or give the members of the many tribes away, for tonight a special car containing employees of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co., with a few invited friends who have their degrees as disciples of Isaac Walton, will arrive in Lowell. In another special car, which will follow, there will be several thousand pounds of fish, if the reports received at this office are correct.

The fishermen are, in the main, employees of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. and the conductors especially are adept in pulling in the lines as a vessel, in their practice in pulling in fish. While pulling in lines on the river it is a case of "in" and "out," according to the register; today it was a case of everything coming in and nothing going out, with the exception of a few of the sea-fish individuals, who, instead of pulling in the fish for food, fed the fishes over the side of the boat.

The party to the number of about fifty strong left Lowell at 2.15 o'clock, and after a most enjoyable ride arrived at Salem shortly after 4 o'clock and boarded Capt. Peabody's two masted schooner "Willie-go-Hink." Owing to the low tide there was some difficulty in making the get-away, but Thomas Flynn, the popular conductor on the Christian Hill-Pawtucketville line, who wears one of those smiles which refuses to come off, took a headlong dive into the water and with the tow line tied around his waist pulled the boat off the flats where it was stranded. Tom is a wonder at aquatic sports and after being hauled into the boat he said that his towing of the boat was merely child's play. He used the Australian crawl stroke while he was acting as tow boat and stated later that he did the stunt in order to get into condition to make the swim from Charlestown bridge to Boston Light, which he intends to attempt some pleasant Sunday when the cars are not running.

Pat Fels, who travels on the front end of the car conducted by Mr. Flynn, was the real hero of the trip. By the way, Fels is a student of aviation and he surprised the members of the party at daybreak this morning when he launched his little monoplane and traveled over the water for several miles and returned. Filled with contention, his fellow fishermen inquired as to his reason for launching the plane in the deep, but he was there with the answer, stating that he made the trip in order to locate the fishing grounds so that the party would not have to lose time.

That Fels found the place, where there were schools of fish goes without saying, for when the anchor was dropped Pat Hammersley was the first man to drop his line, one with 24 hooks in it—and within three minutes he had brought several fine fishes to the surface. One of them was a corker, weighing 17 pounds, nearly as heavy as Pat himself, but the gentle motorman felt disgusted, and intimated to his companions that he was in danger of losing his reputation by hooking the small ones. Pat was out for "Pollock" and was told he would have to steer the bark to Pollock's rip.

While many of the fishermen were seasick during the voyage, Hammersley was there on the side of the boat from early morning until the despatch was received, for he did not fear seasickness.

"JOE" FOX DEAD

The Famous Polo Star Passed Away

The many friends of Joseph F. Fox, the well known polo promoter and former player, will be deeply pained to hear of his death which took place yesterday at his home, 311 Adelphi street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The deceased was a Lowell boy, but left here to go on the western circuit playing polo. When the polo craze reached Lowell he returned and played goal tend for the Lowell team and enjoyed the reputation of being the star goal tend of the country. While a member of the Lowell team he met with an accident in a game which resulted in the loss of the sight of one eye while he narrowly escaped death from blood poisoning. Later he successfully managed the Lowell team and when the game went west he located in that section. For the past few years he has been identified with the management of skating rinks and polo teams in many states.

Mr. Fox is survived by his wife, Sadie, of Brooklyn, N. Y., his mother, Mrs. Ellen Fox of Lowell, two brothers, John and Thomas, both of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Nellie White and Mrs. Henry E. Bird of this city and Miss Annie Fox of New York. The body will be brought to this city for burial by Undertakers Molloy & Sons.

Mrs. Fox, mother of deceased, was removed to the Lowell General hospital yesterday morning. Her condition is reported critical.

THE MILK RATES

Whitings Announce Reduction in Them

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Close on the heels of the disclosures made yesterday, that Governor Draper had practically locked horns with the railroad officials over the new milk transportation rate, the Whiting people threw a bombshell of their own into the field by a circular announcing that hereafter they will only consider Massachusetts milk which is delivered on their platform at Boston and that they believed they would be able to assure the milk producers that this would not mean a reduction of more than a cent and a quarter per can from the winter rate agreed on at the June conference.

It appears that not only is the governor well into it, but even the lieutenant governor has taken a hand, and Senator Lodge has also quietly been trying to urge efforts for a reduction of rates or a return of conditions more agreeable to the farmer.

Just at this time, with elections almost within touching distance, a warning that even a reduction of a cent and a quarter a can is likely to be made is certain to set the producers by the ears.

The Whiting company, in its special circular to the producers, sets the responsibility for this on the Saunders act.

Yesterday, at Worcester, Speaker Walker added to the discussion on the subject when he said: "The transportation problem is of the essence of the milk problem. The railroads must appreciate their responsibility. Their rates must be so made as to encourage and not discourage the production of milk near the site of the market. The rates must be so fixed as not to discriminate against Massachusetts milk. To this end the public authorities and the railroads must co-operate."

"It is folly for health authorities to set up and maintain a system of inspection here and then permit milk in competition with our milk to come over the border from uninspected farms, where farmers are permitted to produce milk under cheaper conditions. This does not protect our consumers and tends to drive the milk producing business out of the state. This we cannot and will not permit."

"An aggravating factor in the milk problem is the large milk contractor. I am convinced that the milk supply of a great city like Boston can be successfully handled only on a large scale and in a wholesale way. The state must act as to prevent monopoly and to encourage competition—competition in buying and competition in selling. The former to protect the producer and the latter to protect the consumer."

MAKE YOUR MONEY EARN MORE THAN 4 PER CENT

I have a few shares of stock of the United Butchers Supply Company, incorporated under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and doing a daily cash business. I believe this stock will pay dividend of more than 10 per cent on every dollar you invest in it. The corporation owns and controls valuable patents. The reason it is placing this stock on the market is to increase the factory space and present capacity. The above is practically a monopoly with no competition.

In a very short while this stock should be worth a great deal more than its par value. It is now selling at $10 in.

This is not a risk. It is a sure thing. This business has existed four years and each day has brought a further increase in its present popularity. Full information and circulars from EDWARD MORRISON, Attorney, 201 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.

Beverly Kitchen Bars to be Closed

BEVERLY, Sept. 7.—The board of aldermen passed an order last evening instructing the police of the city to enforce both the liquor law and the law against automobile speeding, after an animated discussion in the board, in which it was charged that the police have been for some time past notably indifferent to both these laws.

It was the first meeting of the board since the summer vacation, and took place in the new chamber in city hall. Alderman McPherson charged that liquor is being sold openly in kitchen barrooms and so-called club rooms, and that thirsty people come here all the way from the dry city of Salem and get all the liquor they want to take home with them.

Alderman Loring scored the police for neglect to prosecute auto speeders, who, he declared, are not arrested, though complaints are constant both from residents of the city and summer sojourners along the north shore.

Alderman Walter Robertson of the committee on police said that the facts just disclosed should have been communicated to his committee before, and that the police would have been instructed to get a move on.

Alderman Bell introduced the order calling on the police to put a stop to the sale of liquor and to speeding.

Wife is in a Dangerous Condition

BARRE, Vt., Sept. 7.—Vivian Barr and Mrs. Barr were overcome by fumes from a gas stove yesterday.

Mr. Barr is dead and his wife is in a critical condition. Their bodies were found on the floor of their kitchen by Dr. C. E. Barr, their son, when he returned to the house for dinner.

Mr. Barr was 70 years old and his wife 55. They had resided in Barre for the past 20 years.

It is thought Mr. and Mrs. Barr detected the smell of gas in the kitchen, went in to turn it off and were overpowered by the fumes. Mrs. Barr has not recovered consciousness.

FRANKLIN LANE

SAYS THE AMERICAN RAILROAD IS SUPREME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—"I return from the international railway conference at Bern (Switzerland) with much greater enthusiasm over the American railroads as agencies of transportation than I ever had before."

This statement was made yesterday by Franklin K. Lane, a member of the interstate-commerce commission, who was one of the representatives of the United States to the international railway conference.

"The conference established beyond question, I think, the supremacy of the American railroad from the standpoint of efficiency," continued Mr. Lane.

"Europe is just as much disturbed over the high cost of living as is the United States, and I think that in the near future we shall have an international regulation of money systems."

"One thing we have got to do in this country that Europe is far ahead of us in is in providing pensions for our civil employees."

"Europeans regard our methods as barbarous and say frankly that they have outgrown them by 50 years."

"Another thing in which we are far behind Europe is in the matter of employers' liability. Every man in England has to pay damages for an injury that is suffered by his employee. The employers generally insure against this damage."

A NORTH JETTY

AT THE MOUTH OF THE COLUMBIA RIVER

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 7.—The next session of congress will be asked to set aside funds for the construction of a north jetty at the mouth of the Columbia river to supplement the work of the south jetty that is now almost completed. The Oregon delegation will be backed by the recommendations of the chief of army engineers and the secretary of war, so it is expected authority to commence work will be granted without difficulty.

The proposed breakwater will cost in the neighborhood of $1,200,000, and it is expected to place the work on the continuing contract basis that will assure its completion without halting the improvement.

The single jetty now about completed is not sufficient for deepening the canal into the Columbia river to the required depth of 40 feet. A careful measurement of the water on the bar at the mouth of the river, both before and since the jetty improvement was started, shows a noticeable gain in depth, which now reaches to about 30 feet.

The south jetty, by confining the river current and the flow of the tides into and out of the river, has caused the cutting away of the sands to a considerable extent. When the north jetty is built, it will end at a point about two miles north of the extreme point of the south jetty. This will narrow the flow of the river current and the tides at that point and it is believed by the engineers that the erosion of the river bottom will bring about a depth of at least 40 feet at low tide.
